Bolzano, Italy, Aug. 28.—"Italy is ready—militarily, financially and morally—for any eventuality, either in Africa or elsewhere," Premier Benito Mussolini told his cabinet today.

For two hours the guns of the mightiest army in Italian history were silenced while Il Duce sat in "war session" with his ministers.

He won from them full approval of his foreign policy—a policy backed by the 500,000 men maneuvering on the Austrian frontier, deploying in East Africa and being called to the colors by the thousands.

[Sanctions will lead to the "most serious complications" but at the same time England "has nothing to fear from Italy," Premier Mussolini told the cabinet, according to the Associated Press. A communique issued by the cabinet declared: "Italy intends to defend her interests up to the limit."]

"Italy has tried by every means to obtain a peaceful settlement of the dispute with Ethiopia," Mussolini told his ministers as they sat grimly, clad in full military regalia, for the first Fascist cabinet ever convened outside Rome.

Italy to Produce "Proof."

The Crisis Abroad.

Premier Mussolini told a specially summoned war council that Italy is prepared for any eventuality, "either in Africa or elsewhere." He warned that sanctions would lead to the "most serious complications."

The French cabinet voted Premier Laval a free hand to try to save for France the friendship of both Italy and Britain at Geneva.

Britain ordered senior members of the army council to remain in the vicinity of London.

Sixty were reported killed in fighting between Ethiopians and tribesmen from French Somaliland.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 28.—Ethiopia's difficulties in preparing for war with Italy increased today when the Governor of Aussa Province reported fighting between his retainers and tribesmen from French Somaliland.

The Governor informed Emperor Haile Selassie that 60 were killed when French Somali—mostly warriors belonging to the Issa tribe—raided his territory. He did not specify whether his own forces or the invading raiders were killed.

Aussa, a fertile, water-fed region, lies on the edge of the Donakil Desert—one of the most desolate stretches of territory on earth.

The Emperor ordered his meager air force to stage a sham air raid on Addis Ababa Friday. He will test recent orders designed to protect the civilian population when Italian planes roar over the city showering bombs.

Aviation officials described as "fantastic" reports published abroad that an Italian plane, disguised as one of the Emperor's, flew over Addis Ababa yesterday.

"If any such thing happened we would have known about it," they said.

Officials continued efforts ot persuade thousands of the capital's floating population to return to their tribal centers. Many departed on foot or on mules.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 28 (AP).—Fear of war, apparently wipping out the cleavage formerly existing between Ethiopian Christians and Mohammedans, had banded them together today in joint intercessory services, an unprecedented event.

Moslem imams (priests), in their Friday prayer services in the mosques, will urge Mohammendans to unite with Christians "in this time of national peril."

The recent appointment of Belata Ayelle Gabre to the consulate at Yemen is another indication of the closer relations between the two sects. Several Moslem missions are arriving from Yemen bearing messages of sympathy and support for the Emperor.

The Ethiopian minister at Cairo informed Emperor Haile Selassie today that 5,000 Egyptians, Moslems as well as Copts, are ready to form a foreign legion to fight against Italy.

Ethiopian consulates both at Cairo and Port Said, the Emperor was told, are being besieged by crowds of applicants for enlistment.

The Ethiopian government is not accepting their offers at present and will await results of the League of Nations council meeting at Geneva September 4 before acting.

Monoxide Kills L. J. Woodring

Contractor Found After Day in Auto; Death Is Called Suicide.

Leslie J. Woodring, Washington contractor, yesterday was found dead in his car, parked on the highway between Buena Vista and Mitchellville, Md., since Tuesday at 2 p. m. with its still-running motor pumping carbon monoxide gas into the interior through a length of garden hose.

Prince Georges County Coroner Louis Gundling gave a tentative verdict of suicide.

Residents of the Buena Vista area told authorities they had seen the machine parked alongside of the highway since 2 p. m. Tuesday. But not until about noon yesterday did anyone make an investigation.

Louis Woods, of Lanham, Md., a mail carrier, peered into the tightly closed auto and saw Woodring's body slumped over the steering wheel. Beside him lay a half-filled bottle of whisky. On the floor was an opened package of cigarettes.

Woods called Hyattsville police and later assisted Sergt. Ralph Brown in forcing open a car door locked from the inside.

In Woodring's clothing they found a driver's license issued to him at an address on Madison avenue, Riverdale, Md. Other papers in his pockets indicated that Woodring had also lived at 1306 and 913 Maryland avenue northwest. It appeared from deposit slips found in his clothing that he recently had put several hundred dollars in the bank.

Recently, however, Woodring has been living with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Smith, 4521 Stanford street in Chevy Chase, Md. Mr. Smith is a lumber dealer.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith could ascribe no motive. Authorities said Woodring appeared to have been dead about 24 hours when his body was found.

Rogers Will Gives 5 Million to Widow

Fortune Goes to Children on Her Death.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Aug. 28.—The entire fortune of Will Rogers, cowboy philosopher and actor, unofficially estimated at about $5,000,000, was left to his widow, Betty Blake Rogers, it was disclosed tonight.

The will, written a few days before Rogers took off on an ill-fated flight to Alaska in which he crashed to his death with Wiley Post, was filed for probate. It was dated August 3, 1935.

The document provided in the event of Mrs. Rogers' death the property was to be divided equally among the actor's three children, Mary, 22; Will, jr., 23, and James, 20.

Los Angeles, Aug. 28 (AP).—Edward McCullough, local attorney, who said he represented Lloyds, London insurance brokers, announced today he had delivered a check for $2,500,000 to Mrs. Will Rogers, representing a special insurance policy on the life of the late comedian.

Labor Revolt, Boycott Seen Against Italy

Army Council Seniors Told to Remain in Vicinity of London.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 28.—Senior members of the British army council have been ordered by the war office to remain in the vicinity of London, a military source said tonight.

Foreign military quarters considered it a precautionary move. No official statement was issued.

At the same time the British Independent Socialist Party called upon organized labor to exert every effort to thwart Mussolini's African program. There was a possibility labor organizations throughout Europe would act through general strikes and boycotts to combat Italy in the event of war.

The general council of the International Federation of Trade Unions and the executive council of the Labor and Socialist International discussed a meeting to be held September 6 to discuss the Italio-Ethiopian situation.

Strikes Forecast.

There have been predictions that plans for strikes and boycotts against Rome would grow out of this meeting, which was summoned hurriedly after consultations by antiwar sub-committees of the two organizations in Paris.

When the League Council meets next week, it was learned from informed quarters, Great Britain formally will renew an Anglo-French offer to give Italy wide economic and partial administrative control of Ethiopia.

Anthony Eden, minister of League of Nations affairs, in his opening speech containing the offer, will state this is the farthest the British government is prepared to go to meet Mussolini's demands, these sources reported.

If Mussolini again rejects the offer, which was first made during the tri-power conversations in Paris, many circles expect the British government then will try to line up League members for action under the covenant.

League Support Sought.

Beginning its preliminary work in this matter, the government has started sounding other nations and there was a procession of diplomatic representatives at the Foreign Office all day, including the Ambassadors and Ministers from France, Belgium, Spain, Holland and Latvia.

Downing street appeared confident all Council members would strongly support the League, although reports from Paris indicate Premier Laval does not want to talk of sanctions unless the subject is absolutely forced into the open.

The general council of the Independent Socialist Party at an emergency meeting, called in view of the danger of war between Italy and Ethiopia, adopted a resolution calling upon all Socialists, "whilst acknowledging the sins of British imperialism, to prevent by every effort of organized labor any assistance being given the Italo-Fascist rulers to massacre and further en-

U. S. Secretive About Answer To Soviet Note

'In No Hurry,' Hull Says After Conference With Roosevelt, Aids.

By Felix Bruner.

Carefully guarding every move, the State Department last night continued to map its next step in the situation resulting from the Soviet government's rejection of the protest of the United States against interference in the internal affairs of this country.

Secretary Hull and R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Soviet affairs, conferred with President Roosevelt for three-quarters of an hour late yesterday.

"We are in no great hurry to take action," Moore said following the conference. "There will be no announcement today."

Earlier in the day Secretary Hull said the Soviet note was being studied, but would give no hint as to possible action.

That some step carrying out the threat of "most serious consequences" contained in the note of the United States would be taken appeared certain. It is possible that this step will be announced today.

In some quarters it was suggested that the United States might send another note, in the nature of an ultimatum, telling the Soviet government that unless it intended to respect its pledge of non-interference recognition would be withdrawn. It is even possible that the delay announcing action might be occasioned by the necessity of giving Ambassador Bullitt, in Moscow, an opportunity to deliver another note.

State Department officials have been studying the Soviet reply since its receipt Tuesday afternoon and it is believed that some step has been agreed upon. It is probable that this step was outlined to President Roosevelt for his approval.

An immediate complete break in relations between the United States and the Soviet government is not

Nats Split Two With Browns; Avoids Cellar

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—Washington made good its escape from St. Louis with seventh place today when it brought a five-game losing streak to a grinding stop with a 10-to-2 victory over the last-place Browns in the opening game of a double-header. In the second game, the Nats fell back to their losing ways and absorbed a 2-to-1 beating.

The two teams, which have commanded no attention whatsoever in the American League this season, collaborated today in setting a record. They played the final game in the brief time of 1 hour and 19 minutes, the shortest full-length game in the league this season.

The rapid-moving afterpiece was helped along by the clever pitching of Paul Andrews, of the Browns, and Jack Russell, of the Nats, each of whom turned in six-hit performances.

Linke Gives Five Hits.

Behind the five-hit pitching of Ed Linke in the opener, the Nats shattered not only their five-game losing streak, but the five-game winning streak of the Browns, who had won a game from the Yankees before sweeping four straight from the Nats.

After permitting the Browns to overcome a 1-to-0 lead with two runs in the third inning, Linke pitched one-hit ball over the last six innings, a single by West in the sixth being the Browns' lone hit over that stretch.

The Nats, with Linke making three safeties, launched a 14-hit attack against Fay Thomas and Dick Coffman. They pounded Thomas from the box while taking a 5-to-2 lead in the fourth inning. Singles by Myer, Travis and Holbrook and a double by Linke combined with a wild pitch by Thomas helped the Nats to four runs in the fourth.

They climaxed their victory in the opening game with a four-run uprising against Coffman in the ninth, when Myer and Powell singled, Kres double and Linke contributed a single for his third hit.

Jack Russell, turning in his best pitching performance of a miserable season, had the misfortune to be cast against Paul Andrews in the second game. Andrews' triumph in the mound duel was his second victory over the Nats during the series.

Given a starting assignment by Manager Bucky Harris, who had none else to call upon, Russell permitted single runs in the fifth and eighth, the Browns' final tally resulting from his own mental error when he chose to throw to third instead of first on a bunt and failed to retire the runner.

The Nats were unable to capitalize on Kuhel's double, which opened the fourth inning, and the Browns took a 1-0 lead in the fifth when Clift doubled to left with Bullets Wrote Bloody Finish To Crime Mob

Finding ofHamilton's Body Completes U. S. Score Against Dillinger.

A grim "finis" was written yesterday to the Dillinger gang—the most notorious, death-dealing band of gunmen ever to leave a trail of blood and lawlessness across the Nation.

It was written with the discovery of the body of John Hamilton, pudgy murderer, once trigger man for John Dillinger, in a deep grave at the side of a highway near the little town of Oswego, Ill.

Hamilton died, as did most of the other Dillinger mobsters, by the gangland version of the Bibical law of living by the sword and dying by the sword.

He lived by the gun—and he died by the gun—whether the chattering machine gun of rival gangsters, a bullet of the law, or a chance shot, officials could not say.

Hamilton shared with Alvin Karpis the title of Public Enemy No. 1—an outcast title of hunted men, inherited as, one-by-one, their companions in crime dropped by gunfire from the worldly scene through which they shot and bluffed their sinister ways.

Chief Triggerman.

But Karpis never was a Dillinger gangster, while Hamilton—the bank robber and killer—was chief trigger man for the Indiana farm boy whose career is perhaps the most shameful in the annals of crime.

"My pal, Hamilton" Big John Dillinger used to say. "My pal, and he's almost as good as me, is my pal."

That was long before Dillinger was swept from the earth he pillaged and robbed by a hail of Department of Justice bullets in front of a Chicago movie theater on a pleasant summer evening, July 22, 1934.

Department of Justice agents and police throughout the country included 11 desperadoes in the Dillinger gang.

9 Dead, 2 in Prison.

With the finding of the badly decomposed body of Hamilton, the score for the Dillinger gang at the end of its losing battle against the forces of decency, law and order, stood as follows:

Dead, 9.

In prison, 2.

Dillinger was slain by the "G"-Men July 22, 1934, in Chicago.

Jack Klutas, known as the collegiate gang leader, was slain January 6, 1934, in Bellwood, a Chicago suburb.

Herbert Youngblood, Negro criminal, who escaped from Crown Point, Ind., Jail with Dillinger in the "wooden gun" prison break, was slain at Port Huron, Mich., March 16, 1934.

Eugene ("Eddie") Green, was fatally wounded when he found an officer he couldn't bluff in St. Paul in April, 1934.

Tommy Carroll, a Dillinger lieutenant, was shot to death in Waterloo, Iowa, June 7, 1934.

Homer Van Meter met death from gunfire in St. Paul August 22, 1934.

Charles Makley, Dillinger mobsman, was shot to death when he attempted to escape from Ohio State Penitentiary, in Columbus, in October, 1934. He was awaiting electrocution with Harry Pierpont.

Pierpont was wounded in the break. He was nursed back to ap-

Hamilton Slain; Agents Discover Grave of Outlaw

Discovery of Bullet-Torn Corpse Ends Year of Relentless Search for Notorious Police Killer; Was the Last of the Dillinger Gang.

Bandit Died as He Had Lived, 'A Yellow Rat Trapped in a Pit'

Believed Fatally Wounded in Gun Battle With Police in Minnesota After Escape From Little Bohemia, April 22, 1934.

The bullet-torn body of John Hamilton, gunman, killer and last of the notorious Dillinger mob, was found yesterday buried deep in a gravel pit near Oswego, Ill. The discovery was made by special agents of the Department of Justice after weeks of digging.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced the gangster's body was uncovered by agents on special assignment from the Washinton office. Reports of Hamilton's death had been in the hands of investigators nearly a year. A constant search for his body was rewarded shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday.

In a rural, desolate section of northern Illinois, surrounded by swampland and woods, special agents, armed with picks and shovels, toiled day and night in their relentless hunt for the slain bandit's remains. The gravel pit, covering acres of rolling, sun-baked stone, yielded nothing in several weeks of searching. Every inch of ground was turned before the body was found.

Body Partly Exposed by Elements.

Although buried deeply at first, the body had been partially uncovered by rain and wind. It was lying without wrapping in a narrow trench on a grassy tract at the edge of the pit. Inprints of the head, shoulders and legs were clearly pressed in soft clay of the make-shift grave.

Hoover refused to disclose what clew led his agents to search the remote gravel pit. "We had information," was his only comment.

Residents of the tiny village of Oswego could only surmise what the agents were doing. Word of the find was flashed to Director Hoover in his office here. Hoover said the body was badly decomposed, but was identified immediately. He refused to disclose means of identification.

Died Like a Rat.

Known as a merciless killer, machine gunner for the original Dillinger gang and a notorious bank robber in his own right, Hamilton died as he lived—"a yellow rat, trapped in a pit," Hoover declared.

The agents from Washington apparently worked with their usual secrecy, according to an Associated Press report.

Illinois authorities, the report said, were informed of the Federal men's actions. Local officers near Oswego knew that "a man's body" was being sought in the pit, but beyond that had no word of the search.

Dr. F. M. Groner, Kendall County coroner, said he had not been informed that the body had been found. He said that two men, who identified themselves as Federal agents, approached him several days ago and asked about a body "buried in a gravel pit near Oswego."

Groner said he told agents that the last human remains dug up in the vicinity were from Indian mounds and were identified by college students as skeletons of aboriginals. The agents left and Groner said he heard no more from them.

Shot Several Times.

Marks on Hamilton's body showed he had been shot several times, Hoover revealed. It is impossible to determine where or how the gunman received the wounds which brought his death, he added.

It is known, however, that Hamilton was with his cronies of the Dillinger gang during their "last stand" at Little Bohemia, in northern Wisconsin on April 22, 1934. The following day, on a highway in Minnesota, Hamilton engaged in a gun battle with State officers.

Hoover said he could "only guess" in which conflict the mobster was wounded. From information in the hands of Federal investigators, it has been learned that Hamilton died in a Chicago apartment, where he was taken by gangster companions. The same companions buried him in the gravel pit, officials declared.

After Hamilton's running gun battle with State officers on the Minnesota highway, a blood-stained automobile was found in South St. Paul. In the car with Hamilton, and returning the officers' fire, were two other men. After abandoning the machine, they took another car. This too, was found soaked in blood, apparently from Hamilton's wounds.

Although Hamilton was known to have been the one who fought beside John Dillinger in the encounter with Federal agents near Little Bohemia, investigators are inclined to believe he was fatally wounded in the next day's battle in Minnesota.

Hamilton, Dillinger, Tom Carroll and Homer Van Meter, then ranking "public enemies," were trapped in a small inn at Little Bohemia. The desperadoes opened fire when the agents approached and escaped from a side window opening onto a lake. The battle continued. W. Carter Baum, Federal agent, was killed and Jay C. Newman, another agent, was wounded during the fight.

After the outlaws escaped, agents picked up the trail near St. Paul and, aided by State officers, again battled the fleeing gangsters.

Since the death of his old leader, Dillinger, the missing Hamilton had been ranked with Alvin Karpis, now a fugitive, as "Public Enemy No. 1." Outstanding charges against him were the slaying of a detective in Chicago, the shooting of a sheriff near Lima, Ohio, and numerous bank robberies.

Record Began in 1927.

First records against him were entered in files of the Department of Justice in January, 1927, when he was arersted in South Bend, Ind., for auto theft. He escaped from the Indiana State Prison, Michigan City, Ind., in the famous break of September 26, 1933.

He was 41 years old and joined the Dillinger mob fresh from his job as a carpenter in Canada. He had been reported dead many times during his forays with Dillinger, but only recently did the underworld "grapevine" place credence in the report.

It was announced last night that Hamilton's body was taken to an Oswego undertaking establishment and that an inquest would be held today.

In Chicago, the Associated Press said, Melvin H. Purvis, recently retired chief of Federal agents there and hero of the Dillinger "finish," announced that Hamilton's death "winds up the Dillinger gang."

Britons Told to Leave

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

London, Aug. 28.—Sir Sidney Barton, British Minister to Ethiopia, today advised all Britons who can leave Addis Ababa conveniently to do so at once.

The foreign office denied Djibouti reports that British subjects have ben ordered to evacuate Ethiopia within four days, but it was admitted Sir Sidney is hastening departures.

The foreign office here buzzed with activity, while Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare received United States Senator ames P. Pope (Democrat), of Idaho; Secretary for League Affairs R. Anthony Eden received Ramon Perez, Spanish Ambassador, with whom he discussed the position of Gibraltar in event of war in East Africa.

3,000 English in Ethiopia.

The foreign office announcer thehe are approximately 2,000 British subjects in Ethiopia, including African natives and East Indians, who total 1,800. There are 123 British missionaries in the vicinity of Addis Ababa.

Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner to London, visited the foreign office to discuss attitude of the British dominions toward the Italo-Ethiopian conflict and possible League action.

After Eden conferred with Perez he announced he would proceed directly to Geneva Monday without stopping at Paris to see French Premier Pierre Laval in advance of the all-important League council session scheduled for September 4.

Pope will go to Paris Thursday to see Laval. Although on an unofficial mission, he has devoted most of his time to consideration of the international situation.

Gibraltar Post Active.

The Gibraltar garrison today resorted to unprecedented precautionary measures, ordering a cavalry squadron, arriving tomorrow, to proceed to the town of Campamento, near La Linea. It is to establish a permanent patrol of neutral ground between Spanish territory and the great British Mediterranean fortress. Infantry guards were ordered to the Spanish frontier.

The Malta high command announced that troop maneuvers, originally scheduled for only a few days in limited districts, will be conducted for a month in all parts of the island.

Between You and Me

Three Little Words Embarrass Hull; Communist Paper Scooped; Trouble-Maker Is Kansan.

By Raymond Clapper

EVER since the night that Adam and Eve went out into the moonlight, three little words have been getting all sorts of people into all sorts of trouble.

Yet one never would suspect that such trouble could befall a dignified, calm, cautious man of few words like Cordell Hull, the present eminent Secretary of State.

But, sure as you live, there he is, squirming as uncomfortably as a deacon in a breach-of-promise suit when the attorney for the plaintiff hands him a letter and demands sternly, "What did you mean when you said that?"

Secretary Hull, in his note to the Soviet government, had warned that "most serious consequences" would result if the Soviet government did not take appropriate measures to prevent activities directed at undermining the American form of government. The Soviet government not only refused to take such measures, but it refused to accept the protest. That left it for Secretary Hull to decide what he meant by the "most serious consequences."

True there is some question Washington as to whether the phrase was put into the note in the State Department or by President Roosevelt when he read the draft over. Anyway the note is hung on Hull, so he has to take the rap.

He has a hard decision to make because, despite the strong grounds for American irritation, and the hard-boiled unconciliatory tone of the Soviet rejection, there are reasons of state which—omitting the Communist propaganda angle—make it undesirable to break off diplomatic relations with the Soviet government. Mainly they relate to the Far Eastern situation. When the protest was made public every effort was made in official quarters to discourage the press from interpreting it as a threat to break off relations.

Second guessing in Washington is working around to the conclusion that the United States would have made a neater job of the protest by not including the three rough little words in the first move.

Several minor ironies have come up on the backwash from the hard-hitting protest.

One is that the Communist agitators who have drawn the American rebuke fancied they were helping Mr. Roosevelt beat down the "Fascist forces"—meaning the American Liberty League, the Huey Longs and other opponents of the Administration. They represented Mr. Roosevelt as in danger of having to give ground to these forces.

However, it is not correct that one of the Communist speakers at the Moscow all-world Congress urged American Communists to support the President. That report, a garbling of the facts, has caused some stir in Washington. What happened was that one speaker said in substance that the danger to Communism in the United States would come from Fascist movements more than from Roosevelt. By the time the story got into print here, it read as if the Communists were about to reelect Roosevelt. However, it isn't important. Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have other means of support.

When Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky issued his statement snapping back at the United States protest, he allowed the Communist Daily Worker, which maintains a Washington staff, to be scooped.

The result was that the leading Communist newspaper in the country appeared the next morning without the Soviet Ambassador's tart reply while the capitalist papers had it on page 1. That's not the close coordination you would expect. But the Communist newspaper correspondents here say they are on the same basis at the Soviet Embassy as other Washington newspaper writers and enjoy no special favors.

The American Communist who has stirred up so much trouble by his speeches at the Moscow meeting, Earl Browder, is a Kansas boy. Born in Wichita. Father a school teacher and town infidel. Grandfather fought British in War of 1812, then became a circuit-rider preacher. Earl Browder, 43, had a grade school education, worked as messenger boy in Wichita, became a radical labor agitator in Kansas City, fought conscription, did time in Leavenworth for draft evasion, became a revolutionary, and hooked up with W. Z. Foster, the No. 1 Communist leader in America. As his protege Browder in 1930 was elected general secretary of the Communist Party and, as Foster has been ill for some time, he has been the mainspring of the American branch of the movement. He testified before House and Senate committees last winter, lives in New York, has a wife and three children. His speeches are full of Communist jargon about the "united front," clear over the heads of ordinary college-educated bourgeois.

not fit for membership in the League."

The emergency cabinet was called three weeks in advance of schedule. The meeting, called to order at 7 p. m.—three hours late—was summoned dramatically by Il Duce immediately after his arrival to inspect his forces, maneuvering to show the world Italy is ready to protect herself in Europe while her expeditionary forces campaign abroad.

Face Gravest Crisis.

Mussolini and his ministers met at Government House to face the gravest crisis of the Fascist regime. Although officials denied all day that the East Africa crisis prompted the meetnig, the United Press learned the sole causes of the emergency session were League complications over the conflict with Ethiopia and increasingly tense Anglo-Italian relations.

Il Duce was most concerned with the headlong course of Italo-British relations.

Rome officials admittedly considered Britain's dispatch of her Mediterranean fleet to the Suez Canal an "unkind act."

After hearing their supreme leader, the ministers were emphatic in their approval of procedure enabling Italy to meet any eventuality growing out of next week's deliberations at Geneva.

Official confirmation of reports Britain orered her fleet to Suez for "maneuver purposes" and belief she steadfastly would sponsor League adoption of sanctions against Italy blasted Mussolini's hopes the British ultimately might modify their stand regarding the impending Italian military occupation of Ethiopia.

Army Leaves Cancelled

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 28.—The government, marshalling every resource to meet a possible crisis in East Africa, decided today to cancel all military furloughs, informed sources said.

The order, these sources related, will cancel the annual holiday of every member of the army, navy and aviation forces.

Five more vessels are being reconditioned in Genoa to reinforce Italy's bridge to East Africa, it was reliably reported. These ships are said to be among several of those recently purchased abroad to augment Italy's facilities for transporting the army to the Ethiopian battle front.

The ships have been renamed Campaignia, Lombardia, Umbria, Lazio and Lignira.

The source from which they were obtained was not disclosed, but it is understood that when they are reconditioned they will be able to transport 4,000 men each. Their renovation is expected to be accomplished in time to allow them to clear from Naples by September 9.

The minister of propaganda today officially denied reports published abroad that 12,000 Somali troops armed and trained by Italian colonial officers had deserted to Ethiopia with their arms.

Ohio Rug Controversy Made Political Issue

Mount Gilead, Ohio (U.P.).—Gov. Martin L. Davey has caused a stir in political circles by demanding an appropriation of $1,000 for an office rug. It was refused him and he attempted to get the floor covering by public subscription.

The rug episode is to have its repercussion in the next election, as A. L. Spriggs, Mount Gilead, plans to campaign for the gubernatorial nomination and one of the planks in his platform calls for linoleum for the floor of the Governor's office.

U. S. Secretive About Answer To Soviet Note

'In No Hurry,' Hull Says After Conference With Roosevelt, Aids.

expected. As an alternative to an "ultimatum" the State Department might call Ambassador Bullitt back to the United States for a "vacation" without actually withdrawing recognition.

From the point of view of the United States, the issue is clean-cut.

The Soviet government pledged in 1933 that no organization having as its purpose interference with the social order or with the Government of this country would be permitted to exist within its borders.

The United States Government contends that it has indisputable proof that the Communist International is such an organization.

The Soviet Government does not deny this allegation but disclaims any obligations as to the Communist organization.

The United States Government has threatened "most serious consequences" unless existence of such an organization, so far as it relates to the country, is immediately ended by the Soviet Government.

The Soviet Government has indicated that it expects to take no action.

Next Move Up to United States.

This puts the next move definitely up to the United States. In the opinion of observers the question to be settled is whether the Soviet will be given another opportunity to act, or whether the "serious consequences" shall be put into effect and what form these "consequences" will take.

There are several reasons why it is believed the Administration does not wish to be hasty in withdrawing recognition. Renewal of relations with the Soviet was a subject of controversy for years. President Roosevelt early in his administration moved to bring it about. While results of renewed relations with Russia have come far from bearing out predictions, it is believed the Administration would not care to be put in the position of admitting that it has been a complete failure.

Bullets Wrote Bloody Finale To Crime Gang

Finding of Hamilton's Body Ends U. S. Score Against Dillinger Mob.

parent health, then marched into the death house and executed in the electric chair October 17, 1934.

George "Baby Face" Nelson, diminutive Dillinger gangster, was slain in a battle with Federal agents at Barrington, Ill., November 27, 1934.

Russell Clark is serving a life term for murder, and Joseph Burns also is in prison.

"Grapevine" Rumors Death.

For months rumors that Hamilton had been slain and lay in a secret grave had been circulating in police circles, their obvious source being the "grapevine telegraph" of gangland.

Variously he was reported buried in a supposed grave in a lime kiln in southwestern Wisconsin, in Minnesota, and in a Chicago suburb.

Never relaxing their search, Federal agents here were skeptical, and refused to comment on these reports. They pushed relentlessly on in their search for the killer, or his unmarked grave.

At least three murders were charged against Hamilton. He also was wanted for automobile theft and for bank robbery.

"Three-Fingered Jack."

Of medium stature and weight, with cool, slate-gray eyes and dark chestnut hair, Hamilton was known as "Three-Fingered Jack."

Hamilton acquired his nickname in Saulte St. Marie, Mich., where his family lives. He was born, however, in Canada, 41 years ago—and was brought to the United States when he was a youngster.

His career in sensational crime began rather suddenly. He escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary, in September, 1933. He had been sent to the "big house" for 25 years because of the part he played in a bank robbery in South Bend.

He had been transferred there from the State Reformatory in Pendleton, Ind., in 1929. Until then he was an obscure, unheard of criminal, known to few save those who keep the rogues' galleries.

After he escaped from penitentiary he was charged with some of the most brutal crimes on the books.

He murdered Policeman William P. O'Malley, in east Chicago, Ind., in January, 1934. His gun brought death to Officer O'Malley during a bank robbery. Hamilton escaped into the night with his "pals" and $20,376 loot.

He was charged with the murder of Policeman William T. Shanley, in Chicago, in December, 1933. The cold-blooded shooting took place in a garage, when the officer was questioning him regarding an automobile.

On December 20, 1933, he robbed the American Bank & Trust Co., at Racine, Wis., of $27,000.

During the sensational jail delivery of John Dillinger, in Lima, Ohio, May 12, 1933, Hamilton murdered Sheriff Jesse Sarber.

Swooping down on the First National Bank at Mason City, Iowa, in April, 1934, Hamilton was wounded. Dr. N. G. Mortensen, St. Paul health chief, was dismissed from service for treating his wounds.

Most Hunted Man.

After "Baby Face" Nelson was slain, Hamilton became the most hunted man in the Nation. It was Hamilton, according to the theory, who was with Nelson when the latter fought his last battle with Federal agents—a battle in which he and two agents were mortally wounded.

If Hamilton was the most hunted man in America, he also became, after months wore on, the "most often reported killed."

Dillinger, after his recapture, following the Lima jail break, told officers Hamilton had been shot and his body thrown into an Indiana river.

Later, after Dillinger was dead, police were baffled by the report that Hamilton had been shot and his body hidden in a swamp in Pierce County, Wis., or between South St. Paul and Hastings, Mont.

Only a few days after Dillinger's burial, a note was found on his grave. It bore the initials "J. H."

Dillinger's Best Friend.

Of this officers always were fairly certain:

Hamilton, one of the most ruthless killers gangland ever has known, was a favorite pal of Dillinger.

A letter from Dillinger to Hamilton's one-time girl friend, Patricia Cherrington, shortly before Dillinger was slain, expressed regret for Hamilton's death.

The letter from the gang chief apologized for not being able to send the Cherrington woman money. Dillinger ascribed it to his having to pay off Homer Van Meter, another of the gang, slain last August by Chicago officers.

This letter, given by St. Paul authorities to a former henchman of the gang, led to the belief that Hamilton was dead.

The finding of the body, in its lonely grave yesterday, was the confirmation.

The Dillinger gang is no more—nor even a fraction thereof.

Senate Plans Rules Change To Muzzle Long

Administration to Blame Huey for Deprivation of Old and Needy.

By Robert C. Albright.

Determined to crush the power of Huey P. Long, Administration leaders moved yesterday to tie permanently to his coat tails the temporary blocking of social security benefit payments and prevent the recurrence in the Senate of another Long filibuster.

President Roosevelt said that due to Long's final-day tactics, no Federal money will be available for grants to the States for old-age pensions, crippled children, the blind, or needy widows, until Congress reconvenes.

Coincidently Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson warned "there will be presented at the beginning of next session an amendment to the rules, designed to end the 'one-man filibuster.'"

Later, Speaker Byrns appointed a House Campaign Investigating Committee that might, under its broad authorization, delve into the political activities of the Long machine in Louisiana in its next campaign.

The Robinson proposal to amend "unlimited debate" rules of the Senate to curb Long in the future precipitated an immediate controversy among Senators, with Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, and a number of his colleagues speedily lining up against "controlled debate."

Census Bureau machinery meanwhile was drafted to gather birth and age data and business information, to be used in the ultimate operation of the old-age pensions and unemployment insurance programs. President Roosevelt told reporters the social securities administrative agencies will be set up and studies made for the purpose of spending Federal-State benefits, once funds are available.

Warning of an attempt to amend the Senate rules was given by Senator Robinson, before leaving on an extended automobile trip. Robinson, who is up for reelection next year, and who may have to contend with Long in his Arkansas campaign, said Long's filibuster "has disgusted the Senate and the country."

"Suffering and great inconvenience will result," he added.

But his proposal to amend the rules of the Senate to clip Huey's feathers drew a sharp retort from Senator Borah.

U. S. To Help Pay For Italy's War On Ethiopia; Neutrality Law Easy To Overcome.

By Samuel Crowther

THE current discussions on preserving the neutrality of this country in the event of Italy going to war with Ethiopia take for granted that complications may arise out of our selling or refusing to sell munitions or supplies to belligerents. It is assumed that the scenes of the early stages of the World War may be re-enacted

The discussion fails to take into account that this is a very different world from that of 1914 and that goods are today not nearly so important as money. It is difficult enough to define contraband, but no one as yet has even attempted to exlore the subject of money as contraband. Money exists in so many different forms and its ownership can be changed so easily, that pinning a label on any specific fund would be a good deal like locating the pea in a shell game. Thus much of the neutrality discussion is purely academic.

In 1914 not a nation in the world was equipped to wage war and support its population without drawing on the outside world for important supplies. Germany, the best equipped, had to have food, cotton and rubber. Since then things have changed. Every nation has achieved a measure of self-containment and is striving for more. That is one of the reasons why Secretary Hull's program to expand international trade by lowering duties has fallen so flat—no foreign nation will lower the protection on any home industry connected with making war. And in these days practically every industry fits into the war scheme.

One of Mussolini's chief objectives has been to make Italy self-contained and, considering the poverty of Italy's natural resources, he has succeeded marvelously. Before the war, Italy was a dependent nation. Now she is self-contained for war except for cotton, coal, rubber, iron and some other metals. So successful has been the wheat-raising program that, with a little rationing, Italy can get on without importing wheat. Last year Italy was a net exporter of foodstuffs. The coal requirements have been greatly cut down by the electrical power developments, and it is believed that enough coal, cotton, rubber and iron are on hand to sustain a year's war.

THE mechanical industries have been brought to such a point that Italy has no need to buy munitions, automotive vehicles or anything else mechanical. The chemical industry, through the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen and the development of dye-making, can furnish all the required explosives.

None of these home industries will be left short-handed by the men joining the colors, because there is enough unemployment to take up the slack. Indeed, from one angle, this war can be considered as a method of meeting the unemployment problem.

If Italy is forced to go outside, either for raw materials or for finished goods, she will turn to the continent of Europe and not to the United States. Our prices are too high. Petroleum may be had from Rumania, coal and iron from Austria and Germany, and rubber from Holland. If American cotton becomes contraband, Brazilian cotton will not be. In any event, if American cotton is needed, it can be bought through Holland or Germany. A short while ago Hitler and Mussolini were making faces at each other, but the status of Austria provides a method for the two nations very nicely to get together.

The financial problem is somewhat different. Since Italy will need to import very little and the nonwar home industries need not be interfered with, unless a larger army has to be provided than is expected, a part of the cost of important materials can be met by exports abroad. The other part can be met by drawing on foreign balances, and here is where the United States may be placed in a very delicate position.

There is no question about Italy floating a loan here. That is impossible under the Johnson act, for Italy is the third largest of our war debtors and owes us a principal sum exceeding $2,000,000,000 of which more than $500,000,000 was advanced after the armistice. But there is no reason, in the present set-up of Italian finannces, why Italy should try to float a loan here or anywhere else. The Italian policy is not to attempt any external loans. Nevertheless the United States is going to be a very large contributor to the cost of an Italian war.

THE Italian immigrants here are very loyal. They each year send back home a very much larger amount than any other national group. In 1932 they sent home $26,000,000, in 1923 $20,000,000 and in 1934 at least $16,500,000. Undoubtedly they they will subscribe liberally to any war loan that Italy may float at home. They will contribute substantial sums, but the important contribution which we may make will come about through the liquidation here of Italian balances and security holdings.

We do not know how large are the Italian holdings here. They are far from trivial and they are controlled absolutely by Mussolini—many months ago the Italian government took over all the foreign investments of its nationals.

If it be necessary for Italy to buy anything in our markets, ample exchange will be available for payment, and not the slightest reason exists why a dollar's worth of material should be bought directly. Other countries can do the buying, resell to Italy and avoid any neutrality laws or regulations we may draw up.

We should know what funds or holdings Italy has in this country. We would know, had we international balance sheets accurately drawn and currently published. Proper neutrality laws are, of course, important, but of more present moment is the threatened withdrawal by one of our heaviest debtors of funds that might well be credited against the amount owing to us.

The Federal Diary

Registered U. S. Pat. Off.

By Morgan Baker

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Morgan Baker.

CONGRESS is gone, so let's review what Congress did and did not do for the Federal employes in the first leg of the Seventy-fourth session.

BAKER.

Adjournment, in spite of the disappointment to Government workers occasioned by the failure of the leave restoration bills, finds many achievements gained through sponsorship of the American Federation of Government Employes and associate employe organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

First in importance of these gains was the completion of the pay restoration campaign, as a result of which Government employes have, since April 1, been receiving the full amount of their salaries. Previously they were subject to pay cuts, which had reached a peak of 15 per cent.

Another important gain was the protection of the retirement fund through an additional $19,000,000 appropriation, something which had been often recommended in the past but which Congress ignored until this year. At last September's convention of the A. F. G. E., E. Claude Babcock, president, called attention to the insecure status of the fund, and though the effort was made to minimize his statements in this respect, the facts, as revealed by statistics and charts prepared by the federation, convinced Congress that added funds were urgently needed.

Suits Eliminated.

Another retirement gain, important to many, was the legislation permitting Government employes to designate beneficiaries under the retirement fund, so that now, in the case of an employe's death, any money due him is promptly paid to the person he has designated, without the delay and expense of legal proceedings.

An attempt to continue the ban on reallocations in the District government was defeated through A. F. G. E. efforts.

The session just ended witnessed the defeat of the McKellar rider, which broke down civil service standards and threatened the jobs of some 1,400 employes who had obtained their positions through legitimate civil service procedure. The A. F. G. E. and The Washington Post took the lead in this fight, saved the jobs of these men, and finally obtained for them the money due them for many months of work done by them without pay.

Results of the Hatfield amendment, obtained by the A. F. G. E. in the last session of the preceding Congress, appeared during the present session in a reduction of subsistence charges in all veterans' institutions to the extent of $2.50 a month.

Harris & Ewing.

MISS PORTIA WEBSTER, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has just taken up her new duties as assistant to the director of the agriculture experiment station at Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. Miss Webster formerly was with General Crops Section, AAA.

Dangerous Bills Beaten.

Two extremely dangerous measures were defeated—one the Clark-Shannon bill, which would have barred the Government from manufacturing activities, thereby threatening to close Navy yards, arsenals and similar enterprises, and the other the Gore amendment, which appeared twice in the session, and which would have put all key jobs in the civil service under political control. The first was defeated by an amendment which would have imposed on private establishments the same restrictions they sought to place on Government enterprise; the second by showing the disastrous effects on the merit system loss of morale and incentive that would follow limitation of the opportunity to rise in the Government service.

Classification of Group IV-b employes of the Navy Department—the clerical field employes—has been gained finally, though this classification, provided for by the Brookhart act, remained in abeyance for a number of years. The A. F. G. E. carried on a persistent battle to bring about this work, which is just being completed this week.

One gain has been achieved through legislation still in the making—the elimination of the old numerical rating system, as a result of the testimony given at hearings on the Sirovich bill.

The final achievement of the session just ended was the adoption of 40-hour week in the Postal Service, which benefits some 255,000 employes.

Much legislation is already partly through Congress, or has been fashioned for the venture to the floor of House and Senate. The leave bills, of course, are the most important items. These would benefit all employes who did not gain from the 40-hour bill, and would restore 30 days' annual leave, grant 15 days' sick leave and make both cumulative.

The Celler bill to eliminate discriminations in the Government service because of marital status has been favorably reported to the House. Optional retirement legislation has been favorably reported to the Senate and in all probability will pass at the next session. The Walsh bill, to maintain NRA standards in private industry, of interest to Government workers because it will tend to prevent cutthroat competition by private business with Government manufacturing plants, passed the Senate. The Sirovich bill, which has been reintroduced as four bills, dealing with extension of the merit system, field classification, liberalization of retirement laws and establishment of an appeals board, has been favorably reported by a sub-committee of the House Civil Service Committee.

All things considered, the outlook is bright for the next session of Congress, when the leave bills probably will be the first employe items to be considered, and when, it is confidently believed, they will pass.

Miss Sally Miller (P), Bureau of Animal Industry, has been awarded the championship cup of the Women's Tennis League, Agriculture. The award was made by Frank B. Curran, president of the Agriculture Athletic and Recreational Association.

Norman Gray Elected.

Members of the Interior Bowling League are at work on the 1935-36 schedule after election of officers yesterday. Norman A. Gray (P), Indian Office, was named president. Assisting him will be James R. Wannan, Secretary's Office, as vice president, and Henry D. Billings (F), General Land Office, reelected to serve his ninth term as secretary-treasurer.

The outlook is that the league will consist of from 12 to 18 teams this year. Each office interested in enrolling a team for the season is requested by Mr. Gray to send a representative to the next league meeting, which will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chief clerk's office. All team captains also are urged to attend.

Homer E. Pryor, AAA, has been named vice president of the Agriculture Athletic and Recreational Association, succeeding Frank B. Curran, who is the new AAA president.

A FISHING trip with no report of the amount of the catch comes under about Class Z-26 of news value. However, we can salvage a bit of reader interest in the fact that a pleasant boat trip and plenty of food and refreshments were enjoyed recently in Maryland waters by the following Internal Revenue employes:

G. S. Reilley, John A. Osterholt, T. F. Paden, G. L. Brannon (C), C. F. Parker, R. B. Gray, T. D. Davidson, William G. Schutz, S. Feissner, R. J. Flood, W. E. Rabenhorst, C. W. Stewart, Joseph E. Mann, G. M. Van Hoesen (F), L. Odenthal and R. A. McMillan.

Writing to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a 13-year-old boy says he is strongly desirous of becoming a special agent, offering the following reason why he should be appointed: ". . . because I am young it would be possible for me to hear a conversation that would not be spoken around older men." By overhearing conversations he thought that he could "help the United States in its war against crime."

Pennsylvania's 48 Judgeships At Stake in Fall

Five Jurists Will Quit Posts Voluntarily; Appointees Seeking Election.

By the United Press.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Five district judges in Pennsylvania will retire voluntarily in January, turning their positions over to persons elected by the municipal elections November 5.

In addition some of the other judgeships, of which there are 48 at stake this fall, will find new takers because of defeats at the polls of sitting judges, who are candidates for reelection.

Of the three appellate court positions to be filled incumbents are candidates for reelection in two—Superior Court Judge Jesse E. B. Cunningham and Supreme Court Justice H. Edgar Barnes. Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer is prevented by law from being a candidate for reelection to a 21-year term. Gov. Earle named Barnes to succeed the late Judge Alexander P. Simpson.

The five sitting judges, all presidents of their courts, who have decided to retire voluntarily are:

Adams-Fulton District—Judge Donald P. McPherson, 65, who has had 20 years' service on the bench.

Erie County—Judge Uriah P. Rossiter, 74, with 20 years' service.

Indiana County—Judge Jonathan Nicholas Langham, 74, with 20 years' service.

Greene County—Judge Albert H. Sayers, 66, 10 years on the bench.

Wyoming-Sullivan District—Judge Charles E. Terry, 79, who has served 31 years.

One judgeship in Northumberland County is vacant at the present time, no judge having been appointed to succeed the late Judge Joseph S. Hollister, because of a bitter factional fight among Democrats of the county. Consequently, a new judge will take office there in January.

Seven county judges who are serving at the present time by appointments all will be candidates for election to full 10-year terms.

Of the seven, four were named last year by Gov. Gifford Pinchot and three were named since January 15 by Gov. Earle to fill vacancies caused by deaths and resignations.

The Earle appointees are Judge Ernest Harvey, named to the Chester County Common Pleas Court upon resignation of the late Judge J. Franke E. House; Judge Thomas Linus Hoban, Lackawanna County Common Pleas Court, who succeeded the late Judge E. C. Newcomb, and Judge G. Malcolm McDonald, of the Allegheny County Court, who succeeded the late Judge Richard A. Kennedy.

Soviet Ends Grafting By Fake Refugees

Rostov, U. S. S. R. (U.P.).—A new form of graft which flourished on Communist dislike of Fascism has been discovered by the police here.

A group of about 80 persons were collecting money throughout this region by explaining they were "refugees from Fascist terror" in Greece, on the way to settle in the Crimea. Many of them were found to be "refugees" from Soviet jails.

Waynesboro Halts Leaders' Streak, 3-1

Harrisonburg Loses First Game in 11 Starts.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 28.—With Gibson hurling shut-out ball after the first inning, Waynesboro halted the Harrisonburg winning streak here last night, winning by a score of 3 to 1. The defeat was the first in 11 starts for Harrisonburg, but the Valley League standing was not affected, as it was an exhibition contest.

Gibson was invincible after the first inning. He allowed only seven hits in six innings. Bill Schmidt, Harrisonburg hurler, was victim of poor support which accounted for all of the Waynesboro runs. He was touched for nine hits.

Parsons High Football Prospects Are Bright

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Coach Myrl Kepner states there are bright prospects for the Parsons High grid this season as a number of last year's men are on the team. Fred Baker and Douglas Jolly, two of the stars of last year, will be co-captains.

The season will open here Friday, September 13, with the alumni. Other games already on the schedule are September 21, Greenbank, away; September 28, Elkins, away; October 4, Petersburg, here; October 12, Roosevelt-Wilson, Clarksburg, here; October 18, Davis, away; October 25, Thomas, away, and November 1, Belington, here.

Fifty-One Footballers Report at Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Fifty-one boys reported to Coach John Cobourn here yesterday at the first football practice of the year for the Martinsburg High School gridders. Although plentiful in numbers, the squad is woefully lacking in experience, having only four letter men on hand and only about ten others with any experience at all. Coburn is beginning hard practice sessions immediately in order to get ready for the hard ten-game schedule which the Bulldogs must face this fall.

Rapp. Bullock Win.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Haymond Rapp and Wynne Bullock, both of Clarksburg, are Harrison County's new tennis champions, defeating William Weber and William G. Johnson, defending champions, in straight sets by scores of 6—2, 6—3 and 6—2, at the fourteenth annual county tournament.

Parsons Gridders Start.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Football training at the Parsons High School is under way on the Phillips field.

Coach Myrl Kepner says he will have a fine lineup for the season, including several last year's players. The schedule, incomplete, for the season will be as follows:

September 13, Alumni, here; September 21, Greenbank, there; September 28, Elkins, there; October 4, Petersburg, here; October 12, Roosevelt-Wilson of Clarksburg, here; October 18, Davis, there; October 25, Thomas, there, and November 1, Belington, here.

Gridders Start Drills.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Roosevelt-Wilson High School gridders will report Thursday afternoon for their first practice at Norwood Park, it is announced by Alex Venarri, who is starting his second season as Teddy-Wood coach.

"Anna Karenina," Starring Garbo and March, Scored as a First-Rate Attraction

Awards Made in Competition on 'Smilin' Thru'

$5 First Prize and Ticket Winners Announced as Revival Nears.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Gerald G. Gross,

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

Ever since "Flesh and the Devil," and before, we were exceedingly fond of Greta Garbo. The talkies came soon after and there was "Anna Christie," in which the Swedish actress acquitted herself nobly enough in spite of severe competition on the part of Marie Dressler.

Her pictures, most of them, that came with the succeeding years, revealed—it seemed to us—a Garbo who was slipping. Perhaps the fault lay with the adjective-coining press agents of Hollywood whose high-pressure advance build-ups placed too great a burden upon her frail shoulders. Whatever the cause, the effect was there and attested to by dwindling box-office receipts.

Now it gives us unmitigated pleasure to report the advent of a new film starring Miss Garbo because it is one of the best in which she has ever appeared and which has, to boot, every advantage to frame hers and Frederic March's sterling performances—superb direction, pictorial beauty, excellent support, authentic color and background and artistic camera work.

A Harmonious Blend.

"Anna Karenina," the picture in question, comes into the Palace Friday. Today and tomorrow, "China Seas;" Friday, "Anna Karenina." The same transition, from the ridiculous to the sublime, will be observed simultaneously by the Capitol Theater in New York. But what we started out to say is that the latest picturization of Count Leo Tolstoi's famous novel received an advance screening yesterday at the Fox Exchange, these random comments being an outgrowth of same.

It is further curious that, although Miss Garbo's performance in the title role is one of rare artistry in its sincerity and conviction, this observer came away with a mental picture not of her delineation or of any other of the film's component parts, but of an admirable drama splendidly executed in its whole.

We should say "Anna Karenina" is not Miss Garbo's picture or March's or Bartholomew's or Rathbone's or the director's or the costumer's or anyone else who had anything to do with its making. If the current revival "belongs" to anyone, give it to the author, Count Tolstoi, the emotional appeal of whose book has been faithfully preserved. Yes, it is Tolstoi's picture for, notwithstanding the excellent ballet scene and all the rest of the frame, they are only garnishments. The tragic love of Anna Karenina and Vronsky is prime.

"A Laughing Garbo."

Just one more thing (a detailed summary will be presented Saturday morning anyway). Don't take seriously those advance notices about "a happy Garbo, a laughing Garbo." She is happy and she laughs at times, indeed, but that's not reason enough to make questionable implications. Anna Karenina is an ill-fated creature—she knows it, and is sad. There is even a catch to her laugh. That is as it should be.

And we wish we knew why the oracles of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have been trying to convince the public, during the last few years, that Greta Garbo is a giggling vixen or an irresponsible hoyden or something. If she is to remain one of their greater assets, a distinction she has held for ten years, it won't be as "a happy Garbo, a laughing Garbo."

Nelson Bell gave the doctor the slip yesterday long enough to come down and pass judgment upon the many letters sent in by readers who would like to see "Smilin' Through" revived. The Shearer-Howard-March starring attraction will be shown at the Columbia during the week beginning Friday, as announced several days ago.

Mrs. H. S. Boteler, jr., 6805 Forty-sixth street northwest was adjudged the winner of the competition, whose purpose was to sound out public sentiment on the advisability of bringing back "Smilin' Through" for another showing some three years after its debut. She will receive the $5 award offered by Carter Barron, Loew's divisional manager, and the following contestants gained a pair of tickets each: Eleanor Layton, 3912 Twenty-second street northeast; Loretta Scott, 518 District Bank Building; Anne Keele, 2111 Fourth street northeast; Frank Ford Burnett, 1449 Fairmont street northwest; Tacie Bolen, Markham, Va., and Edith Mabel Monro Hunter, 5504 Fourteenth street northwest.

The letter which won first prize follows:

Dear Mr. Bell:

I seldom care to see a picture twice. In fact, the pictures that I would be willing to sit through a second time could be counted on the fingers of one hand and I'd probably have fingers left over. However, after thinking it over, I know that I would definitely enjoy "Smilin' Thru" a second time.

My first reason for this decision is Norma Shearer. Miss Shearer is such a lovely creature that I could find a great deal of satisfaction in watching her merely move aimlessly about the screen. One need never worry about aimless moves from Norma Shearer, though, for she is a talented and capable actress, highly deserving of the fame she has won.

In the second place there is the play itself. "Smilin' Thru" is a classic that can not be dated by the year of its production. My favorite of all Miss Shearer's pictures, it seems to me to be the perfect setting for both her charm and her talent. On the other hand, it is a beautiful story that does not need to be made by its performers.

Nor should I fail to mention Fredric March and Leslie Howard. Their box-office appeal proves how we, the movie-goers, like them. In "Smilin' Thru" they lend able support to Miss Shearer to round out the perfect cast in the perfect story. And the story itself was filmed with marvelous artistic skill.

I believe that bringing "Smilin' Thru" back would be like opening a treasure box to find the treasure mellowed, rather than tarnished, by time.

Returning in "The Rainmakers"

Dorothy Lee has played in 15 of the 17 Wheeler and Woolsey comedies, missing the last two because of stage engagements. A deluge of fan mail on this side was responsible for her getting released from a British film contract and soon she'll be along in Bert's and Bob's latest, "The Rainmakers."

Twenty-four comely young women appeared at Chevy Chase Lake last night as contestants for the role of "Miss Washington of 1935" and when the judges had finished judging 13 were left. They are Betty Gray, Helen Clum, Virginia America Shields, La Nelle Avery, Della Mae Kieffer, Jeanne Christian, Rita Guthrie, Rose Ellen Jarvis, Shirley Schwart, Felicia Kiele, Ethel Zepp, Ruth Barbour and Pebble Melton. A large crowd was present to view the girls, clad first in evening gowns and then in bathing suits, several of whom did song-and-dance specialties. Finals are Friday night and may the best gal win.

Over the Wires.

Last-minute news from Hollywood, via Associated Press:

Mae West yesterday picked the cinema capital's 12 most eligible bachelors, hauling in Baby LeRoy to bring her list up to an even dozen. She singled out Cesare Romero, Lyle Talbot, Ivan Lebedeff, Jack Oakie, Randolph Scott, Nelson Eddy, James Dunn, Gene Raymond, Henry Wilcoxon, Whitney de Rham (anybody know him), Lee Tracy and "the most eligible bachelor for the next 20 years," Baby LeRoy.

Romero is usually seen in gigolo clothes, Lebedeff in a Russian uniform, Wilcoxon (head man of "The Crusades") in armor, and Baby Leroy——.

Filming of "Ramona," based on the novel by Helen Hunt Jackson, was postponed yesterday on account of the illness of Loretta Young, the star. She may take a complete rest for two months, according to Dr. Walter Holleran and the A. P.

And via United Press: Dashiell Hammett, author of "The Thin Man," is growing a Van Dyke . . . Ricardo Cortez may soon be a Warner Bros. director . . . "Mutiny on the Bounty," billed for the Palace, cost about $2,000,000 and is said to be the most expensive picture since "Hell's Angels."

Here and There.

Ted Weems and his orchestra have been booked at the Earle for the week beginning Sept. 6, John J. Payette, general zone manager announced yesterday. It will be the popular leader's first appearance on a local stage in several years. In support he will have his brother, Art, ace trumpeter; "Red" Ingle, baritone; Elmo Tanner, called the whistling troubadour, and the Selbys, dancers.

Loew's, for its part, submits that Phil Lampkin is arranging an engaging overture entitled "Songs of Scotland," for the week commencing Friday. Among other features will be a cello solo by Jules Sims of "Annie Laurie."

"Imitation of Life," which was at RKO-Keith's several months ago, plays a return engagement at the Colony today and tomorrow. Starred is Claudette Colbert and the featured players are Louise Beavers, Warren William and Rochelle Hudson.

Next Monday night will be the wind-up at Glen Echo Park.

Fred Astaire, who, with Ginger Rogers, is on the verge of invading Hardie Meakin's Keith's under a "Top Hat," will hand out the trophies at the "Harvest Moon Ball" when the final judging takes place in Madison Square Garden tonight. Eighty-two couples, all that remain of the several thousand who entered the amateur ballroom dance contest, will swing it out for a sterling silver bowl.

Sylvan Theater

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

"ANDROCLES AND THE LION." The Community Center Department and Office of National Capital Parks, as the seventeenth summer festival program, presents the Washington Community Players in the play in a prologue and two acts by George Bernard Shaw, under the direction of Robert Halsted, with settings by Howard Whitfield and costumes by Marjorie Beall. Reviewed Tuesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE CAST:

A Lion	Ted Freter
Androcles	Paul Murphy
Megaera	Dorothy Riess
The Captain	Herman P. Riess
Lavinia	Adele Whiteside
Spintho	Robert Walton
Ferrovius	John Sikken
Caesar	Howard Whitefield

Christians, soldiers, gladiators, guards, attendants, and slaves.

The sparkling wit and keen satire of George Bernard Shaw made their debut in the National Sylvan Theater last evening when the Washington Community Players staged "Androcles and the Lion" before an audience of some 8,000. Preceeding the drama the Washington Gas Light Co. Band, with Otto Siebenechen conducting, played a diversified program of eight numbers.

Although the players read the witty, satirical lines with something less than flawless precision, they succeeded in putting over more of the narrative aspects of the drama than they did in adequately reflecting the spirit and intent of the Shavian commentary on early Christian martyrdom.

Among the well-chosen principals two people stand out in bold relief—Paul Murphy, as the animal-loving Greek tailor, and Adele Whiteside, as Lavinia, the Christian prisoner of appealing beauty and charm. Befriending a lion (appropriately roared by Ted Freter), and subsequently befriended by this same "Tommy," Mr. Murphy had indeed a choice part out of which he drew the very last dramatic—and comedy—possibility. No less resourceful was Miss Whiteside in a part where her stately, yet ingratiating personality was utilized to the utmost not only upon her captors but upon her fellow captives as well.

John Sikken, as the brute-powerful Ferrovius; Robert Walton, as the cringing doubting Thomas; Herman P. Riess, as the stalwart Roman captain, and Dorothy Riess as Androcles' shrewish wife, all turned in good performances. As Caesar, Howard Whitfield made the part appear much too sybaritic for a dyed-in-the-wool Christian-baiter.

Throughout the running of this short, but pointful, piece, the players, as a group, were not mindful of the entire possibilities of the Shavian satire, only at times rising above the level of an anachronistic and quite innocuous comedy-drama. If this latter is what Director Robert Halsted had in mind, he was quite successful; but, truly, it can not be called Shaw.

Among the others appearing were Adrienne Courtney, Maryllyn Blanker, Jean Duke, Mary Hope, Agnes Kessler, Margaret McDowell, Alice Neill, Ruth O'Neill, Shirley Rowe, Margaret Catherine Seay, Janet Segal, Crystal Tardy, Edward Eberly, Terry McPhearson, Rhodes Scherer, Alex Serrano, Rowe Morrell, Oscar McDaniel, W. J. McLean, William Gochenour, Thomas Owen, Phillip Bonosky, Regis Cardiff, Ernest Cooper, Balfour Goldman, Robert Reynolds, J. M. Stone, Jack deGraaf, Roscoe Wolfe, Thomas Adrianson, John Carroll, Bill Farrell, Anthony Greago, William Hill, Frank Mooty, Bill Motley, Don Ayres, Frank Elmore, George Savary, Hugh C. Smith, Robert Halsted, jr., Kenneth Peterson, Richard Welles.

So enthusiastic was the reception of "Androcles and the Lion," the play will be repeated tomorrow evening.

Mickey Mouse Favorite Film Hero of Terrier

Cincinnati (U.P.)—A movie-going Boston terrier is owned by Mrs. F. J. Brinkman, Cincinnati, and the dog's screen favorite strange as it may seem, is Mickey Mouse.

Mrs. Brinkman started to take the Boston, Mitzi, to the movies three years ago.

Mitzi pays little attention to what's going on except when Mickey Mouse is showing. Then she sits up, with her ears back and black nose twitching. When Mickey fades out, so does Mitzi and goes to sleep.

Mitzi differs in quite a few respects from other dogs. She is fond of toys. As a midnight lunch she must have beer, potato chips and pretzels before she will go to sleep.

When's Rubbish Rubbis Ohio Court Must Decide

Bucyrus, Ohio (U.P.)—When is rubbish rubbish is the controversial question before the courts here.

For ten years there has been a pile of bricks and stones half a block off the main street in downtown Bucyrus. It belongs to Attorney Alfred S. Leuthold. The city council ordered him to move it or show cause why. Leuthold promised he would, and then changed his mind.

When the city fathers learned, they ordered city trucks to remove the pile. Leuthold stopped that with a temporary injunction, and now the court must decide when rubbish is rubbish.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, Aug. 28.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN: He is really happy when working, but delays production because he is uncertain. Being aware of his reputation . . . he likes things his way and generally gets them that way. Witness the transformation of Paulette Goddard . . . He never deserts. People may wrong and desert him. Al Reeves has been his general manager ever since he started in pictures; Henry Bergerman gets a role in all his flickers; Edna Purviance is still on his pay roll . . . Charlie Chaplin likes to keep his favorites. Perhaps that is why the public has kept him as its favorite.

* * * *

Josef Von Sternberg—He believes he is misunderstood and pretends not to care. He is often misunderstood and does care . . . He is really a fine director. A hit flicker now and Hollywood will forget his flops. In the cinema town you're as good as your current advertisement . . . He says: "I don't care what newspaper men write about me. If I'm good copy they should really like me for making their material interesting." He lives in a modernistic steel and glass house. People who live in glass houses . . .

* * * *

MAE WEST: She doesn't pretend. She talks the same language to all men, whether they are Congressmen or prize fighters. She generally talks on the level, too. She has never been known to blush, but she has been shocked . . . Since she became a public figure, she can't get out much in public . . . She knows what's going on, always.

Sam Goldwyn—He wants to do the finer things on the screen and only will produce flickers which have class . . . Regardless of the gags about him, he spends money and makes an earnest effort to do the better pictures. For that he should be given credit, and some cash . . . For the amount of gags blasted about him, he blasts less than most producers . . . He is now taking English lessons. What will we do for punch lines?

* * * *

MERLE OBERON: She has a great shrewdness for pretending to be bewildered . . . She is naive, but with all the answers . . . She is sincerely polite and endeavors to please . . . It is no trick for a good-looking actress to have stagehands rooting for her. When a good-looking actress can make the wardrobe gals root, then it's a trick. This is merely one of Oberon's tricks . . . She has the knack of making all men believe she really cares . . . Irving Thalberg, jr., adores her . . . so does David Niven.

* * * *

Jean Harlow—She must be tired of telling people she is a natural platinum blonde. Every one asks her but her hairdresser . . . She doesn't try to put on any ritz. In fact, she puts on more clothes than she does ritz . . . She always looks as if she is ready to go dancing . . . At a party, she'll park on the floor . . . The censorship of flickers might have ruined her career. She took her spanking without a squawk and scored big in "China Seas." . . . She's a regular guy, for regular guys.

* * * *

GEORGE RAFT: He doesn't believe he is a great actor, which is a distinction in Hollywood. He knows his limitations, and this extends his ability . . . He is eager to take direction if he believes in the director. Otherwise, he does as he likes on the set . . . He has changed his car. He has changed his residence. But he still has the same stooges he started with . . . He's a fellow who actually flipped a coin into a career.

* * * *

Carole Lombard—She is a former Mack Sennett bathing beauty, who goes swimming. She likes to be different. She is different . . . She prefers parties. Let any one merely suggest a party and she'll throw it . . . She eats little, but she's always giving a dinner . . . No matter how many people are in a room, if she's in the room you'll know it . . . Her idea of swank is what she sees in motion pictures, sometimes her own flickers.

* * * *

JAMES CAGNEY: He devotes more attention to his pictures than his producers do to them. Regardless of the quality of the flicker, he goes into training for it . . . For "The Irish in Us" he did boxing. For "A Midsummer Night's Dream" he read dramatic criticisms of the noted actors who have portrayed Bottom . . . He is one actor who didn't go to Hollywood. Going to Hollywood is supposed to be the worst thing you can say of any actor in Hollywood.

Illinois Plans Radio Police.

Springfield, Ill. (U.P.)—Establishment of a Statewide police short wave radio system to be used by Illinois highway police in combatting criminals is expected to be undertaken shortly by the State department of public works and buildings.

Field of Gypsophila Rivals Snowy Wastes

Turlock, Calif., (U.P.)—If a motion picture company needs a snow background in a hurry, it will do well to get in touch with George H. Starr here.

Starr grows baby's breath, known to botanists as gypsophila, on a commercial scale. Seen from a slight distance, the 15-acre field looks like a great patch of snow.

Twelve men and eight women were engaged in harvesting and drying the crop this summer. The flower is shipped to all parts of the United States. It is used extensively in the manufacture of the so-called "everlasting flower" bouquets.

Old Typewriter Rivals Complete Printing Shop

Conneaut, Ohio (U.P.)—J. C. Wenger has a typewriter that does about everything but speak.

It is designed to use English, German, Greek and other national scripts. Besides, it has ten different kinds of English type, including Gothic, pica, large and small script, bold face types and italics. Wenger, a former warden of the Michigan State Prison, said he bought the machine 26 years ago.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

An Open Letter to:
Mrs. Will Rogers.

New York, Aug. 28.

Dear Mrs. Rogers: The shouting and the tumult have died away and now you are quite alone with your sorrow. This is the zero hour for grief, for when the crowds withdraw and the last ceremonies have been completed, then the terrible isolation sets in. It will be a long time before you'll stop listening for Will's ring at the doorbell, his step in the hallway. Those of us who have had death in the family know what you are passing through now, and you have our complete sympathy. But keep your chin up. That would have been his tender advice, yet quite futile, for death always deals the cruelest blow to those who are left to live. Sincerely,

ED SULLIVAN.

Mickey Cochrane.

Dear Mike: Without being a traitor to my own New York, let me congratulate you on the job you've done and are doing at Detroit. When the season opened and your Tigers were bouncing around in the high brackets of the league, it was felt that your club had been a 1934 flash in the pan. But when you started snapping the whip, those Tigers really showed their claws. I'm tickled to death, frankly. You are a swell kid, always were in fact, and wherever you go, win or lose, I'll be rooting because the world has too few nice guys like yourself. As ever, ED.

• • • •

Tommy Manville.

Dear Tom: Now that you and Marcelle are back together again, please stay put. Send away those bodyguards and instead, get a bodyguard for Cupid, because he needs protection on Broadway. I know that your family made a fortune in asbestos, Tommy, but don't wrap love in asbestos—let it burn free and clear, for love should give off warmth and heat. Otherwise, you'll be carrying a "torch" and even your asbestos holdings won't be able to take the heat out of it.

Always the best, ED.

Eleanor Powell.

Dear Eleanor: When you get to town in Jack Benny's "Broadway Melody" you will be the talk of Broadway, for you've traveled a long way since those early days when you were dancing in my Dawn Patrol revue. As a "ham," I'll undoubtedly come out in the paper and point out that four years ago, I hailed you as the No. 1 tap dancer of the country, a rating that was ridiculed at the time. But I'll let you in on a little secret—the fellow who told me about you, four or five years ago, was Bill Grady, now with Bob Rubin and Al Altman at M.-G.-M. The reason I heeded his advice was that he managed Al Jolson, whose wife, Ruby Keeler, was quite some shakes herself as a tap dancer. So when they start throwing bouquets, if you don't mind, I'll grab them on the fly and pass 'em along to the Irishman who really rates them, the O'Grady.

As ever, ED.

P. S.: It was Bill Grady who brought Madame Jeritza and Winnie Sheehan together, incidentally. He certainly gets around.

James Cagney.

Dear Jimmy: I have a bone to pick with you, Toots. Not that "The Irish in Us" isn't a good picture, y'understand. It is so amusing that most of the time the laughs in the audience spread out and cover the dialogue. The casting is excellent—Mary Gordon, Pat O'Brien, Frank McHugh and Allen Jenkins are excellent, and the same high rating goes to everybody else in the flicker. But, Jimmy, why did you ever let them put on one of those typical Hollywood prize fights? After all, you know what it is all about. Jimmy, Jimmy!—can you picture the manager no less, of an unknown fighter stepping into the ring with Mickey Walker or Harry Greb or Tiger Flowers or Jack Britton when one of these held the middleweight title and knocking any one of them out? But I'll say this for the picture—it is so hilarious that even the phony prize fight can't destroy its entertainment value. The next time, however, let the champion knock you out, James. It will hurt you more than it hurts me, but you must make some sacrifices for your art. Hastily, DOG DAYS DEFIED! CLEAR HEADS COOL OFF WITH CALVERT!

Professional Opinion says:

"Moderate doses (of Calvert) . . . tend to increase the loss of heat from the body's surface."

Tropical Statistics show:

Whiskey is a 3-to-1 favorite over all other distilled spirits in countries below the Equator!

WHISKEY heating? Superstition, says Science! Amazing research proves CALVERT actually cools you off . . . rolls heat from inside the body to the surface . . . where it radiates, dissipates, vanishes . . . leaves you cool and refreshed!

Tropical countries have long known this. Statistics compiled from consular records show whiskey a 23-to-1 favorite in Colombia . . . a 7-to-1 favorite in Ecuador . . . a 30-to-1 favorite in Chile!

Clear heads call for CALVERT because CALVERT is smoother, mellower . . . the best of the better blended whiskies. Because, enjoyed in gentlemanly moderation, CALVERT leaves you cool tonight, collected tomorrow! Greet the morning with a smile! Use good judgment . . . buy better whiskey . . . call for CALVERT!

LORD CALVERT Straight Rye or Bourbon whiskey. Five years old. 100 proof. Bottled-in-bond under Canadian Government supervision.

Three-Sided Co-operation.

State-operated unemployment insurance, presupposes a partnership among employers, employes and the community as a whole. The operation of such a system is most likely to be successful when each of these groups is well represented, and when each feels intimate responsibility for the policies adopted. Selection of the District Unemployment Insurance Board must be regarded, therefore, as a step of signal importance to Washington.

The Commissioners, who will represent the District on the board, have done well to select the president of the Central Labor Union as the workers' representative. Having won his way to leadership of organized labor in Washington, John Locher is fully entitled to this new responsibility. Moreover, his authority and prestige will eliminate all question as to whether local labor is properly represented on the board.

It is to be hoped that the employers' representative will be equally well chosen. Oviously he should also be a Washingtonian tonian with broad experience in the employment of labor, one who can ably represent the viewpoint of management in the decision of problems before the board. With such a nomination the local directing body will undoubtedly prove far more satisfactory than a national board acting in the role of dictator for the District.

The choice of Mr. Locher is a guarantee that organized labor will have a strong voice in the formulation of policies governing the District unemployment insurance plan. That is entirely proper. But it also emphasizes the desirability of assigning to employes some part of the burden of financing this system.

Under the existing arrangement Mr. Locher will be the only representative on the board of a non-contributing group. When he has had an opportunity to study the actual working of the new system he, as well as the other members, will surely come to realize the desirability of making employes real partners in the undertaking, not merely beneficiaries.

Choosing The Executioners.

Reports that Chairman Kennedy of the Securities and Exchange Commission is asking to be released from his important post suggests that the personnel of the SEC may be substantially changed before it is required to carry out the edicts of the utility holding company act. The President recently named J. D. Ross, of Seattle, to a vacancy on the commission. If Chairman Kennedy resigns it is rumored that his place will be given to Benjamin Cohen, of the Public Works Administration, reputed to be one of the authors and certainly one of the foremost advocates of the "death sentence" for holding companies which Congress recently accepted in somewhat altered form.

A virtually impossible task has been assigned to the SEC. It has been instructed to limit the operations of every utility holding company to "a single integrated public utility system, and to such other businesses as are reasonably incidental, or economically necessary or appropriate to the operation of such integrated public utility system." Congress itself was unable to agree upon any more definite formula for the disposition of holding companies. If the dilemma which it has shunted to the Securities and Exchange Commission can be solved at all, a high degree of skill, objectivity and impartial judgment obviously will be required.

Since the administration of this amorphous act will depend almost entirely upon the personnel of the SEC, appointments to that body now assume unusual importance. By stacking the commission with bitter foes of the utilities the President could make certain that the arbitrary death sentence which he sought to drive through Congress would be carried out by administrative requirements. There is more than a suggestion in current developments that this is his aim.

Chairman Kennedy vigorously protested against the confused yet onerous responsibilities that the House bill would have imposed upon the SEC. Doubtless he is still more perturbed over the uncertain duties assigned to his commission by the White House "compromise" which Congress enacted. But while this situation makes his resignation more probable, it also makes his continued service the more desirable. From the viewpoint of national welfare, not to mention that of investors, administration of this law by a group of utility baiters might be a worse calamity than an outright death sentence.

Mr. Ross is a man of long experience in the operation of Seattle's hydroelectric system. But he is also hailed by partisans as a foe of private utilities. If a reasonable balance on this important commission is to be preserved, the next appointee should be a man of independent judgment and judicial temperament.

Mr. Cohen's active lobbying on Capitol Hill should automatically eliminate him from consideration. Aside from this questionable conduct, however, he is known to be openly hostile to the enterprises over which the SEC has been given jurisdiction. His appointment to that agency would amount to public notice that the President intends to apply a rigorous death sentence through administrative regulations. One can think of no single step that would more certainly revive the death sentence fight at the next session of Congress.

Russia Feels Her Oats.

A very pretty diplomatic problem has been dumped on the Department of State by Russia's tart reply to our "most emphatic protest" against "flagrant violation of the pledge" given by Moscow with respect to non-interference in the internal affairs of the United States.

Asserting that Russia "has always regarded and still regards with the greatest respect all the obligations it has taken upon itself," the Soviet government now maintains that it "cannot take upon itself and has never taken upon itself obligations of any kind with regard to the Communist International."

At first glance there would seem to be only one reply to this blunt statement. The Comintern exists to promote social revolution in this and other nations. The prerequisite for recognition of the Soviet was its pledge not to permit "any organization or group" on Russian territory which has social revolution in this country "as an aim." Since Moscow now in effect repudiates that pledge the obvious move would seem to be abrogation of diplomatic relations.

Yet from every viewpoint such a drastic step would be deplorable. It would certainly stimulate, rather than diminish, such Communist propaganda directed against American institutions as is "made in Russia." It would spell irretrievable defeat for the hopes, not rosy at best, of developing a mutually profitable interchange of Russian and American goods. Worst of all, it would intensify, at the worst possible moment, an international instability which may easily drag this country into the vortex, no matter how many mandatory neutrality resolutions are on the statute books. In three great capitals—Rome, Berlin and Tokyo—the recall of Ambassador Bullitt from Moscow would now be received with rejoicings. That in itself is ample reason for going slowly.

All these, and other, considerations are obviously realized by the President and Secretary Hull. It should be reiterated that if the Administration had been less precipitate in publicly condemning a consistently two-faced Russian attitude, which fools nobody, its present position would be far less embarrassing. But that mistake has been made. The problem now is how to preserve cordial relations without in any way admitting the contention that the activities of the Third International are no concern of the Russian government.

There are many ways in which an entirely proper, yet quite perceptible, pressure can be exercised on Moscow by Washington. The very large number of Russians who have been visiting this country since restoration of diplomatic relations can be curtailed by a less lavish extension of the visa privilege. Russian official representation, diplomatic and consular, can be confined to Washington, as ours in Russia is already confined to Moscow. No blunderbuss tactics are needed to convey to Russia's very intelligent leadership the fact that its reply to our protest is far from satisfactory.

And of course it must not be overlooked that the most striking aspect of the Russian note is found not in its text but in its implications. With the development of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute the Comintern is going to become aggressive again. The Soviet now feels strong enough openly to encourage the revolutionary forces which war would everywhere immediately assist. Only subtlety can meet these far-reaching tactics successfully. With Congress adjourned the Department of State has a chance to be subtle, under which category any abrupt rupture of diplomatic relations between Washington and Moscow certainly would not fall.

Commodity Loans.

Defeat of the scheme to provide loans of 12 cents a pound on cotton and 90 cents per bushel on wheat is probably due to the fact that it was not allowed to come to a vote in the House. If Congressmen had been given opportunity thus to manifest ostensible devotion to the farmer they might well have voted in the affirmative, even adding several other commodities to the favored list. It is fortunate for the AAA that it did not raise the issue earlier in the session.

Because the Government lent farmers 12 cents per pound on their cotton last year politicians have come to regard such loans as a vested right of their constituents. Even after the AAA had modified its new policy, increasing the loan value of cotton from 9 to 10 cents and guaranteeing a 12 cent return to the farmer, Senator George vehemently protested: "You'll bankrupt the miller. You'll bankrupt the wholesaler and retailer who have stocked up on cotton goods manufactured with a 12-cent price. You are crucifying the farmer."

The Senator would do better to look beyond the immediate advantages of high cotton prices to the rapid loss of our export market for that commodity. He seems to be willing to risk a collapse of the South's greatest industry for temporary gains. That is almost invariably the political attitude. The Administration has found it expedient to compromise with this viewpoint, even though its own scheme was originally calculated to appease farmers at the expense of taxpayers. In large measure, therefore, the price range of cotton has been determined, not by economic planning, but by political pulling and hauling.

When the Senate agreed to apply this policy to wheat the AAA was frantic. For that would have destroyed the acreage curtailment program. Farmers would have no incentive to restrict acreage with the price pegged at 90 cents. The AAA either did not foresee that threat when it took over in modified form the disastrous commodity loan policy of Mr. Hoover's farm board, or else did not regard it seriously. It went ahead on the blithe assumption that it could retreat when adverse signals appeared. Now there is grave danger that where the AAA has again opened the way politicians will rush through, carrying to the farm disaster heavily camouflaged in bounties, subsidies and benefits.

Of course, the AAA is opposed to this trend. But it is by no means certain that it will be able to stem the tide to which its own philosophy has given impetus.

Senate Filibusters.

One of the arguments advanced in favor of the twentieth amendment was that by eliminating the short sessions of Congress, which by necessity came to an end on March 4, the amendment would go far toward ridding the Senate of filibusters. The first congressional session under the amendment has scarcely borne out this contention.

In addition to the filibuster which resulted in killing the third deficiency bill, the session was marked throughout by obstructionist tactics. Senator Long had previously conducted two major filibusters—one against extension of the NRA and one against the work-relief bill. Southern Senators filibustered six days to defeat a lynching bill. Adjournment was postponed by a talking bout designed to force action on neutrality legislation, and several less spectacular filibusters were staged in connection with the ship subsidy bill, the food and drug bill, TVA amendments, and flood-control legislation.

Obstructionist tactics on the floor are characteristic of the Senate rather than the House, due to wide differences in procedure. While the lower chamber rigidly restricts debate, the Senate places almost no limitation upon the time occupied by its members in discussion on the floor. The increasing size of the House made stricter regulation mandatory, and in 1841 a rule was adopted, with certain exceptions, limiting members to one hour in debate.

Anotner rule was passed in 1880 to confine debate on the floor to the subject under consideration, although this regulation is waived during a period of "general debate," when the House sits as Committee of the Whole. Following "general debate" members are limited in their remarks under the "five-minute rule." As a final weapon to combat prolonged discussion a majority may adopt "the motion for the previous question," which automatically shuts off all further speeches and brings the issue to a vote.

While the Senate has a cloture rule to end debate, it can be put into operation only with the concurrence of a two-thirds majority. Even after cloture is brought into force, moreover, each Senator is allowed to speak for one hour. Only 11 times since its adoption in 1917 has the cloture rule been invoked, and it has been applied only on four occasions.

The weakness of the Senate cloture rule and the traditional advocacy of unlimited debate in that chamber have resulted in situations probably unparalleled in any other legislative body. The Senate is continuously made ridiculous in the public eye simply because it refuses to adapt its rules to orderly legislative procedure. There are many ways in which obstructionists may be prevented from defeating the will of the Senate, majority cloture being the most persistently urged. Since the twentieth amendment has not eliminated filibustering, Majority Leader Robinson is well advised to make the modernization of the Senate's rules an initial duty at the next session.

American Artist.

The death of Childe Hassam is not only a loss to those who knew and loved him, but also to the field of American art and particularly to devotees of the school loosely known as Impressionism. Hassam often scoffed at pigeonholing art into trends, but generally he was regarded as belonging to the same group as John Twachtman, Mary Cassatt and J. Alden Weir. He specialized, as they did, in employing the use of pure colors and white to suggest the brilliant glare of outdoor light. And since this light was constantly changing, it naturally developed that these pictures reduce painting to a permanent record of fleeting effects.

Childe Hassam's romantic name often led to the belief that he was of Oriental strain. This undoubtedly would have amused his New England forebears, who were known as Horsham. It was perhaps only natural that Hassam should, after a few years of study abroad, turn again to the American scene in which he and his family were so deeply rooted. And to these he gave the particular sparkle and brilliance that marked him as a follower of Manet, who once said that "the principal person in the picture is the light." Hassam and his paintings were essentially of America. But his recognition abroad marked him also as one of that minority whose life, and death is of much more than parochial moment.

The Congressional Record.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I was intrigued by the editorial in The Post of August 26 called, "Front Page Box." I judge your editorial writer was poking fun at the Record. I have been a reader of the Record for several years and I am sadly afraid the publication is not regarded with the high esteem which it deserves. For do not the doings chronicled in it every working day of Congress furnish the lead lines and scareheads the daily papers love?

The reporters assigned to cover Congress write only the story as it coincides with their own views or their paper's policy. The reading public is not aware of the fact that it gets only a very small part of what really transpires.

Much has been said and written concerning the cost of the Congressional Record to the taxpayers. The taxpayers would be more than recompensed the cost of production if every school could be furnished a copy. It is manifestly impossible for every family to subscribe for it.

There are many scholarly men in Congress and when I say scholarly, I mean members who have made a study of their particular part of the country. Representative Maverick recently contributed a speech containing a concise and complete history of Texas. Senator Long, the joy of the scribes, digs out of ancient and modern history surprising facts, and who shall say Senator Glass' diatribe on queen bee control was not deserving of a "box."

Of course, it is contended that is not the purpose for which the Record was established, but as I see it, it is a valuable contribution in this overwhelming waste of white paper deluging the land, rendered useless by the silly and often harmful stuff put upon it.

I hope you will urge upon our citizenry the value of the Record in more ways than one.

Hospitals In Alaska.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

With the sad picture we have been looking upon from Alaska for some days, a very beautiful one comes before us also. That is the Eskimo who ran 15 miles to give help and, if possible, to save life. No doubt his spiritual eyes were opened and heart touched while in some Christian school or hospital to make him feel that he wanted to help others.

May many of us who have never been interested in the work in Alaska now feel that we want to help by some small contribution to a mission field! This should be done in order that the schools and hospitals for the Eskimos, as well as for strangers to Alaska, who are ill or meet with accident, may be kept up.

The Shark Is A Coward.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Let me try to clear up a few points on sharks, the result of something over 30 years of more or less fugitive wanderings through the waters of the tropical and subtropical Atlantic.

There are millions of horses, and occasionally a bad horse which may kick, bite and otherwise assail anything which comes in range of hoofs and teeth. There are good dogs and vicious dogs, and there are sharks that as a general rule act the part of scavengers and will not attack either man or any other active living thing in the water.

Off the south coast of Cuba some 80 miles south of Batabano lies Calapatch Island, where I have spent many months in years gone by. We catch sharks immediately off a great rock projecting into the sea. A heavy swiveled hook is thrown out baited with a large fish head or perhaps a piece of beef. The bait and line lie along the bottom. A shark will come along and, using great caution, will have a look at the bait, go away and come back eight or ten times before he will take the hook. Sometimes he will not take it at all. When he does take it, it sometimes takes the combined haul of eight or ten men to drag him ashore on the adjacent sandy beach. But the shark is timid.

Fishermen from Batabano, generally Spaniards—Viscainos, Catalans, Balearic Islanders—will pull 600-foot seines on my shores loaded with tons of fish. Not infrequently a shark will be inside the net. To keep it from thrashing through the net, one of the fishermen will without hesitation plunge into the water with a machete and kill the shark; but if a big barracouta becomes enmeshed, no fisherman will attempt to kill him from the water, but will try to get him from a boat. The barracouta is the most savage fish in the seas and is treated with due respect. The shark is a scavenger and a coward. We swim at all seasons in the waters around Calapatch without fear of sharks.

The huge school of sharks that follow the garbage scows out of Havana every morning to feed on the refuse are dangerous. If a man falls overboard from one of those scows, he can say his prayers and be quick about it. The same is true of sharks which follow the ocean liners to feed on the refuse thrown overboard. Occasionally one of them trying to follow steamships into New York harbor turns away because he doesn't like the flavor of the water coming out of the harbor and will wander up one of the New Jersey streams or perhaps other streams farther south. He, too, is apt to be dangerous. Nearly all the authenticated cases of sharks attacking human beings have some close relationship to harbor mouths or transient vessels. But there is the story.

New Memorial Here?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Into the Valhalla of the great have gone two of America's most beloved citizens, men of whom all the world could say, "Here were two of nature's noblemen." When Will Rogers and Wiley Post were lost to this country, all people were immeasurably shocked; the country's greatest humorist in Will Rogers, the world's greatest aviator in Wiley Post.

I think they should both have a memorial here in the Capital.

Planning Peonage For The Farmer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Re your editorial, "Politics vs. Planning," which ran in The Post on August 26, it is pertinent to ask, though the meaning is largely set forth in the editorial, just who do you insinuate is playing politics and who is doing the planning?

The conflict between the planners and those who have relied upon constitutional government, and therefore politics, dates back to the first evil thought of attempting to get something created by someone else. We had it in the mind of Hamilton; then the conflict between Webster and Clay vs. Calhoun, which nearly resulted in war, prevented by the fact that tariffs were reduced by Jackson; the War of the States, which was inclusive of the same thought though embracing minorities which were religious fanatics and impracticables, and since 1920 the "planners" have had full sway.

They planned the high tariffs, the high rail rates, the Federal Reserve deflation of farm values by $40,000,000,000, and the adherence to the gold standard which caused the destruction of farm purchasing power over an eight-year period which is responsible for our present condition.

The Supreme Court, with five members out of an urban section, can write the "rule of reason" into the antimonopoly act in control over utilities by requiring a certain return, in the application of the police power of the States; but it cannot or will not write the "rule of reason" into the Smoot-Hawley tariff monstrosity, in destructive rail rates, in a combinaton of transportation facilities under the control of minds which see a fetish in planning "for a purpose"—the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Apparently politics has failed to cure the results of "planning." Neither representative government nor the ballot will be more effective than has constitutional government, of which there has been none for agriculture since 1860. What next?

Cotton always has been a poverty crop, except for the railroads, business houses and banks which it builds. It requires a high degree of intelligence to tend well and harvest good cotton and the South raises practically all the good cotton in the world, except as to long staple, impossible in the South because of the boll weevil. But no man can make a profit out of cotton over a ten-year period. Only those who handle the baled cotton, the middle men, make money out of cotton. "Him who raises it am soon forgotten" even by a Democratic Administration. Josephus Daniels has said that if poverty and cotton continue to go hand in hand for farmers, farmers have no incentive to raise cotton.

Mr. Roosevelt has not lowered tariffs, has not reduced rail rates, but has prevented the use of competing agencies by putting trucks under the control of the I. C. C., along with coastal shipping and even foreign shipping. In brief, he has done nothing to bring about a changed condition except to inadvertently go off the gold standard, and if you do not believe that was inadvertent, ask Carter Glass. The North-East plan has worked continuously since 1860; and still enjoys that license. Mr. Roosevelt has applied a few poultices, but poultices never cured a disease.

As William L. Yancey foresaw, Mr. Roosevelt is still looking for support of the majority in the North-East; and equality of treatment for agriculture is lacking. We are to have no planning for agriculture except that which looks to peonage conditions on American farms.

The Post Impressionist

For Sale At Geneva.

Post Office, Thursday.

IN these tense days of another European—not to say Afro-European—crisis, there are all sorts of opinions as to what the League of Nations most requires. Upon this question, as upon most others, the Post-Impressionist has his own theory, and—upon this question as upon most—his theory fails to conform with the prevalent theories.

Italy thinks that what the League needs is the retention of Italy as a member—at any cost. Certain other nations (though not many) think that what the League needs is the expulsion of Italy—at any cost.

More than a few Leaguers think the League needs the United States and Japan. Sundry Americans and Japanese think it shouldn't get them.

At least until very recently England thought the League ought to be a moral force. France has always thought it ought to be a police force.

Some people (among whom is not, we protest, Frank Simonds) think the League ought to expire—some think it will. Some think it shouldn't—and some think it won't.

And now the League has lately gone into the real estate business. It has gone into that business "off," as our British cricket-cousins say, "its own bat." And it has made a poor start.

We don't mean that the League intends to violate Article X of its own Covenant—though there are critics mean enough to say so.

[EDITORIAL NOTE — Article X of the League Covenant begins: "The Members of the League undertakes to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all Members."]

The League's present danger, as we see it, is one of internal aggression. It wants to sell its old buildings before moving into its new ones—and it has no more conception of high-power salesmanship than the Post-Impressionist has of how Chairman Fletcher ought to reorganize his National Committee.

In fact, it has less.

What does the League do?

All it does is to get out—and mail to "a selected list"—a 4 pp., 8.5 x 10.5 in. folder, headed, in mere 18-pt. Cheltenham caps, "For Sale at Geneva," with a photograph of the original Secretariat on p. 1 and the whispered statement:

"In view of the forthcoming transfer of the Secretariat of the League of Nations to its new premises, the buildings on the Quai Wilson in which it has hitherto been housed are for sale."

Oh, yes, there do follow a ground plan and plans of two floors. But the League doesn't say anything. It merely hints:

"These buildings are of special interest, having served as background for some outstanding historical events of the postwar period."

This is just one thing: It is modesty gone mad.

"Served as background for some outsaanding historical events!"

We'll say they did all of this—and some more.

What about the day when the Germans entered? What about the day Japan went out? Recall the Corfu debate—the reconciliation of bemedaled Pilsudski with cropheaded Voldemaras—the time when Stresemann barely escaped apoplexy as he scolded Zaleski—that afternoon when Hungary made her first dramatic demand for territorial justice—the morning when the United States took a seat at the Council table.

"Some outstanding events of the postwar period?" Shade of Aristide Briand—99.9 per cent of them!

What, in our opinion, the League ought to do is this:

Buy full-page advertising-space in every newspaper and most magazines—except the Astrological Review.

Placard every barn and filling-station with sure-fire stuff from Dino Grandi, Tsuneo Matsudaira, Norman H. Davis, and that distinguished Italo-Liberian, Dr. Antoine Sottile.

Prepare press-handouts signed jointly by Sir Austen Chamberlain, Ramsay MacDonald and A. E. Blanco.

Send forth, from its Geneva broadcasting-station, a series of world-hookup sales-talks by former Secretary-General Sir Eric Drummond, by present Secretary-General Joseph Avenol, by American Arthur Sweetser, who, from behind his heaped desk in the old Secretariat, has seen statesman after statesman come and go—and one extra sales-talk (limited to two minutes) by talkative Jean Paul-Boncour.

In short, what the League really needs to boss its real-estate business is a live-wire American real estate agent.

And we won't call him a "realtor," either.

Fair Enough

New York, Aug. 28

I WISH it were possible for some good American or English reporter to move around among the villages of Italy and give an honest, uncensored account of the feeling of the people toward a war which Mussolini began as a simple, routine raid on a backward people, but which is now getting out of control and may kick up another world war.

It seems impossible that the Italian people, the nonpolitical people, such as farmers, little storekeepers and employes, want this war. The army officers probably do want it, and the loud-speakers of Fascism, of course, have been talking it up consistent with Mussolini's cry that it were better to be a lion for an hour than a sheep for a lifetime. But Fascism is by no means universal in Italy. There are many unfortunates who want only to live in peace, barring casual social knifings and skull-bustings, and have no idea where Abyssinia is or any desire to go there and drink from poisoned wells or come down with fly bite and die horribly in some barren gully in a foreign land.

Fascist discipline, with its snoop and spy system—a system of which this country has had more than one disagreeable taste—prevents the free expression of the people's feelings on the adventure which Mussolini has attempted to glamorize, but it is not likely that the great mass of Italians want to go through with this thing.

THE only correspondent who has, to my knowledge, attempted to report the sentiment of the ordinary people—of the Italian brother of Mr. Roosevelt's Forgotten Man—was Dave Darrah, who was kicked out of Italy without an hour's notice a couple of months ago. Mr. Darrah had lived in Italy six years and had avoided social relations with the official set, preferring instead the company of the common man. He knew the war spirit of Mussolini's speeches was not the spirit of all the Italians and was rushed over the border and out and away for trying to tell what he knew.

A correspondent in a militarized country, working under censorship, has his choice of two courses. He may insist on telling the truth and get himself kicked out as an undesirable alien—in which case his opportunity to tell the truth is ended—or he may decide that it is his job to see how close he can come to the truth without violating the rules laid down by the censors.

IF he does that, as the correspondents in England did during the big war, he suffers little discomfort, but, of course, he isn't covering his story. Like the man who played the crooked roulette wheel because it was the only wheel in town, he feels that colored news is better than no news at all and makes the best of conditions. He is as honest as they will let him be, but his news is like an egg that is only slightly bad.

I am sure, however, that the Italian people of the kind I mention can not be as eager to go off to Abyssinia and fight as the censored stuff would suggest. A few little pieces have come across telling of deserters risking death to go over the hill along the borders—not enough of them to indicate a serious weakening of the army's morale, to be sure, but enough to indicate that not all Italians want to live like lions for a day and die at nightfall. The wives and mothers of the men must have some personal notions about the glamour of this war, and there must be soldiers among the thousands streaming like insects into the holds of the transports who secretly would prefer to stay home scratching a living out of their hillsides and who risk death in the field only because the alternative is certain death before the firing squad.

IT is a queer thing that people individually may be kind and peaceable and sentimental but as nations never are able to make these characteristics felt. The individual Italian is well known in this country, and his reputation is good among his neighbors. It is true that certain members of his group—the Capones and Dago Franks, the blackhanders and racketeers—have embarrassed his reputation by their casualness in killing off those who oppose their whims. But, on the whole, the Italians in America have been hard workers, useful citizens and pleasant company.

Yet Italy as a nation now takes on before the world the character of a murderous marauder bent on stealing a country merely because it appears not to be nailed down, even though the whole world be drawn into war. Mussolini speaks for Italy, but it can hardly be said that he speaks for the Italians. Nobody speaks for them.

Fame of Henry James

By William Lyon Phelps

HENRY JAMES was born in 1843 and died in 1916.

He never wrote a best-seller; he never had a very large number of readers; he never used propaganda; he new wrote any novel because the time seemed opportune; he never tried to adjust his plots or his characters to fit any particular current of popular opinion. He always wrote in his own way, and really never tried to please any one except himself, though he would have been glad of popular approval, and was singularly pleased with intelligent appreciation.

Yet the fact remains that while many of his contemporaries, who enjoyed popularity during his lifetime, are now little read and perhaps eternally forgotten, the fame of Henry James—as distinguished from his popularity—is greater now than it has ever been; and his influence on other writers more powerful and more formative than most persons suppose.

It will never do to dismiss him as a writer who was interested only in the art of expression, to the exclusion of feeling and passion; or that he was interested only in the superficial details of fashions and manners. For the truth is, that Henry James was interested only in the human soul; in the springs of action; in the uncharted places of personality. He was a frontiersman in thought; as pioneers and explorers are frontiersmen in geography. He loved to venture far out into the unexplored regions of the human heart. He was a genius.

• • • •

If there are any of my readers who have not read many of his books, I should like to suggest that they begin to read his novels in the following order: 1. "The American." 2. "Daisy Miller." 3. "Roderick Hudson." 4. "The Portrait of a Lady." 5. "The Turn of the Screw." 6—but I think if you have read as far as this, nothing can stop you from reading the others.

The French Position

Need For Support Of Italians Against Germany Is Embarrassing.

The second of two articles written for The Post by the son of Henri Jouvenal, senator and former French ambassador at Rome, is presented herewith.

By Bertrand de Jouvenal.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

"FRANCE could stop that war between Italy and Abyssinia. All she has to do is join with England in bringing pressure for peace. Where France goes the Little Entente follows. The Little Entente includes not only Czechoslovakia and Rumania, but also Yugoslavia. And Italy can not afford to disregard Yugoslavia, her immediate neighbor, ever hostile to her. If the French were willing Italy would be surrounded by a ring of enemies so powerful that they would not need to use force to bring Mussolini to his knees. It all hangs upon France. But France will not move against Italy. She is bound by some secret deal made in Rome."

Such is the opinion that prevails in that large section of British public opinion which calls for the most drastic measures against Italy. I recently attended one of the meetings held in London to celebrate the the triumph of the Peace Ballot. The promoter of the Ballot, Viscount Cecil, proclaimed the results: Twelve million citizens had declared their belief in the League as an instrument of peace and a large majority of them declared their willingness to see England use force to curb any warlike state. After his speech, Lord Cecil turned to me and said:

"We shall act upon those principles in the case of Italy. We shall go to any lengths to stop her from invading Abyssinia. And you, the French, you are going to side-step and fail to fulfill your obligations under the Covenant because of that deal you made in Rome."

What truth is there in those reports of a secret deal? It might have been made at one of two times. Either in the spring of 1933, when a new French ambassador was sent to Rome with ample powers to bring about a Franco-Italian "rapprochement." Or it might have been made last January when Laval went to Rome to sign quite a number of written agreements between France and Italy.

I CAN state with complete assurance that no such deal was made in 1933, because the French ambassador was my father. In January, 1935, I happened to be one of the correspondents escorting Laval. At that time, France gave away a slice of her Somaliland, letting Italy's Eritrea creeps a little farther south along the coast of the Red Sea toward Italian Somaliland. As France Somaliland forms, with British Somaliland, the sea-front of Ethiopia, Il Duce and the French foreign minister can hardly have failed to mention Ethiopia in their talks.

Indeed, I have it from the best authorities that Mussolini quite openly stated his intention of exploiting Abyssinia's untapped natural resources. Laval promised that there would be no competition from France. At that time, the matter of the French-owned railway from Djibouti to Addis Ababa was raised. The owners, it seems, were fearful of an economic expansion of Italy in Ethiopia which might lead the Italians to make life difficult for the French railway owners and force them to sell out to the Italians.

The Franco-Italian talks dealt with such subjects. In a loose way, we correspondents stated that "France agrees to give Italy a free hand in Ethiopia." But we did not, nor did Laval, to the best of my knowledge, imagine that Il Duce intended to batter his way into the country. We thought he would buy his way in.

The United States, if a foreigner may be permitted to say so, knows all there is to know about gaining control of a foreign country backward in political organization and economic development. The French expected Mussolini to use the American methods of penetration. Nobody expected Il Duce to be even cruder than Julius Caesar was almost 2,000 years ago. At least, the conqueror of Gaul managed to be called into the country by the most important tribe of the country, he was the ally of some Gauls against others, not just plainly, openly, the foreign invader.

OF course, we had overlooked the fact that the leader of Italy has aroused the enthusiasm of his followers for 12 years and whetted their appetite for mighty adventures. And a peaceful penetration into Abyssinia would not have provided the needed glamour. Some think that if the Abyssinians were not prepared to fight—which they are—even so Mussolini would find it desirable to march into the country with tanks and artillery.

Here, then, French psychology was sadly at fault. And now we find ourselves in an awkward predicament. Because even though there is positively no written agreement and very probably no verbal promise given to Italy that she can have, as far as we are concerned, a free hand in Ethiopia, whatever she does, we have let Italy think she can count upon our friendship, and Mussolini is not at all likely to understand the line of reasoning of the Cavalier poet: "I would not love thee, dear, so well, loved I not honor more."

What Did He Say To Mussolini?

We have gone to great pains to win back the friendship of Italy. If we turn against our neighbor now, she will never forgive us. If Mussolini is forced to "climb down," as he would have to do, should we interfere, the humiliation will never be forgotten. Then we would have thrown Italy right into the arms of Germany.

The problem would not arise were there no German arms for Italy to throw herself into. Such would be the case if a Franco-German "rapprochement" had taken place. Then Italy could be rapped on the fingers without any difficulty. This brings the average Frenchman to reconsider the whole foreign policies of his country and to wonder whether it was wise after all to seek the Russian alliance, a very roundabout way to peace, and whether the simple, outright deal with Germany would not have been better tactics.

FACED with the possibility of a conflict with Germany, France must make sure of allies right and left. She is glad to have gained Russia but cannot console herself for the loss of Poland. She has been for two years at pains to reconcile her alliance with Yugoslavia with a Franco-Italian understanding. Just when she has managed to accomplish a half-hearted reconciliation between Yugoslavia and Italy, Italy and England fall out violently. France can not take a firm stand with either because both are such valuable allies against Germany. Supposing the German menace were dispelled by a Franco-German agreement, then France would be a free agent once more and there is little doubt that she would use her freedom to help curb the warlike intentions of Italy.

Nobody knows better France's predicament than Mussolini. His line of reasoning probably runs somewhat like this: "France can not afford to throw Italy into the arms of Germany, so she won't move. The Little Entente will follow France. England alone can do nothing. The American Senators have saved me from the danger of Anglo-American cooperation. I can go ahead and will gain great prestige by having proceeded in the teeth of British opposition."

Thus does the situation appear today. Tomorrow, everything may be changed. Russia may have her say. After all, up to a few months ago, she consistently encouraged African nationalism against "White Imperialism." Her alliance with France has greatly aected her policies. Even so, she may prove an important factor.

Laval May Have Understood That Il Duce Would Buy Into Abyssinia.

3,000 to Gather At Rally Tonight

Legion and Auxiliary Will Honor Retiring Officers.

Three thousand members of the American Legion and women's auxiliary of the Southern Maryland District are expected to attend the dance and rally tonight at Chevy Chase Lake in honor of the retiring department commander, John F. McNulty and retiring president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Lucille F. Steinbler.

Among those who will speak are Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, and Joseph J. Malloy, incoming department commander. Arch McDonald, radio announcer, will act as master of ceremonies.

The affair will draw representatives from Calvert, St. Mary's, Charles, Prince Georges, and Montgomery counties and will be the final gathering before the annual convention in Ocean City, Md., next week.

Arrangements were made by Lawrence W. Smith, of Kensington, vice commander of the district, assisted by J. Bryan Hobbs, of Laurel; S. Paul Clark, Silver Spring; Caeser L. Aiello, Hyattsville; Eugene Ramey, Kensington; Mark S. Phillips, Chevy Chase; Mrs. Charles W. Walzl, Hyattsville, and G. Stuart Reeder, of Leonardtown.

H. Prescott Gatley Back From England

Rapidly growing confidence and optimism among Great Britain's financial leaders was found by H. Prescott Gatley, president of the National Savings & Trust Co., who yesterday returned from a short sojourn in England.

He enthusiastically confirmed the many favorable reports that have been made from London in recent months.

Armed Resistance By Hunters Alleged

Game Warden Arrests Two After Shots Are Fired.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Game Protector Tull Whitacre was bitten by a dog and had two shots fired at him yesterday when he attempted to arrest two men who were later charged with hunting out of season and with carrying an uncased gun. The men, Richard and Theodore Ratleff, of Pendleton County, were lodged in jail later, after surrendering.

Whitacre was traveling in Pendleton County when he heard several shots and investigated. Coming to the home of the Ratleffs he was greeted by two small boys, who called their dogs on him. He was bitten on the leg before he could bat off th dogs.

Whitacre ducked behind a tree when two bullets whizzed close to his head, and then crawled up on the two brothers from the rear. They surrendered after the game protector covred them with a gun. Whitacre did not press the charge of attempted murder because he thought that they had fired the two shots close to him merely to frgihten hfm.

A Hemi-Demi-Semi-Ballad Of Names.

ANTIGONISH, Nova Scotia.—Far be it from me to trespass on the broad highway of that sort of verse entitled the Nashian,
But if Ogden himself were with me he would be rolling his eye with a fine frenzy and looking just as pale and ashian
As I am before the grace, glory and grandeur beyond anything I could wish Of certain Nova Scotian place names, of which as I first sample let me cite Antigonish.
And if Ishbel MacDonald and Mrs. Rinehart's
Tish are all the "ishes" you have known in a life which before this must necessarily have been dull, barren and enervating.
Let me do what I can to make this column admirably educational, elegant and elervating
By declaring, on the solemn word of a traveler who has to come home some time and therefore can't carry things too far,
That beings supposedly human—at least when they aren't asking said traveler to buy the house for the sake of a night's lodging—do actually live in places named Merigomish, Ingonish and Tidnish, highly euphonious appellations which you could invite into your boudoir.
Yet these are outclassed a matter of fifty-three and a half miles as the crow flies crying
"Crawsh-crawsh"
By the next little exhibit. Gentlemen, I give you the very pretty hamlet yclept Pugwash.

• • • •

BUT what can you expect in a place where the people say "Good night" to you when they first meet you in the evening, putting upon you a feeling of wished-for departure imminent?
Or where the roads have the uncouthness to leave you, after six hours' motoring, in need of nothing so much as arnica and liminent?
I hope too crabbed old age has not set upon me when I opine that it takes as long here to drive twenty miles as it does to pronounce correctly
Tracadie, Shenacadie and Shubenacadie,
And that if given my choice I had far rather cross the Pacific Ocean on the shoulders of the Old Man of the Sea pick-a-backedy.
Or where you read in the Halifax headlines, "Three Nova Scotians Die Violent Deaths," and you begin to look around the trunks of pine trees fearing for your life in very truth,
Only to discover on further perusal that all three had emigrated thirty years ago, resulting in one being run over by a bicycle in Brooklyn, another falling down a well in Bangor, and the other blowing out the gas in Duluth?
What can you expect, is what I ask again with all the gravity and decorum that becomes a man,
In a place where the natives unblushingly christened one of their towns—South Gut of St. Ann?

• • • •

LIKE the South Sea Islander who didn't care whether he worshiped a big god or a little goddy,
I am in a comparative state of unconcern over the village of West Newdy Quoddy.
And Wine Harbor and Sober Island are but smiles which pass in the night compared with the island called Tuffin,
A spot I should like to visit just about as much as I should like to be turned into a puffin.
But what really has my eyes goggled out as if I had been at the World's Fair going eternally peekum-peekum.
Is such a name as Uniacke, or Stewiacke, or especially, like the maraschino cherry on the sundae, Ecum Secum.
All of these I hold as dear as Mr. Bunyan's pilgrims did the Land of Beulah, Oh;
Principally because I myself was born not in Keokuk, Chillicothe, Walla Walla, or anything nearly so curious as those, but in Ashtabula, O.
And as for Halifax itself, to some people it may be the town where the ships collided in the harbor, causing an explosion of TNT which blew forty acres to smithereens and kindled a fire which waxed horrida and horrida,
But for me it shall always remain the place where a very able and otherwise prepossessing garage man looked at my D. C. license tags and remarked: "District of Columbia—isn't that somewhere down in Florida?"

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Home at Last!

Congress has called it a day. But it seems a century. The boys have adjourned after a session that began away back when a budget balancer was never confused with a Japanese acrobat and ended with their wives advertising them as missing persons.

• • • •

The session demonstrated primarily that Rip Van Winkle was wrong in going to the Catskills. He should have gone to a Democratic Congress.

• • • •

It was an important session. More than 2,574½ pounds of fresh legislation was passed, 1,050 pounds of which went through in bulk.

• • • •

Summary of Important Bills Passed.

House Bill 6574-A.—Compelling all officers of banks to wear numbers on their sweaters, file a daily report with Washington by radio and issue brighter colored check books.

Senate Bill 4444-H.—Classifying all successful businessmen as suspicious characters and making it compulsory for a corporation to put at least one G-man on the board of directors.

House Bill 7789-K.K.—The Share the Rivers and Harbors Bill. This takes the larger rivers and harbors of the country, including the Mississippi, Hudson, Susquehanna, Missouri and the Port of New York, and redistributes the waters so that Vermont, Rhode Island, Indian Territory and some place called Kittinicatawney Center will have a fair chance to sell oars, tide tables and sailor hats.

Joint resolution or something No. 532-H.—This is the celebrated measure which guarantees the farmer 30 cents a gallon for his gasoline and makes it optional whether he wipes the windshield and asks, "How's your water?"

House Bill 988, Series 5.—Share the polo ponies bill. This was never fully read or understood but the boys voted for it on an unconfirmed report that it redistributed the polo ponies and guaranteed every man over 60 a mallet and a spare set of spurs.

Senate Bill 5555-D.—Not very easy to understand, but it compels the utilities to trade Hopson for Dizzy Dean, abolishes the fast ball in holding company pitching and makes electric light and gas companies deliver light and power in sanitary drinking cups. The toe-hold is barred in relationships between subsidiaries and Old Man River.

House Bill 3287-C.—This is the tax bill as finally passed. It's too long to read. You save up $50,000 in American money, send it to Washington and get your choice of three handsome premiums, a genuine mahogany cribbage board, a magic lantern with two dozen slides, or a set of 167 rubber dishes.

COFFEE—Circulation of nine notices against the September Rio coffee contract today put this month down to the lowest point for any Rio position since October, 1931. The rest of the list was irregular with December Santos distant positions recovering near the close. Spot coffee dull; Santos 4s, 8¼; 5s, 8¼; Rio 7s, 6½. Spot and freight offers included Santos Bourbon 3s and 5s at 7.85@7.90.

SUGAR—Raw sugar was unchanged today at 3.50 for spot and position sugar. Nearby sugars were available at this level, but refiners showed no interest. The only sale reported was one concluded late yesterday of 25,000 bags of Cubas in port at the 3.50 level. Refined all local refiners were accepting business at unchanged prices or 5.10 for fine granulated. The proposed advance to 5.30 was postponed until tomorrow by most refiners.

Richmond Markets.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 28 (AP).—The Richmond produce and live-tock market compiled by the division of markets of the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Immigration. Note—The prices quoted in Richmond were received by commission merchants and some others for lots sold to retail merchants, local butchers, institutions, peddlers and others during early trading today.

Elizabeth Hawes Flatly Denies the Popular Belief That Fashion Is Fickle

Beauty Expert Creates Tonic For Fingernails

New Lotion Softens Cuticle, Averts Brittleness; Gloves Run to Colors.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

HATS off to a certain miss whose life's work is beautifying the feminine sex. She has devoted years to a study of cosmetics, has spent years creating creams and lotions which do this and that to the skin. She's an expert on physical culture, to some degree a stylist, and knows as much about perfumes as a Parisian parfumeur. As a master of make-up, her, rouges, powders, lipsticks and eye shadows are the last word in perfection.

Lately she has turned her attention to hands, and has been engaged in creating a nail tonic which would restore and preserve the health of one's nails. This product, like all her others, may rest alone on its laurels. What it does is this: Gives new life to nails by supplying lost oils. It softens the cuticle, thereby eliminating hangnails. It prevents breaking and splitting of brittle nails.

Almost always after a summer of swimming, fishing, golfing and playing tennis, one's hands are sadly the worse for wear, and one's nails in particular. Before fall definitely sets in, start correcting your fingernail troubles by using this beneficial lotion regularly.

It comes in an attractive little set with a box of paste polish for only $1.

Gloves Colorful This Fall.

HEIGH-HO for a season of colors, for a season when gloves will break loose from their ordinary browns and blacks and run riot in green, rust, wine!

If you're in the market for fall gloves, don't delay, for opportunity is ripe in a local store. Here you can buy those delightful all-occasion gloves made of a soft velour suede fabric and coming in these new colors—and in black and brown. They sell for the modest amount of $1.

Cereal Set in Frosted Glass.

IF YOU ARE already a housekeeper then you know the advantages of a cereal set. If you aren't then it will only take one look to convince you. Instead of having a myriad of miscellaneous containers lining your kitchen shelf it's a big convenience to have eight neat-looking pieces marked pepper, sugar, salt, etc., so you know just where everything is.

The cereal sets featured in the housewares department of a downtown store are irresistible. They're made of frosted glass, not so frosted though that you can't tell just how much of what each one contains. The set includes four large containers for tea, coffee, flour and sugar, and four smaller ones with shaker tops for salt, pepper, sugar and flour. The eight pieces for $1.

Slips to Match Dresses.

MAYBE YOU'LL want to match your new fall dresses with some new slips. If so, take yourself to the lingerie department of a downtown store and see the slips there in the Renaissance colors.

They're bias with adjustable straps, and made of sterling satin. You may buy them in wine, green, brown or rust for very modest prices.

The advent of this colorful lingerie proves one thing for sure—that the trend for color goes further than the eye can see!

Gay-Colored Shorts for Men.

PROOF THAT even the most conservative male likes a sartorial flare now and then lies in the popularity of the gay-colored shorts in a downtown store.

These are made of a fine soft quality of silk, and are available in yellow, wine red and bright blue. Right now they're selling for $1.15.

The clerk behind the counter gave an interesting sidelight. He said that the majority of customers for these gay shorts were men who were conspicuous for their dark and somber clothes. It was seldom, he said, that the gentlemen in a checked suit and flowered tie chose his shorts in bright shades.

She Regards Simplicity As Keynote to Designing

Frills and furbelows have no place in the fashion picture, believes Elisabeth Hawes, young American designer, who says clothes should be comfortable and wearable above all else.

Antipathy for Idle Trimmings Extends to Bows and Other Furbelows; Combines Lot of Color in Clothes She Creates.

Do dress designers follow the rules of fashion, or do they make them? What is the secret of the waxing and waning of styles? Elizabeth Hawes discusses these questions and many more in the following article, the third in a series of interviews with well-known couturiers.

By Frances Mangum.

"IT'S JUST so much hoop-la!" said Elizabeth Hawes. The young designer was speaking about the fickleness of fashion.

"There's not a word of truth to it, really," she said. "Fashion is far more stable than most people believe. As a matter of fact, any dress that's good at all ought to be good for several seasons!"

Miss Hawes, as one of the most widely known fashion designers on this side of the Atlantic, should know whereof she speaks.

"I've proved time and again that one model or design will be just as wearable and attractive three years after it's created," she asserted.

Miss Hawes explained that three years ago she was featuring skirts with a lot of front fullness. "And now they're very much in vogue," she pointed out, "so I'm going ahead and stress skirts that are full all around. We'll have 'hips' yet!"

Follow the Leader.

The majority of women do not actually seize on a style until it is actually ebbing away, Miss Hawes believes.

"The masses are afraid to buy anything that they haven't actually seen," she said. "If they see 'everybody' in full skirts, then they want them too. But they wouldn't wear full skirts before others did too!"

She said she liked to design for persons who were willing to wear advanced styles. As she explained it, fashions as far as the majority are concerned, are yet to come.

Miss Hawes believes a study and understanding of anatomy should be the basis of designing.

"I do not believe anyone can design clothes for the human body without knowing the body perfectly. Why? Simply because to my way of thinking clothes should be comfortable and wearable above all else and in order to make them this way you simply have to know anatomy."

Original But Not Bizarre.

She laughed when told that a New York columnist had referred to her creations as being strikingly original and a little bizarre.

"Original—yes. They are that," she said. "But bizarre—never! I loathe bizarre clothes. I intensely dislike dresses, coats, or hats, that are in the strict sense of the word 'extraordinary!'

"On the other hand, I certainly believe that simplicity is one with good taste, and I try always to make simplicity the keynote to my designing."

"She readily admits using "gobs of buttons," but explained she always made them fill a purpose.

"I would never use them as just 'trimming,'" she said. "When I put buttons down the front of a dress, then that dress buttons down the front."

Her antipathy for idle trimmings extends also to bows and other furbelows. Her verdict—attractive when useful, otherwise deterimental to the style of the gown.

One thing, however, which Miss Hawes uses lavishly is color. "I love it!" she declared. "I always combine a lot of colors. For instance, a coat of one color, lined with another color, with a dress of still another color.

"This season, doubtless people will say my models show a Russian influence because I've just returned from Moscow. True I'm spurging in color—but I always do. It positively isn't Russian influence. Also, it's true I'm using fullness over hips such as you see in certain types of Russian coats. But I'm only following through what I began a few years ago."

Once after she returned from a trip to Mexico, many persons thought they saw a Mexican influence in her designs, Miss Hawes explained. "All this geographical effect on styles is so silly," she said. "But it gives people something to say. So!"

Miss Hawes has been designing since 1929. "I was graduated from Vassar," she said, "went to Paris to study designnig, came back here and opened my shop. No, the crash interfered very little. I had started at scratch, so I really didn't have much business to lose. As a matter of fact, all during the so-called bad years my business continued to grow. Gradually yes, but consistently, anyway.

Her interest in her work has never narrowed down to a specialty. She likes designing dresses as well as coats, sports clothes as well as formal. In fact, she declared enthusiastically, "everything about designing—I love it!"

Simple Directions For Fruit Conserves May Win a Prize

Would you like to win a Sunbeam mixmaster, a G. E. Hotpoint coffee maker, or a Dominion sandwich grill? If you win a prize in the Post's weekly recipe contest you will be eligible for one of the three grand prizes offered by The Washington Post and the National Electrical Supply Co. at the end of September. Each week the Post offers 12 $1 prizes for the best recipes entered in its weekly contest.

Fruit conserves is the subject of the current week's contest. They may be made with large or small fruit and varied with raisins, nuts or maraschino cherries. A simple but unusual recipe may win one of the prizes. Send in your favorite one at once. All entries must be received not later than next Saturday morning by Dorothea Duncan, Home Economics Editor of The Post.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Insignificant as is my problem, nevertheless it is very real to me. I am beginning to realize that, with only a year and a half of high school left, it is high time for me to begin to master the social as well as the scholastic phase of school life. My greatest handicap is my awkward, inexperienced dancing.

* * * *

I would like to find a dancing teacher who would, by constant practice, break down my reserve and resistance and teach me to follow smoothly, as it is nonsense merely to learn stereotyped steps when most boys don't known what they're dancing themselves.

* * * *

A smooth "follow" seems to be the safest, sanest and soonest path to ballroom poise. And so, if you could recommend to me such a made-to-order teacher, I would be very much obliged, espacially if his price is reasonable—as I have more of time and patience than money. Yours truly, JUNIOR.

Practice Makes Perfect.

DEAR JUNIOR: It would be unfair to the many excellent dancing teachers in Washington for me to recommend one more highly than another, most particularly so since I am not thoroughly familiar with the comparative merits of each. You will note, by consulting the "dancing academies" classification in the back of the telephone book, that there are scores of dancing teachers and dancing schools in the city.

* * * *

Since reasonable price is an important consideration in your case, I think the sensible thing to do is sit down at the telephone and go through the list requesting price quotations. When you have noted those which fit your purse, you can follow through with personal interviews, until you find the teacher who appeals to you as temperamentally compatible. After that, strict attendance at classes and indefatigable practice should make you, in two to four months' time as "smooth" a dancing partner as the most critical male could ask for.

* * * *

A college girl of my acquaintance who found herself at 15 a "terrific wall flower", (her own words) because she couldn't dance well, remedied the situation by taking her rather overgrown self to a woman dancing teacher. The latter called in a young man, and once a week they put the wall flower through her ballroom paces for an hour or more. In two months' time she had acquired sufficient self-confidence to be a pliant dancing partner, which automatically ended her wall-flower troubles. M. H.

Career Woman In U.S. Declared Most Fortunate

More Opportunity and Less Prejudice Here, Asserts Australian Leader.

By Dudley Harmon.

AMERICAN women who are career-minded are more fortunate than they perhaps realize in the opportunities open to them in this country, according to Miss Florence Rothwell, ex-secretary of the International Quota Club, organization of business and professional women in England, Australia, Canada, and the United States. Miss Rothwell is at the Dodge Hotel on a visit from her home town of Sydney, Australia.

Australian men, says Miss Rothwell, have not yet mastered the gentle art of working under women and feeling happy about it. They find it definitely unflattering to their sense of virility to take orders from a lady, no matter how sweetly such orders may be given. Most positions requiring a woman boss are therefore firmly closed to the feminine element of this country.

Envious of U. S. Women.

Jobs such as those of bank manager, broker, statistician, and financial expert bear the label "For men only" in Australia. Miss Rothwell says she is envious indeed of the American woman who is clever enough to rise to the heights of bank manager and fortunate enough to have the men take it and like it.

In Australia, women who work usually confine themselves to the feminine fields such as school teaching and dressmaking. Secretarial work is another favored line.

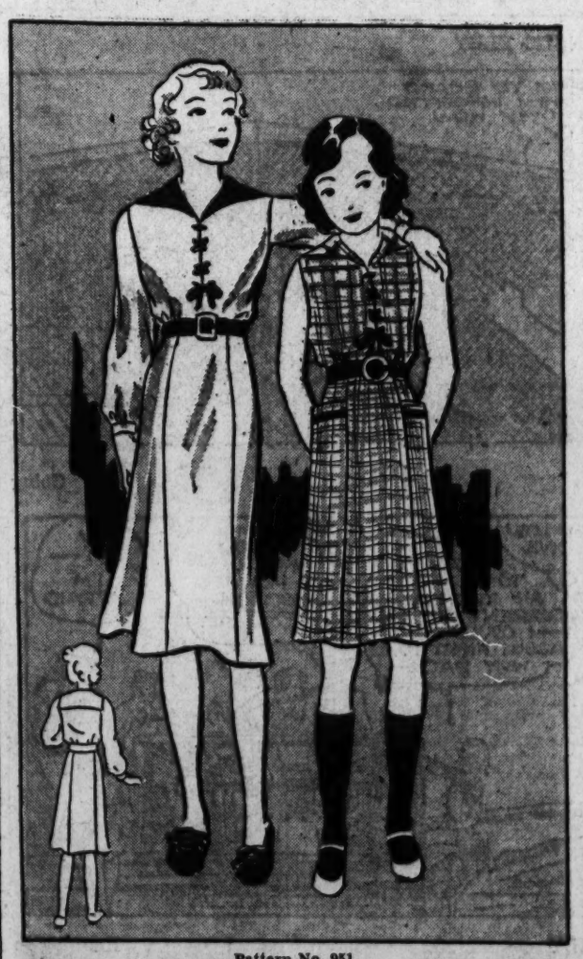
Miss Rothwell says that the woman doctor has an even greater success in Australia than she does in this country. This is because she has managed to capture a large portion of the infant practice.

Law, Dentistry Fields Hard.

The Australian woman who yearns for careers in law or dentistry is up against it, according to Miss Rothwell. In the first place, it is difficult for her to secure adequate training. In the second place, so great is the prejudice against her that even if she does eventually hang out her shingle the world passes her by.

Although Miss Rothwell's organization has not yet taken any steps to induce the strong sex to welcome women into business, she expressed herself as hopeful that time would soon bring this about. Miss Rothwell herself is a school teacher. She has also found time to serve as a member of the excutive committee of the English Speaking Union, the organization to promote friendship between English and Americans, and this month she represented New South Wales at the Pan-Pacific Women's conference in Honolulu.

Lacing Imparts Unusual Note To This Frock for Little Girls



Pattern No. 951.

JUST THAT LITTLE trick of the lacing lifts this design into the unusual. Girls of 8 to 14 like this sort of frock—and, may we add, look well in it. Both versions are one-piece and each has a sailor collar. Pockets or not, as you choose.

Cottons in plain colors, small prints or plaids, would make this a perfect school frock. Size 10 takes 2¼ yards of 35-inch fabric for the sleeveless version. 2¼ yards with the sleeves. An extra ½ yard makes the collar, belt and lacings. This pattern is guaranteed to be accurately cut.

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

Vice President Garner's Favorite Dish Is Chile Con Carne.

By Hattie Ellicott.

"CACTUS JACK" GARNER, Vice President of the United States, is a novelty in that office in that he refuses to be the official diner-out of the Administration. In times past Vice Presidents have assumed that duty for their chiefs and generally the Vice President and his wife were the guests of honor at state dinners unless their crowded social calendar prevented.

Those fortunate hosts to the Vice President might appreciate a tip as to one of his favorite dishes, one that Mrs. Garner will serve him as soon as he arrives in Texas fatigued with the recent lengthy congressional session. It is chile con carne.

To Texans and those who live in New Mexico and Arizona, Mexican dishes are as native to their taste as the corn pone and side meat of the countryside. The Mexicans have taught Americans the proper use of peppers and other taste-producing ingredients.

Her duties as the secretary of her husband have never prevented Mrs. Garner from fulfilling the pleasant duty of cooking his favorite dishes whenever he tires of a more formal diet. It is safe to venture the statement that to the Vice President no other person in the world can cook quite so well as his wife.

Here is a splendid recipe for chile con carne from "Every Woman's Cook Book," by Mrs. Charles F. Mortiz:

Chile Con Carne.

2 cups fat
1 pound can tomatoes
2 pounds ground round steak
2 tablespoons chili powder
4 large onions, cut small
1 pint can kidney beans
1 pint cold water
1 tablespoon salt.

Put fat in large saucepan, add onions, simmer until tender, but not brown. Add tomatoes, continue to cook slowly about 15 minutes; add ground meat, salt and chili powder. Cook slowly and steadily two hours. Add kidney beans, rinse the can with same quantity of water, add to mixture. Continue cooking slowly 15 to 20 minutes longer. More chili powder may be added if not seasoned sufficiently.

Stuffed Dishes Delight Palate

Filling Will Enhance Flavor of Steaks, Vegetables, Fruits or Cakes.

IF YOU ARE wondering just how to prepare that dish to give it a brand-new look and a fine, full flavor, fill it to the brim with stuffing.

Don't think the kind of stuffing we put inside turkey and other fowl covers the field. There is a stuffing for every purpose. Vegetables, fruit, cake, steak, salad—all these and more may be stuffed with savory results.

For dinner tonight why don't you surprise your husband by serving his favorite dish made more appetizing by a little stuffing. How about making that steak go farther and taste better by filling it with a succulent stuffing of delicious rice? Or glorifying the onions with an appropriate filling?

Here are some extra special recipes for stuffed dishes; there is nothing stuffy or prosaic about one of them.

Stuffed Steak.

2 cups boiled rice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Paprika
1½ pounds round steak or flank steak
1 teaspoon onion juice

Combine the rice and seasonings. Pound the steak until thin, sprinkle with salt, spread with a layer of the rice stuffing three-fourths inch thick. Roll and fasten with skewers or toothpicks; or tie with string while cooking.

Place in a deep oven dish. Add enough hot water to come up one-half inch in pan. Cover, cook in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 2 hours. Remove the cover to brown and thicken the stock to serve as gravy. This recipe serves six.

Stuffed Onions.

6 onions
12 salted crackers
¼ cup ground cooked meat
Salt and pepper
2 cups medium white sauce
¼ cup grated cheese.

Peel and parboil onions in boiling salted water. Drain and remove centers. Chop centers and combine with crumbled crackers, meat, salt and pepper. Fill onions with this mixture. Place them in a buttered baking dish. Cover with medium white sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake, covered, 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Uncover and brown. This recipe serves six.

Paris Shop Copies Fashions of 1900

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Styles of gay 1900 set their stamp on clothes shown today at Maggy Rouff's fashion show, which shunned short hems and decreed longer day skirts.

Sport and street clothes, worn with low-heeled shoes, were 8 or 9 inches from the ground, while afternoon clothes were 6 or 7 inches away.

Suits of black wool and quilted silk were designed with close-fitting little jackets, trimmed with curleycues of black braid or velvet ribbons, recalling those worn by Edwardian beauties.

MRS. JOHN NANCE GARNER.

Family Urged To Generalize In Table Talk

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

In the average household enough attention is not paid to table-talk. The family is apt to be divided into parts; mother and the girls discuss clothes, garden clubs and household matters, while father and the boys carry on a running fire of comment on business, athletics and automobiles. No topic seems common to the two groups.

Such a division is the direct outcome of early training. As children these same people were never taught the value and grace of general conversation. The children were permitted to discuss their own small affairs while the parents either sat silent or talked abqve the children's heads.

The daily gathering of the family about the table should, at one of the three meals at least, be made something of an occasion. It should be a time and place for promoting family solidarity. Father should throw off business preoccupations, mother should forget the annoying carelessness of tradesmen, and the size of the laundry. For this little time every day each member of the family should do his or her best to entertain the others.

The talk should be interesting to everyone, and if necessary a fine should be imposed on anyone who breaks the rule that table-talk, however trifling and superficial, should be general and not confined to groups of special interests.

Heart Must Get Immediate Rest In Thrombosis

Cutter Outlines Program to Allay Danger in Blocked Arteries.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

CORONARY THROMBOSIS or occlusion has been referred to many times. Nevertheless, this accident—it may be termed such because it usually comes on suddenly—requires such careful management that all the information that can be offered is certain to be welcomed.

To insure a clear understanding of the condition we may repeat that the heart muscle is supplied with blood through the coronary arteries. These vessels branch into smaller twigs so that blood may reach all the working cells of this powerful pumping organ. Whenever, by reason of disease, one of these branches becomes blocked, that portion of the heart muscle supplied by the branch is deprived of nourishment. Symptoms and pain and restlessness usually follow.

The objective, then, is to give the heart all the rest possible—to relieve it of work so that healing of the anemic muscle may occur, or better still, so that other vessels in the vicinity of the blocked artery may enlarge and supply blood to the area.

Prolonged Rest Is Necessary.

Once coronary disease has been recognized, the patient will ask: "What is my fate? What program must I follow? What work can I do?"

During the past few years numerous plans involving rest and appropriate treatment have been successfully adopted. A veritable army of patients, each with a block of a fairly large vessel, is functioning at anywhere from 60 to 90 per cent of normal efficiency. In order to accomplish this favorable result, rather prolonged rest is necessary, with a reduction in the amount of physical and mental load. After a period of rest, work is gradually resumed on a moderate basis.

Treatment has also been tried in another direction, namely, through the use of carbon dioxide baths. Along with this procedure, diet, rest and exercise are regulated. The baths are outlined on a 21-day basis, and during the period any and all heart stimulants, such as digitalis, are discontinued unless there appears to be danger of heart failure. Special attention is given to reducing the weight of those who are obese and in some instances the total daily calories (although balanced, and containing adequate vitamins) are dropped as low as 500. In order to secure bulk in the intestines, pulpy vegetables or agar are used. Fluids which, we must again emphasize require restriction in heart disease, are reduced to a total of two quarts in 24 hours.

The carbon dioxide baths are given every day or every other day at a temperature between 91 and 95 degrees F., 5 to 10 minutes in length. The concentration of carbon dioxide gas in the water is not lower than half saturation or higher than complete saturation. A rest hour follows the bath.

The value of the treatment is not ascribed wholly to the "fizz water" bath, although it is claimed that this gas acts somewhat like digitalis. While the carbon dioxide treatment is given at many of our hot springs, it can be adapted to hospitals or even the home.

Services Set For 4 Killed At Crossing

St. James Boys Will Be Buried Friday; Double Rites for Brothers.

Investigation of Crash Continues; Railmen at Loss to Explain.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 28.—Plans for funeral services for the four St. James boys who died in a grade crossing crash there were completed taday as a two-way investigation was continued in an attempt to learn the cause of the accident.

Officials of the Norfolk & Western Railroad and Magistrate John Dunn, acting coroner, are conducting investigations. The car occupied by the boys struck the sixth car from the end of a 69-car freight train.

There will be a double funeral at 4:30 p. m. Friday for John Lewis, 16, and Merle Lewis, 17, sons of John Lewis, a tenant farmer. The services will be at Manor Church and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Driver to Be Buried Friday.

James Weller, 18, driver of the car, will be buried at 2 p. m. Friday after services at the Episcopal Church at Lappans. Services for Marvin Moats, 17, will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Manor Church.

Railroad workers were busy all day clearing debris from the crossing. Three of the freight cars were overturned and three more derailed.

Merle Lewis was the only boy alive when rescue workers managed to reach them under the mass of tangled steel. He died en route to a hospital here.

Train Crew Escapes Injury.

Among the physicians aiding in rescue work was Dr. Ira M. Zimmerman, Williamsport, father of one of the 14 Williamsport children killed in the grade crossing crash last April in Rockville.

Railroad officials were unable to give any explanation of the accident. They pointed out that there is a clear view of the track and that the crossing is marked by stationary signal lights and signs.

Members of the train crew escaped injury. They were G. B. Menefee, Hagerstown, conductor; William H. Miller, Hagerstown, engineer, and V. M. Norman, Shenandoah, Va., fireman.

Inquiry Promised

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 28 (AP).—The Norfolk & Western Railway Co. will make a thorough investigation of the circumstances of the grade crossing accident which claimed the lives of four youths at Hagerstown, Md., last night, J. E. Crawford, general manager, said today. Crawford added that it had been determined that the automobile in which the youths were riding "ran into the side of the train."

G. O. P. to Arrange For October Rally

Groups From 3 States to Meet in Hagerstown.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 28.—Representatives from Republican clubs in counties of three States will meet here September 5 to plan for an outdoor mass meeting in October.

Counties represented in a meeting held here last night were Franklin, in Pennsylvania; Jefferson, Morgan and Berkeley, in West Virginia, and Garrett, Montgomery, Carroll, Allegany and Washington, in Maryland.

Among those attending were J. Forney Young, president of the Young Men's Republican League of Washington County; J. W. Kastle, Martinsburg, president of the Republican Tri-State Association; Dr. David G. Everhart, Frederick, acting president of the Young Men's Republican League; Walter W. Dawson, Montgomery County, chairman of the State central committee of Montgomery County and president of the Young Men's Republican League; J. A. Eyster, Charles Town, W. Va., chairman of the county executive committee; G. W. Appleby and J. C. Henson, Martinsburg, W. Va.

New School Voted At Fredericksburg

Council Orders $128,280 Structure There.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 28.—A new elementary and junior high school to cost approximately $128,280 was approved by the city council last night. It is intended to relieve congestion in the two present schools and to permit addition of an eighth grade and a work shop for manual training.

A 45 per cent grant from PWA funds will be asked in application to be filed Saturday with the Federal Government. The remainder of the cost will be financed by the city.

Tentative plans for the new structure provide for 14 classrooms and two laboratories with accommodations for 560 students.

Wreckage in Which Four Died

Above is shown the wreckage of the automobile in which four Maryland youths lost their lives when the light sedan in which they were riding hurtled into the rear of a freight train near Hagerstown. Below is a freight car being lifted from the right of way. Five other cars were derailed.

Awards Made To High School Publications

Lane, Charlottesville, Wins State and Class A Titles for Year Books.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Aug. 28.—Eight State and class championship awards for high school publications, the final contest of the 1934-35 series sponsored by the Virginia High School Literary and Athletic League, were announced today by Charles H. Kauffmann, executive secretary of the league.

"The Chain," student annual of Lane High School, Charlottesville, won both the State and Class A titles for year-books. The title in the Class B division was awarded to "The Handlan," of Handley High School, Winchester, and "The Eagle," of Eagle Rock High School, was the Class C winner.

John Marshall High School, Richmond, won the State and Class C awards for the best newspaper with its entry, "The Monocle," and Clifton Forge High School's "Mountaineer" took Class B honors. The Class C title went to "The Cavalier," of New Kent High School.

Only two divisions submitted magazine entries. "The Missile," a Petersburg High School publication, was the Class A and State winner, and "The Record," of Robert E. Lee School Staunton, was elected for the Class B award.

Points scored in the publications contest left the league's highest honor award for the year unchanged. Jefferson High School, Roanoke, registered the most points in all literary and athletic contests conducted during the year to take possession of the chief trophy.

In winning the Class B yearbook title, Handley High School tied Highland Springs High School for the highest number of points in that division. The tie for the Class C championship remained unbroken between Norview High School, Norfolk; Central High School, Manquin, and West Point High School.

Thirty-seven entries of the three types of publications were submitted to the judges, all of which will be placed in the Virginia room of the University of Virginia Library, where the collection has been growing for the last 15 years.

Judges for the annuals and magazines were Lambert Davis, editor of the Virginia Quarterly Review; John Wylly, archivist of the Virginia section of the university library, and Malcolm McLeod, former instructor in English at the university.

The newspaper judges were Allen Cleaton, editor of the Charlottesville Progress; William H. Wranek, jr., editor of the University of Virginia Alumni News and director of the university news bureau, and George Dillard, of the University of Virginia law school.

Cumberland Girl Wed To Cleveland Resident

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 28.—Miss Iva Blanche Lathrum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lathrum, was married to A. Daniel Spiker, Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dice Spiker, Oakland, Md., yesterday in St. John's Lutheran Church, by the Rev. Edward P. Heinze.

Miss Reba Weber was maid of honor and Kirk Lathrum, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Spiker will live in Cleveland, where Mr. Spiker is associated with a construction company. The bride is a graduate nurse of the Western Maryland Hospital.

PWA Projects Of $4,500,000 Held Up in Md.

Lack of Details on Work in Applications Is Cause of Delay.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—Applications for Federal funds to aid in a $4,500,000 construction program are being held in the Maryland public works administration office here because the applicants have not supplied all details of their projects.

This was disclosed today by Abel Wolman, State PWA director, as he announced that the deadline for filing new applications with his office was September 5. Requests for funds will not be considered in Washington after September 12, and they must be in the hands of national authorities by September 7.

With the exception of eight applications on which all details have not been received, and four more which have been filed in the last few days, all PWA applications subsubmitted have been passed on and sent to Washington.

New Applications Listed.

New applications which are now receiving consideration are:

Cecil County High School, $170,000.

Rising Sun, sewers, $45,000.

Indianhead, sewers, $47,000.

Oakland, reservoir, $18,000.

In addition to these four, about half-a-dozen others are expected to be filed during the next week, before the deadline.

The total number of Maryland applications cleared through the local office is 28, with a total cost of approximately $10,000,000. This is exclusive of the Baltimore City program of about $19,000,000. All Delaware applications, numbering 15, have been cleared through Wolman's office.

Projects Held Up.

Projects on which consideration is being held up because their sponsors have not submitted all necessary details are:

Penitentiary and House of Correction remodeling, etc., buildings, $2,900,000.
St. John's College, dormitory, $200,000.
Dorchester County schools, $110,000.
Roxbury Penal Farm, buildings and power house, $2,000,000.
Southern Hospital and Home, Baltimore, $700,000.
Anne Arundel County, bulkheads for erosion control at three beaches, $150,000.
Washington College, dormitory and dining hall, $310,000.
Caroline County schools, $45,000.
Cambridge, yacht basin and sewer extensions, $34,000.

New projects, if they are accomplished by all details, and the missing details of the present projects can be received up until the morning of September 5.

Five Appraisers Named In Condemnation Cases

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Five appraisers, appointed by Judge William E. Baker, of the United States District Court for the Northern District of West Virginia, will fix the value of lands in 25 condemnation cases pending in Federal Court here.

An aggregate of 20,000 acres is involved. The land is under option by the Federal Government for forest service. Loopholes in titles caused the Government agents to seek acquisition by condemnation rather than outright purchases. The commissioners are Charles C. Baker, Elkins; Wayne K. Pritt, Parsons; E. Foster Dyer, Franklin; Joseph E. Sites, Upper Tract, and John Kee, Franklin.

Free State Gets $294,000 Student Aid

NYA Allotment Assures Continued Schooling for Nearly 3,000.

1,100 Collegians Expect to Benefit; Funds for Wages, Not Loans.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—Nearly 3,000 Maryland students will be enabled to continue their studies this year as the result of a grant of $294,000 made to the State by the Federal Government through the National Youth Administration.

Announcement of the grant was made today by John J. Seidel, Maryland director of the NYA under the relief set-up. Of the sum, $147,870 will go to college students, high school pupils will get $102,000, and post-graduate scholars will receive about $45,000.

Allotments to colleges already have been made. The high-school fund will be divided among the counties after the term has opened. No definite rules covering post-graduate students have been drafted.

Not a Loan, but Wages.

The aid for students, Seidel said, "is not a loan but is paid for work performed other than the usual course of studies. This work will assist them in attaining a better professional training."

The college total was allotted on the basis of $15 per month for 12 per cent of the number of students enrolled in September, 1934. Requests for aid must be made to college presidents, and the applicants must sign an affidavit that they cannot attend the college without the Federal help.

Money to high schools was calculated on the basis of help of $6 per month to 7 per cent of the number of school children on relief in May, 1935. The funds will be allotted by counties, and county superintendents will divide it among the high schools. This help, limited to $6 per month, will be paid only to children of families on relief.

Aid for 1,100 Collegians.

Seidel estimated that the money will provide for 1,100 college students, 1,700 high school pupils, and about 165 post-graduate students.

Colleges in the State and their allotments are:

Blue Ridge College, $810; Bowie Normal School, $1,620; Coppin Normal School, $1,575; De La Salle College, $1,080; Frostburg State Teachers College, $2,025; Goucher College, $10,125; Hood College, $6,345; Johns Hopkins University, $22,920; Loyola College, $3,510.

Maryland College for Women, $1,890; Maryland Institute, $500; Morgan College, $7,290; Mount Saint Mary's, $3,105; Saint John's College, $4,455; Salisbury Teachers College, $1,890; Towson State Teachers College, $6,450; University of Baltimore, $4,050.

University of Maryland, $49,950; Washington College, $4,590; Washington Missionary College, $5,265; Western Maryland College, $7,750; Westminster Theological Seminary, $675.

Orchardists Take Picnic Tour Soon

Hampshire County Farms Will Be Visited.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Officials of West Virginia Horticulture Society are expecting a large caravan of orchard men, growers and handlers for the annual picnic tour of the society next Wednesday. The tour this year will cover Hampshire County's mountain orchards, where some unusual adaptions of orchard practice have been made to fit mountain conditions.

The growers will start from Martinsburg Wednesday morning, going via Hedgesville and Berkeley Springs to Woodrow, near Paw Paw, where they will branch off to Levels, Points and Three Churches, all well-known apple and peach sections, winding up at Sunrise Orchard, atop the mountain just east of Romney, where lunch will be served.

After lunch the caravan will move through Romney, past Jersey Mountain orchards, and to the Leatherman orchard, where speakers will be heard, including Dr. E. C. Auchter, United States Department of Agriculture leader; John J. Cornwell, former Governor and former president of the State Growers Society, and J. Blaine McLaughlin, commissioner of agriculture for West Virginia. Gov. H. G. Kump also may attend and speak.

The Wheeling Register And News Are Merged

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—The Wheeling Register, a Democratic daily for 70 years, yesterday announced suspension of publication as a morning newspaper and its merger with the Wheeling News, an evening paper. The combined edition will appear hereafter as the News-Register.

The Register has been published by C. E. Smith, editor of the Fairmont Times, since May, when it was acquired at bankruptcy proceedings by E. G. Ogden, publisher of the News and also publisher of other West Virginia papers. Smith will be editor of the News-Register.

Third Corps Troops Rest After Battle

Critique by Umpires to Determine Who Won Night Engagement.

Divisions Handicapped in Advance by D. C. Unit's Absence.

By Phil Austensen.

A Staff Correspondent.

Camp Reckord, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 28.—The Third Corps slept this afternoon. At least as many as could get away from necessary details. Tired and worn after almost 36 hours of ceaseless activity, the corps returned to camp.

The battle of the Swatara is a thing of the past, save for the critique tomorrow, to be conducted by Maj. Gen. Robert E. Callan, commanding the Third Corps of the First Field Army, encamped along a 20-mile front from Indiantown Gap to Mount Gretna. The critique will determine officially "who won the war."

All staff officers and selected line officers will attend to hear reports of Regular Army officers, who umpired the mimic battle fought by the corps early today in the first night maneuver ever held by the corps as a unit.

Defenders Driven Back.

Crossing the Swatara Creek on pontoon bridges of new design hastily thrown across by the 103d Engineer Regiment, the Twenty-ninth National Guard Division crossed to the enemy side shortly after midnight to find that the enemy "Red" army had occupied its line of departure.

Driving back the enemy, outlined by a skeletonized Eighth Regular Army Division, the Twenty-ninth pushed forward to drive the enemy back from his hold on the Susquehanna River, while the Twenty-eighth National Guard Division engaged the enemy on his flank to aid the Twenty-ninth. Regular Army units were scattered through the National Guard divisions, especially the Twenty-ninth, which had been reduced in numbers and units because of the ban placed on Virginia and District of Columbia National Guard troops by the Pennsylvania State health department.

Shortly before dawn, the artillery of both divisions opened on the enemy position to cover the advance of th Blue Army Corps. Aviation made reconnaissance and aided in the attack. Flares and Very lights from planes illumined the sky throughout the early morning hours.

Mist Adds to Scene.

Third Corps pushed forward through a theoretical artillery barrage and against machine gun nests that were represented by single guns and flags.

The crackle of musketry and machine guns, reinforced by the deeper boom of big guns, and a low-hanging mist through which ghostly shapes occasionally could be seen flitting, sometimes "tagged" as "dead" or "wounded" by the umpires, joined to present an inspiring scene in the early morning hours.

The battle ended at 8:50 a. m., and the weary units were ordered back to their camps.

The Fifty-eighth Infantry Brigade and the 104th Medical Regiment will parade tomorrow at 5 p. m. at Camp Reckord, and the Fifty-fourth Field Artillery Brigade will parade Friday at 5 p. m. on the Fifty-fourth Brigade parade ground at Colebrook.

Medals and cups won in athletic contests by the men of the various units will be presented at the reviews. Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding general, today issued an order congratulating the winners of the several contests sponsored by the division and commending all participants for the excellent spirit of sportsmanship displayed.

60 Will Receive Virginia U. Degrees

Summer School Exercises to Be Held Tomorrow.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Aug. 28.—Graduation exercises will be held here Friday night for approximately 60 men and women who have completed work for degrees in the summer session of the University of Virginia.

The commencement speaker will be William Kyle Smith, director of Madison Hall activities. Diplomas will be presented by President John Lloyd Newcomb.

The enrollment for the two terms of the summer session was nearly 1,700, an increase over last year's total. Final examinations will end the second term Friday.

Anti-Pollution Fish Plan Given Approval

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 28.—Recommendations offered by the State department of health and the department of game and inland fisheries have been accepted by local industries in an effort to control pollution of Opequon Creek, it was announced today.

The announcement followed a conference with W. A. Whitney, plant manager, and Howard Shockey, chemist, of the National Fruit Product Co., waste from the vats of which, it is alleged, resulted in the death of thousands of fish.

Barber Check by Merchant Causes Official Displeasure

Selection of Business Man as Inspector May Be Be Reconsidered.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—The secretary to the State board of barber examiners today took under consideration the board's "semiofficial" appointment of a hardware merchant as a barber inspector with the statement that the board "may take this up again."

The merchant-inspector is Harvey A. Chesney, of Bel Air, who managed the last Republican campaign in Harford County. He formerly was a bank teller and his father, Charles A. Chesney, is president of the Harford County board of election supervisors.

Vincent A. Cinquergrani, board secretary, admitted today that Chesney had been named.

"His name was sent down here from the Second District. We did not know at the time that he was in the hardware business.

"Frankly, I would rather see a barber get the job. He would know more about going around inspecting barber shops.

"Still, a good business man might make a good inspector, too. He should know how a shop should be run.

"I don't know what the board is going to do. It may take this up again."

Plebe Fled Academy; Resignation Accepted

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 28.—Naval Academy authorities have accepted the resignation of John C. Brunnen, 19, of Wamego, Kans., who left the Academy for his home on August 14 without permission.

The plebe, whose mother died after he entered the Academy, was missed the morning of August 14. He entered with the new plebe class on July 31.

Yesterday he returned to the Academy from Florida, accompanied by an uncle, and tendered his resignation.

New Deal View Of Jefferson Voters Sounded

Heavily Democratic Count Sentiment Surveyed by Newspapers.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Political observers are examining with interest reports from a newspaper survey in Jefferson County, which is heavily Democratic, being conducted by two Democratic weekly newspapers there.

At the end of the first ballot 260 voters had expressed their sentiments. Of this number, 182 said they had voted for Roosevelt in 1932, and 78 had voted for Hoover. Only 52 said they would vote for Rooseelt next year, while 156 said they would not vote for the President's reelection. The remaining 52 were non-committal.

The poll also reveals that Jefferson countians are apparently opposed to the crop reduction program, the new tax bill, payment of the bonus, government regulation of industry and unemployment insurance. Of all the Administration proposals submitted, only one—old age pensions—received a majority of the votes cast.

The vote on these issues was as follows: For crop reduction program, 52; against, 182; Government regulation of industry, 78; against, 156; new tax program, 52; against, 208; old-age pensions, 182; against, 78; unemployment insurance, 78; against, 182; bonus, 78; against, 182.

In 1932, Jefferson County cast 5,350 votes for Roosevelt as against 1,734 for Hoover.

State Labor Federation To Demand Social Law

Richmond, Va., Aug. 28 (AP).—Passage of State social security legislation and strengthening of workmen's compensation laws will be advocated by the Virginia State Federation of Labor when the General Assembly meets again, a labor spokesman and a State official predicted today.

Dan Anderson, chairman of the legislative committee of the State federation, said his group was sure to back legislation conforming to the national law. John Hopkins Hall, commissioner of labor and industry, said the federation would ask the Legislature to include compensation for occupational diseases in the workmen's compensation law.

Mother of 12 Injured Critically by Mower

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Carroll Ecker, 45, of near New Windsor, and the mother of 12 children, was in a critical condition in a Baltimore hospital last night after an accident in which her left foot was almost severed and the right one badly lacerated by a mowing machine in a field near her home several days ago. Mrs. Ecker was caught in the machine when the horses drawing it bolted. She was taken to the hospital and her foot was amputated.

A transfusion was deemed necessary to save her life. The accident occurred on the New Windsor fruit farm on which Mr. and Mrs. Ecker and their family occupy a tenant house.

Peach Harvest Passes Its Peak In Martinsburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—The peach harvest for this section passed its peak this week with probably a third of the crop yet to be harvested. This holds for Berkeley and Jefferson counties and nearby Maryland. Hampshire County will reach the peak this week, as will nearby Pennsylvania sections.

Local agencies report sales of Berkeley County Elbertas, 2-inch up pack, U. S. 1, in bushel tubs, at $1.65 f. o. b. station Tuesday. Best Pennsylvania packs brought slightly more. Smaller peaches, 1¾ to 2 inch pack, were $1.25.

Tonnage was not so heavy as growers anticipated, partly because of failure of the fruit to run to larger sizes. Probably 25 carloads of peaches will be shipped from Berkeley County, including truck and railroad shipments, while Berkshire County expects to roll 100 carloads by rail and possibly that many more by truck.

Because of the English need for apples, the local growers are selling early varieties rapidly and at good prices. Wealthys are still being picked here for export.

One by-product plant here, now seeking fruit, is offering 20 cents per 100 pounds, or $4 per ton, for apples delivered to the plant. Growers are considering steps to bring the price to a point where more than the cost of hauling is received.

Paralysis Spread Definitely Waning

Virginia's 'Caseless Day' First Since July 1.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 28.—State health officials expressed considerable relief today as the first day since July 1 passed without a single new case of infantile paralysis being reported in Virginia.

"This is the day I have been looking for since the middle of June," Dr. I. C. Riggin, health commissioner, said, smiling.

Although stating for the first time that the polio outbreak was "definitely" on the wane, the commissioner warned that a few new cases may be expected.

Last week 39 cases were registered, as compared with 73 for the preceding week.

Centenary Observed By Broad Run Baptists

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Weston, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Members of the Broad Run Baptist Church near Lightburn today were hosts at a celebration marking the 100th anniversary of the Broad Run Baptist Association, which was organized a century ago by immigrants from Fauquier County, Virginia.

The association, which embraces all Baptist churches in Lewis County and other nearby churches, has never missed an annual session since it was founded.

Nice Invites Investigation Of His Office

Replies to Charges Made After Enactment of Paperhangers' Bill.

Inquiry Now Under Way on State Government Keeps Silence.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—Replying to suggestions that he clear up some of the unrevealed circumstances surrounding approval of the paperhangers' bill, Gov. Harry W. Nice today invited investigation of his administration.

The nvitation was made in a statement given out here by his office. Gov. Nice is now on a vacation cruise on Chesapeake Bay. It was indicated that he had phoned the substance of the statement to his office here.

As given out by Robert Irvin, executive secretary to the Governor, the statement said:

"Gov. Nice welcomes any investigation of any department of the State government or any activity of the administration since he took office last January.

"He would not only welcome an investigation but it would have his hearty co-operation and the complete co-operation of his office."

Investigation Under Way.

An investigating committee is already at work on a survey of the State government. It has a majority of Republican members. Cookman Boyd, its chairman, yesterday continued his silence on the activity of the body, which was given $50,000 by the last Legislature.

Gov. Nice's statement followed by one day a demand by Senator John G. Callan for a legislative probe into the paperhangers' methods of passing the bill.

The resignation of J. A. Mullendore as president of the Contract Paperhangers Association was accepted last night at a meeting of the association. Mullendore originally made the charges which brought the paperhangers' fight out into the open.

Claims Bribe Plan.

He said that C. Hood Dasch had asked him for funds to hire Maj. J. Purdon Wright, the Governor's advisor, to urge the Governor to sign the bill. Mullendore also said that Dasch had promised him appointment to the paperhangers' board if he contributed. Dasch has been removed from the board.

In accepting Mullendore's resignation, the association spoke caustically of what they called "low-caliber paperhangers." They said the "better class of paperhangers is 100 per cent for the law."

Ex-Senator's Kin Granted Divorce

Martinsburg Decree Given to Mrs. Wiltshire.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—A divorce was granted in circuit court here yesterday to Mrs. Virginia Faulkner White Wiltshire from Harrison Flick Wiltshire.

Mrs. Wiltshire was given custody of the three children, but the father will be permitted to see them at any reasonable time and place.

Mrs. Wiltshire, whose wedding to Mr. Wiltshire occurred in Nashville, Tenn., where she and her mother, Mrs. Jane Faulkner White, daughter of the late United States Senator and Mrs. Charles J. Faulkner, were residing at the time, has been active in social circles here. Mr. Wiltshire is a son of the late G. B. Wiltshire, former Mayor of Martinsburg. He has recently been manager here for the Federal Housing Survey. The grounds for the suit were not made public.

Cards Take 2 From Phils; Lead by 2 1-2 Games as Giants Fall

Martin's Hits Account for Twin Bill

Pepper's Home Run With Bases Full Leads Rally in Finale.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—The league-leading St. Louis Cardinals stormed through a double victory over the Phillies today before a record week-day throng of 14,000 and increased their lead to 2½ games over the New York Giants, who lost twice to Pittsburgh. The scores were 5 to 1 and 13 to 5.

Led by Pepper Martin, who belted a home run in the sixth inning of each game, the second with the bases full when the Cards were experiencing difficulties, the league-leaders piled up a total of 27 hits. The Phils got only 15 in the two games although they held the lead for five innings of the afterpiece.

Young Ed Heusser subdued the Phils in the opener, giving eight hits and losing a shutout when George Watkins hit for the circuit in the first inning. The Cards tied the count in the third inning, took the lead when Martin smacked his first homer of the day in the sixth and continued smacking Curt Davis for a total of 13 blows. Terry Moore set the pace with a homer and three doubles.

Phils' Early Lead.

The Phils jumped on Bill Hallahan early in the second game for a 3-0 lead, but they blew up completely in the sixth and the Cards put over nine runs against Bucky Walters and Joe Bowman. A two-run burst in the fifth started the Cards off and three straight singles off Walters tied the score to start the sixth. A hit batsman forced in a run, then with the corners crammed Martin belted a homer over the right-field wall. Just after Bowman took the hill Jim Collins hoisted his twenty-first homer of the season over the same wall with two aboard to finish the rally.

Paul Dean relieved Hallahan just before the big inning, but pitched only one frame, and Bill Walker, who did a neat job of protecting the St. Louis lead in the last four innings, was given credit for the victory.

First Game.

Ft. Myer Poloists Play 2 Games in Maryland

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 28.—The Fort Myer polo team will meet the Washington County polo team in two games, one Sunday and another on Monday, Labor Day, at Fenton Field, Williamsport. Fort Myer recently defeated the local team on their home field by the score of 7 to 6. The receipts from the Labor Day game will go to the Democratic Club of Williamsport.

Welsh, Williams Meet in Nationals

Considering it a "good break" that he drew R. Norris Williams, former national champion, as his first-round opponent in the National championships, Barney Welsh, Washington's National Public Parks champion, left for Forest Hills yesterday morning, making the trip by automobile. He was accompanied by his mother.

Welsh made no predictions concerning the outcome of his match against the famous internationalist, but expressed as additional reason for winning the prospect of meeting Roderick Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, his second-round opponent, whom he will meet if he gets by Williams.

Rickey Willis, of Columbia Country Club, and Don Lay, of Episcopal High School, Alexandria, also left for Forest Hills yesterday. Willis will play F. Martin Legaey, of France, in the first round.

Stars Seek U. S. Titles in Net Tourney

Play Begins Today; Perry Draws Bye; Helen Jacobs Scheduled.

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The biggest tennis show in this country's history gets under way in the Westside Stadium tomorrow.

For ten days the leading racquet wielders of nine nations will battle for the United States Men's and Women's Singles championships, combined for the first time to furnish a tournament that ranks second only to Great Britain's Wimbledon, the yardstick by which all tennis competitions are measured.

Sixty-six matches are listed for the opening day. Thirty-four of these will bring the men's division down to 64 players for the second round. Thirty-two others will cut the women's field exactly in half.

Fred Perry, top-ranking amateur of the world, drew a first round bye and thus will not begin defense of the men's title he has held for 2 years until Friday but Helen Jacobs, women's champion for 3 years, will play Mrs. H. Walter Blumenthal, of New York, the former Baroness Maud Levi, in a first-round match tomorrow.

Foreign Threats.

All told, the foreign threat will be provided by 12 players in the men's division and nine in the women's. Perry, a heavy favorite to retain the championship, is England's only representative but he will get British support from Eskell Andrews of New Zealand, as well as from the Canadians, Robert Murray, Laird Watt, and Henri Emard. Brugnon, Christian Boussus and A. Martin Legeay form the French contingent; Menzel, of course, represents Czechoslovakia; Maier and Alonso carry on for Spain, and Guy Cheng for China.

In the women's championship, England will be represented by Miss Stammers, Miss James, Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King, Nancy Lyle and Evelyn Dearman; Canada by Jean Burritt, Effie Billing and Diana Pope, and Mexico by Carlotta Jose.

Alumnus Coaches Tech.

Atlanta, Aug. 28 (AP).—Frank Waddey, an end on Georgia Tech's 1928 championship football team, has signed with his alma mater to coach the Yellowjacket ends this fall and assist with the freshman coaching.

Yanks Pound Chisox to Win Pair

Triumph, 9-1 and 5-2, as Allen, Ruffing Check Losers.

Gehrig's 27th Homer Is Among Features of Second Game.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—After dividing three doubleheaders with the White Sox in as many days, the Yankees came through with a twin triumph in the fourth today to tack a successful ending on their otherwise dismal road trip. With Johnny Allen and Red Ruffing pitching, the Yanks won, 9 to 1, and 5 to 2.

Allen pitched five-hit ball in the opener to hang up his thirteenth victory of the season, losing a shutout on Vernon Washington's homer. The Yanks belted Ted Lyons for 15 blows, including a circuit swat by Jack Saltzgaver, and scored in every inning but the third and sixth.

Gehrig Smashes Homer.

A tremendous homer by Lou Gehrig, one of the few ever to clear the right field pavillion, broke a tie score in the afterpiece and sent New York off to victory behind Ruffing's six-hit flinging. It was his twenty-seventh round tripper of the year.

A crowd of 17,000 saw today's twin bill boosting the four-day attendance to 90,000, a season's record for the two Chicago parks.

Brave Boston Wins Half of Two Games

Berger's Homer Saves 1st, 2-1; Cubs Take Finals.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Wally Berger's twenty-eighth home run of the season gave the lowly Boston Braves a 2-to-1 victory today in the first game of a double-header with the Chicago Cubs, but Lon Warneke beat the cellar-dwellers, 5 to 2, in the second game.

Ben Cantwell limited the Cubs to four hits in the opener. Warneke held the Braves to seven hits in the second game, while the visitors made all their hits and runs off Smith in the first six innings.

Tribe Subdues Red Sox in 2 Games

Boston Is Held to Single Run Throughout Doubleheader.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—The Cleveland Indians won their series with the Boston Red Sox, three games out of five, by blanking the visitors, 2 to 0, in the first game of a double-header today and then going on to win the second, 3 to 1.

Thornton Lee's southpaw pitching in the first, when he held the Sox to four scattered hits, was the high spot of the program.

Lefty Grove, opposing Lee on the mound, yielded ten hits, but kept them scattered, except in the fourth when the Indians got two that netted a run, and in the eighth when they got three hits that brought in another.

The Indians drove Gordon Rhodes from the mound in the sixth inning of the second game with an onslaught of four hits that netted Cleveland's third and last run of the game.

Plea to Keep Doyle and Baer From Getting Rough Tonight

By Paul Gallico.
A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Is there no one who will step in and stop this thing before it is too late? Yes, I am referring to the proposed brutal slugging match scheduled in New York's blood-drenched arena (blood furnished by sweating stockholders) Madison Square Garden, between Buddy Baer the Western Pithecanthrope, and Jack Doyle, the giant of Trogh-Na-Dayr, the largest man whose stamp of foot ever set the Irish hills to shaking; Doyle, the minstrel boy with the voice of an angel; Doyle, the counterpart of Og the Terrible.

Oh, God help us all, this thing has gone too far and unless wiser heads prevail, there will be slaughter in the city tomorrow night for those two mighty men can not face one another at grips, without death being the victor.

Have Extra Week.

The thing no one had counted upon is that each has had an extra week to add marrow to their bones and strength to their muscles. It is no longer safe to let them meet. It will be especially dangerous if the me nare not weighed in again, because Doyle has had a week to recover from the slight set of tremors induced by a first-hand view of the beard on Baer's chest, the breadth of his wingspread and the mighty muscles of his back.

Doyle was breathing considerable defiance to one and all until he suddenly came face to face with his tremendous opponent, who looked so different from the high platform divers he has been pushing off the deep end. It was at this point that he confided to Jimmy Johnston, the fiend who had arranged the meeting, that he thought instead of tearing into him, he would feel him out a bit before he permitted himself to lose his temper and strike him violently.

Nine Feet Tall.

You have read, of course, that Doyle is nine feet tall, that his is the voice of Throg that stripped the trees bare of leaves at a whisper, and uprooted the trees themselves at a shout and that he once drove his fist through an oak tree to the length of an arm. His right fist, I think it was. If I am hazy, it is because I have only the Garden press agent's reports by which to go.

And the younger Baer weighs 600 pounds, has the waist of a girl and in his father's abbatoir used to tear oxen apart with his bare hands and skin them with his teeth. Again I may be a few pounds off, but the doctor's report that last week these two warriors were in the finest of fettle is on record for all to see Fine Fettle indeed. That was last week. I dare not think what preparations their combined strength has reached by now. It is the duty of the police to interfere.

And what about me? Does no one care what becomes of me? Ah yes, you, in the security and quiet of your homes may read and shudder over the account of the carnage, or watch it from the safety of the balcony of the lodges with exits ever handy for escape. But I am pressed smack up-against the side of the ring, front row, exposed to heaven only knows what terrors should the two giants go berserk in their rage.

Some Wallop.

But I will go. I always go. It is my duty. I will be there at the ringside tomorrow night. I have sounded my warning. It is up to the police to step in and spare us this exhibition of brutality while there is yet time. For all this thin veneer of civilization, I know that Doyle is a brute beneath it all. The man is a veritable monster of strength. Didn't he in his first fight in this country knock a man out with nothing but THE BREEZE CREATED BY THE FORCE OF A MISSED BLOW? Whatever would have happened had he hit the man no one can say but it is safe to reason that he never would have lived through it. And yet it is the plan of money mad promoters to throw this Irish terror into hand to hand combat with an equally savage American monster. I appeal to the mothers of America. I appeal to the W. C. T. U. . . . STOP THIS SLAUGHTER.

Dodgers Subdue Reds, 4 to 2, to Even Series

Brooklyn, Aug. 28 (AP).—The battered Dodgers earned an even break in their four-game series with Cincinnati by beating the Reds, 4 to 2, in the final encounter today.

Ray Benge kept eight Cincinnati hits well scattered while the Dodgers bunted Paul Derringer dizzy in the second to score two runs and take a lead they never relinquished.

Macks Shut Out By Tiger Rookie

Lawson Holds A's to Four Hits in 11-0 Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 28.—The league-leading Detroit Tigers wound up their longest home stand of the season this afternoon by shutting out the Athletics 11 to 0, behind the four-hit pitching of Roxie Lawson, a rookie right hander obtained from Toledo a week ago.

The Tigers blasted out 11 hits and executed three snappy double plays to set the A's down for the fifth time in the six-game series.

Detroit bunched enough hits in the second, fourth and fifth innings to run up nine runs on the Athletic while Lawson was holding the enemy in check. It was his second shutout in two starts for Detroit. He beat Lefty Grove, of Boston, 2 to 0, last Saturday, but his performance today was superior to his first start. He fanned four and allowed three walks. Finney got three of the four hits he gave up.

one out and scored on Carey's single to left.

West Starts a Rally.

Sammy West's single started the Browns' productive seventh inning. West advanced to second on Clift's single to right and when Carey grounded into the pitcher's box, Russell threw too late to third in an attempt at a force play, leaving the bases filled. Russell extricated himself from his predicament with the damage of only one run, which scored on Heath's long fly to Powell, but it proved the decisive tally.

The eighth inning, which opened auspiciously for the Nats when Travis singled to right and Powell sent him to third with a single to center with none out, fell one run short of tying the score. Red Kress hit into a double play, Carey to Lary to Burns, Travis scoring, but after Holbrook's single, Russell flied to Coleman for the third out.

Unable to get a man on base in the ninth, the Nats went down to their fifteenth defeat in 23 games on the road. They entrained for Washington tonight with a two-game margin over the last-place Browns.

Choices Bow In 6 of 7 Contests

Daily Double Pay-Off Is $125.30; Handley Pays $46 Mutuel.

By Walter Haight.

THE historic Marlboro track, ranking high in the number of winning favorites down through the years, failed to live up to its reputation yesterday as the heavy sugar horses had their innings. When the seventh race and approaching sunset gave the favorite players a chance to get their breath they were ready to repair to the Exhibition Hall over at the fair and climb up on the shelves with the pickled cucumbers.

The day was marked by a pay-off of $125.30 on the daily double, quite an improvement on the $12.80 of opening day. The winning combination was that of Miss Fern and Handley, a filly and a gelding, and the reward enough to keep the wolf away from the door.

The backers of the choices tried six times to chase home a winner and on each occasion they were left holding the bag. The situation reminded of Charles Town's early meetings when "Something Always Happens to the Favorite" was the theme song. It was not until the final race of the day that a favorite did what was expected of him.

Bread King Folds.

The day's feature race, named the Chesapeake Beach Purse, proved another of those hop, skip and jumps for a representative of the Bond family of Baltimore. Inscription, ridden by Sammy Palumbo, came through with a driving victory over Bread King and Iwintoo over the 5½-furlong course.

Bread King broke on top of the field and looked like a bacon sandwich for most of the route, with Inscription running closest. However, when the real racing began on the swing for the stretch, Inscription answered Palumbo's whip with a rush that Bread King failed to match. Iwintoo hung on for third. Ideal racing weather brought out another crowd of 5,000.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZIPALONG, $140.00, $55.00, $14.50; ALWINTOUR, $9.50, $4.30; CHIMNEY TOP, $2.80.

ZIPALONG hustled to the front in the opening furlong, drew clear and steadied along in front and outlasted ALWINTOUR at the end. The latter, in closest pursuit of the pace, fought it out courageously and just failed to be up in time. CHIMNEY TOP, unable to reach the leaders early, worked his way up stoutly on the inside and closed a good gap.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:14. Off at 4:18. Winner, Mrs. A. M. Creech's ch. f. (3), Our General—Mae Quince. Trained by M. Parke. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:23, 0:46 1-5, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUR MAE, $5.60, $3.10, $2.60; RED WAGON, $3.40, $2.90; BARCAROLLE, $4.10.

OUR MAE followed the pace of RED WAGON under slight reserve, moved up on the outside to gain a slight lead at the stretch turn and fighting it out courageously held RED WAGON safe. The latter showed good speed and held on willingly in the closing drive. BARCAROLLE, prominently placed throughout, held on stubbornly at the end.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2,500 added. The Esek Hopkins Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:50. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's b. c. (3), by Westy Hogan—Candy May. Trained by J. L. Donovan. Value to winner, $2,475; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:12, 1:37 1-5, 1:44 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDIMATE, $8.80, $4.00, $3.10; SAFE AND SOUND, $3.10, $2.50; CANTINE LASS, $3.30.

CANDIMATE followed in close pursuit of the pace for the first half mile, went to the front when called upon, drew away into a good lead and never threatened, winning with speed in reserve. SAFE AND SOUND lost ground around the first turn, was outrun for the first 6 furlongs and closed with a rush through the stretch. CANTINE LASS was under steadying restraint while holding a prominent position, closed gamely at the end.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:21. Winner, L. E. Ogle's b. g. (4), Blind Play—Loretta Brooks. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13, 1:38 3-5, 1:45 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLIND BROOK, $15.60, $9.50, $5.90; MR. PETE, $11.80, $6.50; IDLE ALONG, $7.70.

BLIND BROOK outran his field to the first turn, rated along in front under steadying restraint and was never seriously threatened, winning with speed in reserve. MR. PETE, in nearest attendance of the winner all the way, continued willingly to the close. IDLE ALONG, restrained close up, held on gamely in the drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:51. Off at 5:51½. Winner, Apache Stables' ch. m. (6), Sweep On—Belle Roberts. Trained by E. E. Russell. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOCIAL CLIMBER, $17.70, $7.00, $3.90; LAST ROMANCE, $3.90, $2.70; ZEVAR, $2.90.

SOCIAL CLIMBER forced the early pace, took command when the pacemaker began tiring, lost command to LAST ROMANCE, but coming with a rush outlasted the latter at the end. LAST ROMANCE moved up steadily on the outside, gained a slight lead in stretch, but not good enough. ZEVAR went into contention nearing the far turn but weakened in the last three furlongs.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:20. Off at 6:20½. Winner, A. C. Compton's ch. g. (4), Genie—Blemished. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RESPECT, $5.70, $3.00, $2.80; OSCILLATION, $3.40, $3.10; HIGH FINANCE, $4.60.

RESPECT followed the pace of HIGH FINANCE, wore the latter down when reaching the stretch and, hard ridden at the end, held OSCILLATION safe. The latter moved up on the outside midway down the back stretch and continued gamely under punishment in the stretch run. HIGH FINANCE outran his field to the first turn and rated along in front, but weakened in the last three-sixteenths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INSCRIPTION, $9.00, $5.20, $3.30; BREAD KING, $7.40, $4.20; IWINTOO, $3.80.

INSCRIPTION forced the pace to the stretch turn, where she took command to win driving. BREAD KING set a fast early pace, but tired in the stretch. IWINTOO ran an even race and tired under punishment last quarter. QUEENS FLAG came from far back last half. AELLA broke poorly and refused to extend herself.

SIXTH RACE—About one and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. The Commodore Hotel. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:50. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FURLED FLAG, $6.90, $3.70, $3.30; MISS ALPHONSO, $4.20, $3.30; FOGGY DAWN, $3.30.

FURLED FLAG, hard hustled from the break, was forced wide turning for home, but closed gamely under punishment to just last to win. MISS ALPHONSO, well up throughout, was in tight quarters turning for home, but fought her way clear and closed gamely. FOGGY DAWN came from far back last half. OPPOSITION and DEAR HEART tired after showing early foot.

SEVENTH RACE—About one and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:23. Winner, Allen Getz's b. g. (5), Light Brigade—Dandy Anne. Trained by C. Beal. Value to winner, $200; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:26 4-5, 0:53, 1:21 1-5, 1:50, 1:58 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POST BRIGADE, $4.60, $3.40, $2.60; BARNEY SEXTON, $5.60, $3.10; BUNTINO, $2.90.

POST BRIGADE broke slowly and, in trouble rounding first turn, took overland route to stretch turn, where he slipped inside, and the ground thus saved enabled him to win. BARNEY SEXTON took command first quarter, went wide turning for home and was next best. BUNTINO, well up throughout, went extremely wide turning for home and hung at end. MISS CATALAN closed with rush last half.

At the Post . . .

with* Bill Bennings.

Marlboro Race Track.

Dear Al:

I don't know which was the worst yesterday, Bennings, Inc., or the starter at this track. Most of the fields went away from the post in four divisions and at least two of the favorites had little chance under the conditions. The stewards blamed Aella's case on Jockey Bob Martin and gave him the rest of the meeting to think it over. Martin, who was suspended for the Cumberland meeting after enjoying only one day in the saddle, probably was surprised that he wasn't set down here on opening day. I'm not familiar with all the angles to Martin's case, but I'm going to recommend a couple of days for somebody in the vicinity of those starting stalls if things don't improve. I don't say that every favorite should win. If he or she did, the racing game would be finished then and there, but I do believe that the public choice should get an even break with the remainder of the field. I grant that the horses hereabouts are no Little Lord Fauntleroys but the fields are small, eight or under, and that fact should help the starting crew.

BILL.

First race—Fairio seems best suited of this field despite the assignment of 115 pounds. The soft track should help. Anjoe, winner at Cumberland, appears second best. Staff Officer would have to be dealt with if in action.

Second race—Rapid Up won rather impressively at Cumberland and seems to hold quite an edge over this sort of company. Gets in with steadying weight and I see no reason for mistakes. Idle Worker is a useful plater and deserves consideration. Mary Wales has been tipped several times.

Third race—Black Dreams is first on the also-eligible list. Ran real good at the other track and should like the going here. This Play has been cracked with several times. Shapes up well in this. Tiger Cat for the show.

Fourth race—The Bond entry of Small Change and Arctic Land appears to be the best wager in this field. Both are fit and favor this sort of an oval. Take Off is dangerous with only steadying weight. Tuleyries Wand is as good as that last winning effort.

Fifth race—Mazyniata is far down the list, but will be hard to beat here if sent into action. I'm inclined to believe Follow On's last was an accident, but he may run back to it. Justa Teacher for the rest.

Sixth race—Semele ran a bang-up second at Cumberland in good time. Gets in this with only 99 pounds, providing an apprentice rides. Golden Play was third opening day and is a factor. Apathy won impressively last out.

Seventh race—Dunwin was no match for the winner in his recent outing, but he meets his kind here. Bendromel is fit now and will be close. Light Action would win with the right formula.

Giants Crushed In Twin Bill By Pirates

Grace's Homer With 3 On Base Is Decisive in 9-5 Nightcap.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Pittsburgh Pirates dealt the Giants' pennant aspiratoins a terrific blow today when they won both games of a double-header, 6 to 1 and 9 to 5, to sweep the three-game series. The double defeat, coupled with the Cardinals' two victories over the Phillies, left the Giants 2½ games behind the league leaders.

Cy Blanton held the Giants to five hits in the first encounter to gain the decision over Carl Hubbell. A homer by Pep Young helped the Pirates along. In the second game Bill Swift outlasted Roy Parmelee and three successors, although he was touched for 14 blows.

A homer by Earl Grace with the bases loaded in the sixth put the Bucs ahead after the Giants had scored three runs in the fifth. Dick Bartell socked a homer to bring the Giants up close again in the seventh, but Pittsburgh pulled away again at the expense of Euel Moore and Frank Gabler.

U.S. Steel Takes First Big Step To Decentralize

Carnegie and Illinois Companies Are to Be Unified.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 28.—The first major step in the long-heralded decentralization program of the United States Steel Corporation was taken today with announcement that the plan for unified operations of the Carnegie and Illinois Steel companies will become effective October 1.

Benjamin F. Fairless, former executive vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, will head the new organization, and the main office will be established in Pittsburgh, from which production and sales in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts will be directed.

Many details of the unification remained unclear, but it was believed in New York steel circles that such matters as the name of the new organization and further changes in personnel would be announced with the formal election of Fairless some time within the next month.

The general plan of reorganization along geographical lines was made public some time ago as a means for obtaining greater operating efficiency, eliminating duplication of facilities, and centralizing managerial responsibilities within the subdivisions themselves rather than in New York.

It is not expected that the entire plan will be carried into effect for several years, and further consolidations and unifications are expected to be announced from time to time.

Eventually, it is understood, the decentralization plan will result in the formation of five or six new subsidiaries controlling operations and sales within their own regions.

The present divisional setup of the giant corporation is on the basis of products. Carnegie and Illinois are considered the principal operating subsidiaries of U. S. Steel, which is a holding company. Carnegie, which has general offices in Pittsburgh, manufactures rolled steel and heavy forged steel products, including plates, rails, bars, wheels, ties, alloys, shapes, sheet and tin bars, stainless and heat-resisting steel bars. Manufacturing plants are located in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts.

The Illinois Steel Co., with general offices in Chicago, produces rolled steel in many forms and heavy forged steel products, which cover the same general line as Carnegie. In addition it manufactures open hearth and electric alloy steels. Its manufacturing plants are located in the Chicago district and include the Gary works, at Gary, Ind.

Steel Capacity 50%; Halt in Upswing

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—The first recession in steel production since inauguration of the upward movement early in July has lowered operating schedules to an average of 50 per cent of capacity, a decline of ½ point from last week, Iron Age reported today. A decline in tin plate output, which dropped from 78 to 70 per cent, and delays in automotive specifications were the major factors in the setback.

Utility Leader Hints at Test Of Holding Act

Fogarty Confident That Courts Will Protect Investments.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 28.—Another hint of proposed court action to test the validity of the utility holding company bill was given today in a statement by J. F. Fogarty, president of the North American Co. in connection with the declaration of the usual quarterly dividends on the common and preferred stocks.

"In our situation," he declared, "the asset value of investments in subsidiaries and other companies is equal to almost $2.50 for each $1 of holding company senior securities in the hands of the public.

"These asset values represent honest legitimate investments and are entitled to, and we believe will receive, the protection of the courts against attempts to destroy them through punitive legislation."

North American is one of the major units in the holding company group. In some utility quarters, the question had been raised as to whether the managements would be willing to order the disbursement of dividends in view of the possible requirement of liquidation under the holdng company bill and the necessary satisfaction of prior capital claims.

Fogarty said it was after consideration of the company's asset equities and the matter of court protection that the directors declared the dividends.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Tue.	Wed.
Advances	229	77
Unchanged	204	147
Total issues	761	872

Stocks — Declines moderately outnumbered advances as stocks managed to stem the headlong decline of the previous day. Early selling was arrested by good buying support toward the end of the session. Utilities were well taken and did a little better. Sales dropped to 1,390,190 shares.

Bonds—Modest recovery in the Federals was the feature, most corporates slipping lower on lack of buying power. Selling pressure on the much pummeled government list relaxed from the beginning. Utilities sank while the blue chip issues were supported. Transfers off to $11,145,000.

Curb—Prices rallied moderately although trading volume diminished to approximately 228,000 shares, compared with 421,000 Tuesday.

Grains—September corn broke 2 cents on liquidation, but other futures were fairly firm. Wheat drifted lower, 87¼ for the September futures. September corn last at 70¾ and September oats at 25¼.

Cotton—In a quiet market prices held within a narrow range. The close was steady at net declines of 2 to 6 points. October, 10.61.

Sugar—Raw sugar last at 3.50, refined 5.10 for the fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee quiet. Santos No. 4 last at 8⅛ to 8¼ while Rio No. 7 was final at 6½.

Bar silver—Unchanged in New York at 65⅝ cents per ounce. In London last prices were unchanged at 29d. (65.04 cents).

Bar gold— Up 2d. to 139s. 11½d. ($34.84).

2 Companies Order Extra Dividends

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Directors of Wesson Oil & Snowdrift Co. have ordered an extra dividend of 87½ cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 12½ cents on the common stock, payable October 1 to stock of record September 14. In the previous quarter the company paid an extra dividend of 37½ cents.

Beechnut Packing Co. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, payable October 1 to stock of record September 12. A similar extra was paid in the three preceding quarters.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stock Tone Hardens Moderately as Selling Activity Declines—Government Bonds Improve. Wheat Weakens—Dollars Rise.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 28.—Trading volume slackened and prices rallied a little in stocks and bond markets. Stocks closed not much worse than well mixed, in a turnover of under one and a half million shares, against 2,150,000 shares yesterday. Government bonds were supported and recovered a little. Grains were lower, September wheat closed ⅝ of a cent lower at 87⅜ cents a bushel.

Recoveries and fresh declines provided an odd mixture in stocks. More than half a dozen issues which either finished with gains yesterday or were not dealt in at all dropped from 1 to 4 points today. Among them were Columbian Carbon, City Ice preferred, Fairbanks Morse preferred, General American Investors preferred, Standard Gas & Electric preferred, Vulcan Detinning, Pittsburgh Coal preferred, Mengel preferred and Lima Locomotive.

General Motors recovered the greater part of its early loss of a point or so, as did Auburn. Chrysler moved up a point. Both classes of Yellow Truck were strong and active. In the oils, Phillips resumed its upward movements to around the best price of the year. Consolidated Oil hardened on dividend resumption. Small gains were shown among the public utilities most of the time.

New Haven Firm.

Rails were erratic, but were not shoved down much. New Haven strengthened. Mail orders were irregular. Spiegel May Stern dropped 3 points to its worst price. Sears recovered all its early loss of 2 points. Montgomery Ward held steady. Farm implements were fractionally higher. Steels and chemicals were inclined to soften, as were rail equipments, auto accessories, tobacco, and department stores. Coppers and silvers were firm.

Dollars improved in the foreign exchange markets. With the war news looking more like bluff and less like actual conflict, seasonal influences appeared to reassert their sway. Sterling declined and francs were lower. The control put up the price of lire a little. Money markets were dull and unchanged.

In connection with the signing of the gold clause act, giving a period of six months in which actions may be brought by holders of gold clause currency or securities before withdrawal of the Government's consent to such actions, the rapid retirement of gold certificates has attracted comment. In the Treasury daily statement for August 24 the amount of such gold certificates outstanding outside of the Treasury went below $500,000,000 for the first time. At the end of July about $785,000,000 of the certificates were oustanding.

Bulk in Reserve Banks.

The bulk of these are in the Reserve banks and apparently the retirements are coming from that source, the banks being given gold credits for the certificates turned in. In exchange for the Government's repudiated promises to pay gold the Reserve banks are being given a bookkeeping entry which no doubt is a fair enough exchange. Just why the Treasury should concentrate upon redemptions of these certificates (since August 10) is not clear. Of the $785,000,000 gold certificates outstanding July 31, all but $115,000,000 were in the tills of the Reserve banks.

As some Government bond dealers interpreted the gold clause bill, anybody who holds any of such issues now has a put on the Treasury, to reverse the side, a call upon cash. If the Government bond market should collapse before gold suits are outlawed, holders of gold-clause bonds, of which there are several billion dollars worth outstanding, could demand immediate payment at par, regardless of maturity.

Delay.

The ticker had its chronic attack of delay in the early trading. Once the public again takes a lively speculative interest in the market it is difficult to see how SEC can avoid taking action under its authority to see to it that adequate reporting of transactions be had.

Dotted Lines.

The volume of periodical reports to be filled out by members of the Stock Exchange is beginning to approach the level to which railroads have become accustomed. The exchange itself is responsible for many questionnaires, but the heavy hand of bureaucracy inspires some of those and is adding new ones, including the Reserve Board's questionnaire on margins and the proposed SEC questionnaire on financial condition of firms.

Margin.

It was reported that few margin calls went out this morning as a result of yesterday's break, but some houses put through a margin sheet, which means a close examination was made of all margin accounts. For some time the margin matter has been left to the routine observation of the margin clerks. If traders' accounts have in some instances been pretty well loaded up, they at least have not built up debit balances to the extent of expanding brokers' loans.

New Bank Act Is Accepted by A. B. A. Group

Calls Provisions Basically Sound; Awaits Rules for Administration.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Opinion that the banking act of 1935 is on the whole an acceptable piece of legislation, basically sound, and merits confidence on part of the banks, is expressed by the American Bankers Association through its special committee on the banking act. Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, is a member of the committee.

A special communication to this effect, addressed to all banks in the United States, was received by local banks yesterday. It was accompanied by an annotated copy of the act.

The committee declared that, "although many extreme measures pertaining to banking were introduced during the session, none of those threatening serious danger to sound banking prevailed. We believe that on the whole the banking act of 1935 is an acceptable piece of legislation."

It was pointed out in the report that the full import of the new regulations would not be definitely known until the specifications for administering certain sections of the act are drawn up as provided for in the legislation.

The Federal Reserve Board, Comptroller of the Currency and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will collaborate on this feature.

Although no mention of the newly created board of governors for the Federal Reserve system was made in the report, local banking circles believe that much will depend on the membership of this group.

President Roosevelt will appoint the board effective January 1, 1936. The new group will have virtually dictatorial control over interest rates and credit volume in the entire country.

Besides Fleming the special banking committee of the A. B. A. includes President R. S. Hecht, of the association, chairman of board Hibernia National Bank, New Orleans, La.; Second Vice President Tom K. Smith, president Boatmen's National Bank, St. Louis, Mo.; Winthrop W. Aldrich, member committee on banking studies, chairman of board, Chase National Bank, New York; Ronald Ransom, chairman committee on Federal legislation, executive vice president Fulton National Bank, Atlanta, Ga.

A. L. Lintner Heads.

A Laverne Lintner, until his recent resignation a member of the board of directors of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, has been appointed manager of the newly created Washington office of the Pearl American Fleet, it was announced yesterday.

His organization includes the Pearl Insurance Co. of London, the Monarch Fire Insurance Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, and the Eureka Security Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio. Offices of the company will be opened here early in September.

Treasury Offers $50,000,000 More

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for 273-day Treasury bills to the amount of $50,000,000, to be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders. Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks, or branches, up to 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The bills will be dated September 4, and will mature on June 3, 1936, and on the maturity date the face amount will be payable without interest.

Reckoning Day Of Government Nigh, Says Bank

Boston's First National Declares Taxes Must Repay Billions.

Boston, Aug. 28.—"The magnitude of the spending by the Federal Government has been forcibly brought to public attention by the pending congressional legislation to obtain additional tax revenue," says the First National Bank of Boston in its monthly letter today. "It was discovered that the so-called 'soak the rich' measure would produce only about $270,000,000 in taxes. Large as this sum is, it is but 7 per cent of the estimated deficit for the present fiscal year and less than sufficient to pay Federal expenses for two weeks. The Senate Finance Committee recommended broadening the base, but even by tapping income in the very low brackets it was found that the estimated yield would scarcely exceed $450,000,000.

"This should be a warning that the day of reckoning is not far distant. Sources of taxable revenue are not unlimited and it is only from taxation that the billions we are now spending can ever be repaid. The Government cannot create wealth or income. It can only collect and distribute income that has been produced by private enterprise.

"Federal expenditures for the three fiscal years, 1934-5-6, would almost defray all the expenses of this Republic for the first 125 years of its existence.

If State and local government expenditures are added to those of the Federal Government the total is staggering. The aggregate estimate for 1934 was $15,500,000,000. Only $9,500,000,000 was collected in taxes so that outlay exceeded income by nearly 40 per cent. The gap has been bridged by borrowing and at the end of this fiscal year the total public debt will exceed $50,000,000,000.

Manufacturing Gains Against Seasonal Trend

2.5% More Workers and 12% Higher Pay Rolls Than a Year Ago.

New York, Aug. 28.—Contrary to the usual seasonal movement, manufacturing activity, as measured by total man-hours worked, was .5 per cent higher in July than in June, according to reports received by the National Industrial Conference Board from representative concerns in 25 manufacturing industries. The increase in total man-hours worked, however, was caused by an increase of 1.4 per cent in the average work week, rather than an increase in the number of workers employed, since the latter fell off .8 per cent.

Average hourly earnings were 59.8 cents in July, as compared with 59.9 cents in June, or .2 per cent lower. An increase in the average work-week from 35.9 hours in June to 36.4 hours in July, however, raised average weekly earnings from $21.46 to $21.75 during the same period. Since the cost of living in July was practically the same as in June, the real increase in the average weekly pay envelope amounted to 1.4 per cent.

A comparison of conditions in July, 1935, with those in July, 1934, shows a definite improvement. There were 2.5 per cent more workers employed, whose average work-week was 7.1 per cent higher than a year ago and whose combined hours worked were 9.7 per cent higher. The total pay rolls in July, 1935, exceeded those of July, 1934, by 12 per cent. Average hourly earnings were 1.7 per cent higher and weekly earnings, 9.3 per cent.

Weekly Earnings Higher.

Since July, 1933, there has been an increase in average hourly earnings of 31.1 per cent, but a reduction of 15.2 per cent in the average work week, resulting in an increase of 12.5 per cent in average weekly earnings. Although an increase of 9.8 per cent in the cost of living during the two-year period offset part of the gain in nominal weekly earnings, real weekly earnings were 2.3 per cent higher in July of this year than two years ago. There were 17.6 per cent more workers employed in July, 1935, than in July, 1933, and their combined pay rolls were 32.3 per cent higher, although total hours worked were 0.3 per cent lower than two years ago.

Little change in the cost of living as a whole was noted in July, as compared with June, 1935. The index of the total cost of living declined only 0.1 per cent from June to July, although fairly marked changes were noted in the componet groups of the wage-earner's budget. Food prices fell 1.1 per cent, and clothing prices again moved downward to a bit less degree than has been observed during the past months. Rents, on the other hand, continued their upward trend, increasing 0.9 per cent from June to July. Coal prices likewise moved up 0.9 per cent more than seasonally, and the cost of sundries advanced 0.4 per cent chiefly in consequence of increases in the prices of smoking materials.

September Corn Breaks Two Cents

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Despite the absence of any fresh grain trade development to which current bearishness in the wheat market might be traced definitely, wheat prices today continued their downward drift.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1 cent lower, compared with yesterday's finish; December, 89⅛@89¼, and corn varied from 2⅜ off to ⅞ higher; December, 57⅛@57¼. Oats lost ⅛@½; rye, ¼@⅜, and barley was unchanged to 1 cent off. In the last four sessions wheat has lost about 2½ cents a bushel.

Liquidation of September corn caused a break of 2 cents a bushel in that contract but new crop deliveries continued firm. Lard futures advanced in sympathy with the hog market.

$5,000,000 Issue By Atlanta Utility

The Atlanta Gas Light Co. of Atlanta has filed with the SEC a registration statement covering $5,000,000 general mortgage bonds, 4½ per cent series, due 1955. The proceeds will be used to redeem outstanding general mortgage 6 per cent bonds, to pay off the company's 6 per cent notes and for additions to plant facilities. The principal underwriters are The First Boston Corporation and Halsey, Stuart & Co.

The company also filed a statement for 13,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock to be issued to the Consolidated Electric & Gas Co., a parent company, together with cash and common stock, in payment for $2,304,000 of 6 per cent notes now owned by Consolidated Electric.

Gen. Motors Spending $2,000,000 on Plant

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—New construction which will make the General Motors plant here its largest single production unit was announced today.

The company will construct three new buildings for the Fisher Body and Chevrolet Motor companies at Tarrytown at an approximate cost of $2,000,000. The corporation will also build a large freight unloading dock and will dredge the Hudson River to provide better overseas shipping facilities.

At peak production the local plants have a force of 4,500 and a total of $160,000 in weekly wages. Completion of the work will increase the value of the Tarrytown plants to $12,000,000.

Georgia Tobacco Double Last Year

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Aug. 28.—Georgia's 1935 leaf tobacco sales had mounted to 72,922,458 pounds at a total income to growers of $13,845,274.67 today on the basis of incomplete warehouse returns, according to Garland Bagley, statistician for the State department of agriculture.

The auctions have more than doubled the 1934 crop. Last year 33,673,474 pounds were marketed for $6,299,761.96. Bagley said the market at one or two towns will not close until the end of this week.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 28 (AP).—Sales were lighter on the new bright belt tobacco markets today, but the quality of receipts was better and early sales indicated a higher average for the day.

Official figures revealed the average yesterday at Wilson was $21.21 a hundred for 705,238 pounds sold.

Court Denies Stay Of Fox Film Merger

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—A motion for an order to stay the merger of the Fox Film Corporation and Twentieth Century Pictures, Inc., was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Edward Lazansky, of the Appellate Division. The decision clears the way for completion of the merger, which was opposed by a group of minority stockholders.

Murray Becker, counsel for the minority stockholders, who sought the motion for a stay yesterday, charged that the merger was a move by the Chase National Bank to get control of the Fox Film Corporation.

N. Y. Wholesale Trade Gains 13.6 Per Cent

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—The September 1 monthly review of credit and business conditions by the Federal Reserve agent at New York states that July sales of the reporting wholesale firms in this district were 13.6 per cent higher than last year, the largest percentage increase since December.

Drug, paper and jewelry concerns, said the survey, reported the largest increase in more than a year and sales of the grocery and shoe firms were ahead of a year ago by the largest percentages in seven or eight months.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 28.—Traders on the stock exchange took a brighter view of the European outlook today. Bargain hunting, bear covering and better South African advices caused rallies in most sections, but best prices were not maintained. Transatlantic issues eased. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Prices continued their downward drift of the last two sessions on the bourse today. Rentes remained steady, while international shares moved irregularly. French and Belgian industrials declined. The market closed irregular.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse sagged fractionally early today, but recovered slightly at the close.

Foreign Exchange.

New York, Aug. 28.—The dollar today continued to hold its recent gains in terms of leading foreign currencies and against the pound sterling, and French and Swiss francs. Its position showed further slight improvement.

In New York the British unit was ⅛ of a cent lower at $4.97⅛. In London also the trend favored the dollar which closed at 4.97⅛ to the pound.

In Paris the dollar closed at the equivalent of 6.624 to the franc and in later dealings in New York the franc was .00⅛ of a cent lower at 6.62⅛ cents.

The Holland guilder was a shade higher at 67.81 cents, and the Italian lire was quoted in the New York market at 8.19 cents, an advance of .02 of a cent over yesterday's closing rate.

N. Y. Curb Rallies In Slower Trading

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 28.—The curb market recorded a moderate comeback today although volume dwindled sharply on the recovery. A few industrials failed to rebound from a short first hour selling spree. Utilities were comparatively firm.

Advances of large fractions to around a point prevailed in American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, United Gas preferred, Columbia Gas & Electric Convertible preferred, Sherwin-Williams, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Creole Petroleum, Gulf, Oil and Aluminum Co., of America. Parker Rust Proof and Great Atlantic & Pacific both closed off 2½ points on small trades.

Transfers approximated only 228,000 shares, compared with 421,000 the day before.

Joe Crosson's Airplane Feats Are Amazing

Pilot Who Flew Post and Rogers Bodies Home Has Rescued Many.

By the Associated Press.

Juneau, Alaska.—Out of Alaska's barren wastes have come a thousand and one stories about Pilot Joe Crosson, who flew the funeral plane bearing the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post back to civilization after their tragic crash.

Shy, small—he stands about 5 feet 6 inches—with a light complexion and very dark hair with a slight wave to it, he flashes a smile full of teeth and waves a deprecating hand when stories about his feats in the North came to his ears:

"Any pilot can do it," he says at such times.

But somehow it manages to be Joe Crosson who comes through.

It was he who found and brought back the body of Carl Ben Eilsen when that pioneer of the Alaskan airways crashed and was listed among the missing.

Saved 3 From Drowning.

It was he who brought a stricken appendicitis patient in from the wilderness of Fairbanks.

And it was Joe who "happened along" when a plane with three passengers cracked up in a stream. He brought his ship down, dived in and saved them all.

Joe is 32 years old. He has flown by day and by night over the difficult terrain where Rogers and Post crashed, and knows intimately, his associates say, the peculiarities of the weather up there.

Here is a typical Crosson story which Wiley Post told just after his solo hop around the world in 1933.

Flying from Khabarovsk, Siberia, in a 2,800-mile hop, Post came down with a bang at Flat, Alaska. He nosed over on the wet, boggy ground—Flat is an emergency landing field, with no staff—and broke one side of his landing gear. The propeller was bent beyond saving. Post took a sad look at his Winnie Mae, and felt it was the end of his world race. Dead tired, he crawled into a shack there and fell sound asleep.

Joe Warmed Up Plane.

He told how a man radioed Fairbanks of his plight.

Joe arrived with a mechanic and a metal welder he had pressed into service. They worked furiously to bring back the Winnie Mae to flying condition, and finally started up the motor. Post woke up.

"There was Crosson," he related. "'Come on,' Joe said, 'you can't stay here—you'd better be getting along now.' I almost cried when I saw the plane all warmed up and ready to go."

The day before Rogers and Post crashed, near Point Barrow, Crosson flew them from Fairbanks to Anchorage and back.

Safe Chemical to Kill Weeds Is Discovered

St. Paul (U.P.).—A new noninflammable weed eradicator to replace the fire-breeding sodium chlorate now in common use, has been discovered by the University of Minnesota farm school experts.

Dr. R. B. Harvey, professor of plant physiology, agricultural botany and horticulture, is credited with the discovery.

The basic chemical, he said, is a by-product of gas manufacture. Dr. Harvey recommended, however, that the Government finance a $1,000,000 plant, which also could be used for other products, including commercial fertilizers.

The new eradicator is made by passage of an electric current through a saturated solution of ammonium sulfate, creating persulfate, Dr. Harvey said. After killing the weeds, this compound disintegrates, enriching the soil with nitrogen and sulphur.

Ultra-Short Waves Boosts Potato Yield

Sverdlovsk, Russia, (U.P.)—By exposing the potato to the effects of ultra-short waves, Comrade Savin, Soviet farmer, increased his crop seventeenfold.

Pleased with the success of his experiment, Savin next exposed tomato seeds. The yield doubled. Now Savin expects to go further and increase the rest of his vegetable crop, if possible.

Supply Sergeant Fills Order for 100 Girls

Port Devens, Mass. (U.P.)—The supply sergeant here received a requisition for "100 girls, G. I., complete, with lines" for a dance given by the Citizens' Military Training Camp.

A "G. I. girl," it was explained, is about 5 feet tall, weighs 100 to 110 and may be either blonde, brunette or medium blonde.

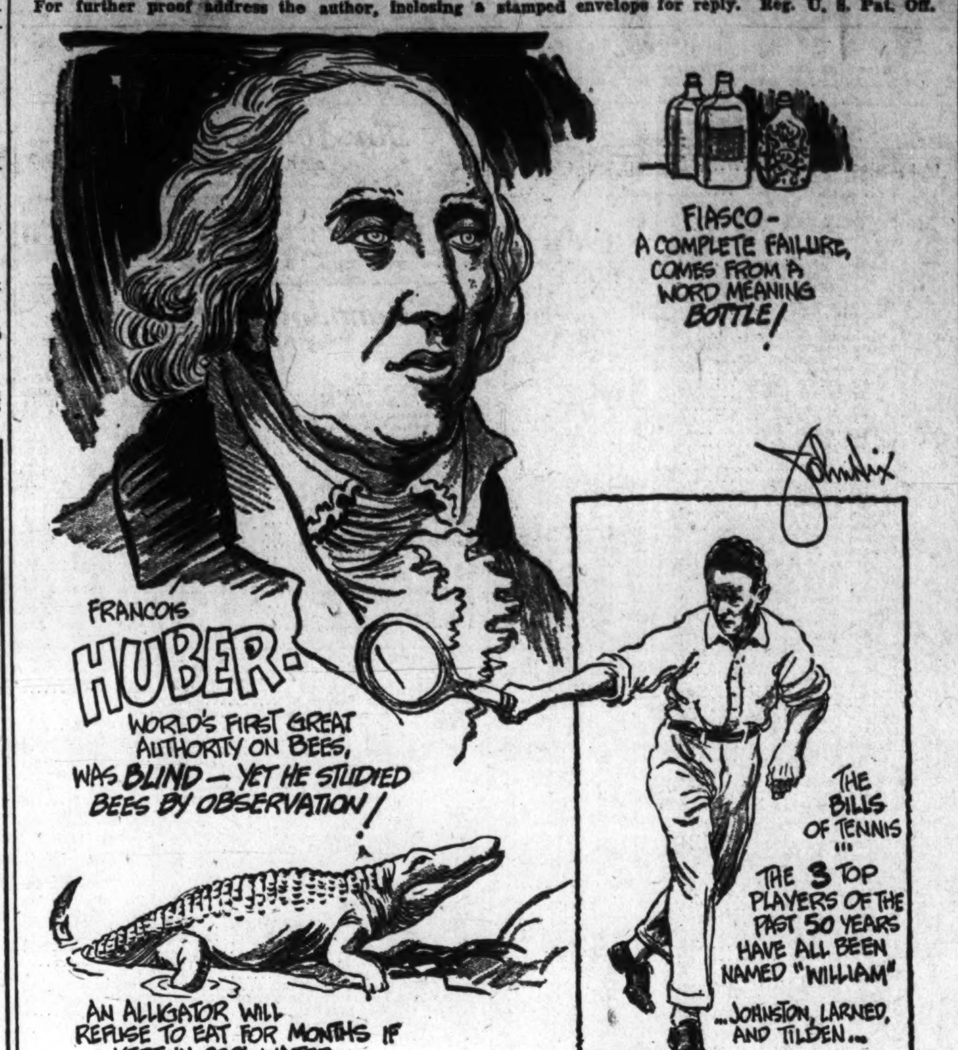
Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.



LIKE the four "James J's" of the heavyweight world, the three "Bills" are the champions of tennis. For almost half a century, since 1885, the three best men of the tennis courts have been William Larned, William Tilden and William Johnston.

These three men have been ranked among the first ten players of the United States more times than any others. First comes William A. Larned who was among the first ten for 19 years. Johnston, whose picture is the above drawing, and Tilden tie with 12 years apiece among the ten best tennis players.

* * * *

Strange as it seems, a blind scientist who studied by observation—the observations of others, of course—came to know more about bees than any other living person. He was Francois Huber, blind Swiss naturalist, born at Geneva in 1750.

He had special bee hives constructed with glass sides, and had others observe the habits of the bees. These observations were reported to him, and from them he drew his conclusions. This method, he said, eliminated any chance of failure that might occur with just one observer—the errors arising from the "personal equation" were ruled out by taking an average of many observers.

Huber discovered the routine of life in the hive. He cleared up the mystery of the queen, the function of the drone, and disproved many popular fallacies then current. He showed they gathered pollen and propolis as well as nectar. All these things he learned—and Huber never saw a bee except in early boyhood.

Winnie Winkle, The Breadwinner: Raising the Bid

On the Air Today

There's very much mysterious business going on around Columbia's studios in New York. Tonight, at 7, "Masquerade" is due to make its bow. It is understood "Masquerade," radio's first mask ball, will be presented from the C. B. S. Playhouse on Forty-fifth street. But from that point on—mystery is the keynote.

Ted Husing will be master of ceremonies and probably will be the only one at the ball unmasked. Husing, refusing to divulge details of the affair, hinted top-notch names from the entertainment field will be present—singers, comics, orchestras, etc. "The radio audience will have a better idea of who will be there than the artists themselves," he reports.

Anyway, its an hour of something new in radio entertainment. WJSV will handle it.

Even the relatively cool weather of the last few days wouldn't give you a hint as to what N. B. C. is up to tonight. But it is a sure indication that autumn is practically with us. From Chicago tonight, WMAL at 8:30, comes a football game. A very real football game between the Chicago Bears, pros, and an all-star team comprised of college stars.

Among those expected to play for the collegiates are Don Hutton, Bill Lee and Dixie Howell, of Alabama; Pug Lund, Stan Kostka and one or two others of Minnesota; Cotton Warburton, of Southern California, and Regis Monahan, of Ohio State.

* * * *

Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe, known to the world as the physician who attended the Dionnes, will headline Rudy Vallee's show tonight, WRC, at 7. Dr. Dafoe will tell of the progress made by the quints since their birth and will comment on their infancy to date. Joan Marsh, of the movies, will play the lead in a dramatic sketch.

"Many listeners in this section of the country would, as you say in your column, have liked to have heard the ceremonies for Will Rogers," writes James Shreve, of Clinton, Md. And then Mr. Shreve advises that he heard the funeral ceremonies from WOR, in Newark, through the facilities of the Mutual network, with which WLW, in Cincinnati, and WGN, in Chicago, are affiliated. Which was the first word I had that the funeral ceremonies were on the air at all.

The postponed fisticuffs between Buddy Baer and Jack Doyle will be aired tonight by WOL at 8:30, direct from Madison Square Garden through the facilities of the intercity net. Sam Taub will do the announcing.

After five years as a page boy in the New York studios of CBS, Sammy Schiff insists he has abiut the swellest job there is. Here are a few bits from Sammy's daily routine:

"Morton Downey often buys ice cream sodas and we sit in a listening room and drink htem.

"Besides my regular duties of taking care of the artists and visitors, I also have to know where to get a violin G string in a hurry.

Col. Stoopnagle once sent me to the soda fountain for 60 bottles of soda. He treated the members of the orchestra and cast on the program.

"Ran across Fiftylfirst street to Lexington avenue and rescued Ooscha Seidel's $60,000 violin which he inadvertently left sticking out of the rumble seat of his car.

"'Abe Lyman rubs my head before going to play poker. Says it brings him luck.

"Vice of Experience" often sits down and tells me stories. He always has two glasses of water in front of him during every broadcast, but never drinks any.

"Once Johnny Augustine dropped a musical number from a program because I didn't like it.

"PPitched pennies with Bing Crosby while waiting in corridor for rehearsal.

"Spoke to 'Little eAmerica' on one of the Byrd programs.

"'Ted Husing takes me over to the gym and we box. He's pretty good.

"And Kate Smith treats me to chocolate sodas." J. H. H.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

WHY SHOULD I BUY A FUR or FUR TRIMMED COAT NOW?

If you are thinking of buying a coat for next winter's wear, you will be interested in these questions—which you may have asked yourself—and their answers.

Why should I buy a fur coat now?

Because August Fur Sales give you the opportunity to buy quality furs at low prices. Many alert merchants have developed August into an "extra" Fur Season by offering the inducement of lower prices in August.

Why do I get more careful workmanship now? Don't reputable furriers always do good work?

Of course they do. However, working skins in a fur coat is as much an art as making a fine watch. If a man can do a careful, unhurried job, his result is likely to be better than if he has to meet a deadline because the cold weather has set in, and orders are piling up. This is true also of alterations.

Do you mean that skins in coats bought now are actually better than those offered for sale in the cold weather?

Not necessarily, but often so. For the most part, coats offered for sale now are made from first-selection skins. The furriers who made them had the pick of the market from which to make their choices.

That's another thing. How do I know styles won't change by winter?

Fur coat styles are conservative. There are always novelties, of course, but it is true that the major styles of the season are now set. The fur coats you will be shown today are the same you will see on sale in the middle of winter.

Have the stores really got large enough selections now for choice?

Yes, indeed. The August Fur Sale is an institution. Most merchants have a complete range of styles and furs ready to show you now.

I suppose a deposit will hold any coat in storage until I need it?

Yes. Most firms gladly make arrangements so that a small deposit will keep coats in cold storage until you want them.

If you want a new fur coat you owe it to yourself to take advantage of the August sales. Watch the fur coat advertisements as they appear in The Washington Post. They will keep you informed of the newest styles, and the current price trends.
